L 'BREAKERS' WITH US AGAIN AS WAITERS AT THE TOURAINE

Uniformed Squad, Held in Reserve All Day at Parker's, Is Sent Post Haste to Fill the Places of the Latest Men Out

"Give Up Tips? Never!" Say Emergency Men Who Took Part Also in Longshoremen's and the Teamsters' Strike

Seventy-three Regulars Quit as Dishes Rattle at Touraine; Trouble Is Still On at the Parker House and Young's

GUESTS in the main dining room of the Hotel Touraine last night were served by strike-breaking waiters who are in Boston now for their fourth strike-breaking trip.

They were here last in the carmen's strike, running trolley cars.

They were here before that in the longshoremen's strike, hustling steamship freight.

Some of them were here as far back as the teamsters' strike, driving trucks.

Picking up trolley fares, pounding the motorman's gong, loading steamers or waiting on hotel guests—it's all the same to them.

They said they are glad to get back to Boston they did so well in the trolley strike particularly.

They were told that one of the causes of the present strike was because the porters have to turn over their tips to the head porter and the waiters have to give part of their tips to the headwaiter.

"We Never Give Up."

Clustered about an AMERICAN reporter in the elegant main dining room of the Touraine, while women in evening gowns and men in formal dress listened with curious interest, the group of longshoremen, truckmen, carmen, waiters, laughed raucously at the idea of giving up any tips.

"We never give up anything," said one of them loudly.

They haven't a thing against the Boston waiters, they said, but as another of the gifted group expressed it: "It's simply business with us, this strike-breaking."

The management of the Whipple hotels, the Touraine, Parker House and Young's, was all primed for the strike which was threatened against the Touraine and Young's for 7 o'clock last night.

Cooks and waiters at the Adams House were prepared to strike at 7 o'clock last night. At 6.50 the hotel management agreed to all demands made, and the men returned to work.

According to the strike-breakers, there were seventy of their number kept in the Parker House all day, after being rushed over from New York early in the morning.

Each man was in regulation waiters' uniform, ready to start for any dining room that was "struck" in the Whipple chain.

At five minutes of seven thirty-two guests were being served in the main dining room of the Touraine. The coffee room and German room downstairs were doing a fair business.

Detectives on Guard.

President Edgar Pierce of the J. R. Whipple Company and Manager Hart of the Touraine stood at the entrance of the main dining room on the lobby floor. Two detectives sat on a luxurious settee in the hallway.

Inside the dining room the thirty-two guests were being deftly served by forty waiters under Head Waiter Claude Menard.

There was tension in the air. The employes and management knew the psychological moment was at hand. And the guests were generally aware something might happen.

At 7 o'clock, sharp, a whistle sounded outside the hotel. Thirty-three out of the thirty-five waiters in the main dining room quickly set down dishes and completed whatever service they were doing, then walked over to Head Waiter Morand, handed over their checkbooks and badges and filed quietly outdoors.

Seven waiters stayed. They continued their services to the guests. Head Waiter Morand distributed his nine faithful

Two Dead, 10 Injured in a Railroad Crash Near Bennington, Vt.

Head-on Collision Between Passenger and Milk Trains Last Evening.

BENNINGTON, Vt., Sept. 7.—Two persons are dead and ten others injured as a result of a head-on collision between a passenger train and a milk train one mile from this city on the Bennington branch of the Rutland Railroad at 5 o'clock tonight.

The dead are:

A. E. GOKAY, engineer on the passenger train.

DEAN DINSMORE, fireman on the passenger train.

The more seriously injured are:

Charles Wardell, Rutland; James A. Shufelt, Bennington; Thomas Slattery, Bennington; Michael Purcell, Troy, N. Y., and Edward Collins of South Shaftsbury, Vt. The latter will probably die.

The collision was caused, it is said, because there is no night operator at the Bennington station and as a result there was no one to warn the crew of the milk train concerning the departure of the three-car passenger train from Bennington. Both engines were demolished. The dead and injured were taken to Bennington on an electric car.

Two Saugus Auto Victims May Die

Machine Dashes Into a Horse, and Men Receive Fractured Skulls.

Two men will probably die as a result of a collision between an auto and a horse being led through Western Avenue Extension, Saugus, last evening.

George R. Thorndike, proprietor of the Atlantic Garage at Marblehead, and owner of the auto, and an unknown man, who was leading the horse, both received fractured skulls.

The machine struck the horse, killing it instantly, then dashed into a fence, knocking over the man who was leading the horse. The car turned turtle and hurled out Thorndike and James Ruggles, a merchant of Elmira, N. Y. Two others in the car escaped serious injury. Ruggles was severely bruised but not dangerously hurt.

The man who had been leading the horse has not yet been identified. He is about 5 feet 7 inches and weighs 140 pounds, of dark complexion. All the injured are at the Lynn Hospital.

WALKS UPON WATER.

John Nicholas Brown, $10,000,000 "Baby," Has Odd Shoes.

NEWPORT, Sept. 7.—John Nicholas Brown, famous around the world as the Ten Million Dollar Baby, but who has outgrown the baby part of it, has a new specialty in the shape of shoes that permit him to walk on water. The little fellow has done this with much success and many manifestations of delight near his mother's home.

Searching for something new and unique for young John Nicholas, his uncle, Daniel Le Roy Dresser, conceived the idea of the shoes and had them made. They are something like snowshoes, but longer.

Mrs. Brown will eventually send her son to Harvard. Then he will be a banker.

LONG ISLAND WRECK.

Two Cars Filled With Passengers Crash Into an Embankment.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—While running at thirty-five miles an hour, the Farmingdale express, on the Long Island Railroad, left the track late this afternoon, just east of Floral Park. The engine and baggage car overturned, and two passenger cars, filled with passengers, ran into an embankment. Many were slightly hurt by flying glass, but no one was seriously injured.

SOCIETY 'PIE' FOR BOOKIES.

Betting Is Furious at Lenox, and the Women Use Up Checks.

LENOX, Sept. 7.—Lenox and Stockbridge cottagers were "pie" for a bevy of New York "bookies" this afternoon at the Lenox Hunt Club races at the Lee Pleasure Park.

Betting was fast and furious, and the "bookies" collected when the card was completed.

Nearly all paid with checks and some of the women grimaced a bit but wrote their checks like men.

WOMEN TIES BOY TO HERSELF; LEAPS INTO THE CHARLES

NO REASON KNOWN FOR ACT

Mary LeCourse of No. 34 Chapman street, Charlestown, attempted to end her life and that of her five-year-old son late last night by jumping into the Charles River from a point 100 feet from the Boston side on the Harvard bridge.

The screams of the drowning woman attracted the attention of Robert Carlton of No. 14 Hobart street, Brighton, and Maurice J. Nagel of No. 564 Green street, Jamaica Plain. They went in her rescue and found the woman holding above the surface her five-year-old son, William LeCourse.

Before jumping from the bridge the woman had tied the boy to her wrist with a piece of rope.

Both were taken to the City Hospital. The mother sobbed piteously when placed in the ambulance. She smothered the little lad with kisses.

Woman Is a Bookkeeper.

The woman is 33 years old, and has been employed as a bookkeeper at a Long Wharf fish establishment. She is the daughter of Mrs. Catherine Mahoney of No. 34 Chapman street.

"My daughter has been despondent for two years," said Mrs. Mahoney last night. "She was preparing to enter a hospital for an operation, and fear that she might not survive the operation led her to attempt suicide. She has often said she would end her life, but did not intimate that today.

"Late this afternoon she gathered all the photographs of herself and boy and sent them to her brother, Joseph, in Brookline. She took the little lad and said she was going to take him to the home of her sister, Mrs. Catherine Felt, who lives at No. 33 Hancock street, Cambridge. She intended to leave the boy there an. enter the hospital.

"For the past four or five years she has been employed at intervals by Dennis O'Neil, a fish dealer on Long Wharf. The poor child was broken-hearted."

Worried About Her Son.

Yesterday the little lad was vaccinated in order that he might enter a kindergarten in Charlestown. The woman was devoted to her son, and according to her mother, worried about his future.

When the woman and her son were rescued an ambulance was sent for and she was taken to the City Hospital. She refused to give any information about herself which would aid the police in determining why she wanted to end her life.

Old Landmark Burns.

EXETER, N. H., Sept. 7.—The old Hampton House, a landmark at Hampton and two barns were burned to the ground this evening. Guests of the hotel escaped without injury. Firemen called from here helped to save adjoining property. The hotel had been purchased recently by Frank S. Mason, who remodelled it and re-named it "The Mason."

Furlong Romance Ends Bride Seeks Divorce She's Back From Ranch

MR. AND MRS. FURLONG

He a Harvard Man, She an Heiress, Each Had Been Divorced Before.

The romance of Colonel and Mrs. "Billy" Furlong, who were so sure four years ago that theirs was a love "match," because each had been married and divorced before, has come to grief.

Mrs. Furlong, who was originally Miss Florence R. Harding, heiress to the estate of "Rockrimmon," in Mansfield, now seeks divorce.

She accuses Colonel "Billy," the dashing Texas ranger, college graduate, athlete and former Bostonian, of being cruel and abusive.

The case is scheduled to begin tomorrow before the divorce session of the Bristol County Superior Court at Fall River.

And on Washington's Birthday, 1908, Colonel and Mrs. "Billy"—three days after their secret marriage in Providence, told at "Rockrimmon" how they loved each other, how it was "a love match, that's all," and how they were perfectly happy.

They admitted they had had "unpleasant experiences." That was in reference to Mrs. Furlong's divorce from her first husband, Mr. Emmons, and to the Colonel's divorce from his first wife.

They couple went later to Laredo, Texas, and the love match was supposed to be still flourishing. Not recently Mrs. Furlong returned to "Rockrimmon," her own long reputed in Mansfield.

Then she filed her divorce libel at Fall River. In this libel Mrs. Furlong sets forth that she was married to Furlong at Providence on February 19, 1908, and that they lived together happily at Mansfield until December 26 of the same year.

Charges Cruel Treatment.

On December 26, 1908, and "at divers times thereafter," she alleges that her husband was cruel and abusive to such an extent that she now desires divorce. It will be noticed that this alleged cruelty began the day after Christmas, when peace and good-will are supposed to reign.

The libel says that notice was served on the defendant by registered letter and that the receipt of notice is acknowledged.

But Colonel "Billy," after getting notice of his wife's divorce libel, did not stay quietly in Laredo, Tex., as present home. He hurried North, and is now at Winthrop, where he was formerly a Summer favorite. He intends to contest the case and has retained Edward A. Counihan of Boston as counsel. E. B. Horn is counsel for Mrs. "Billy."

The Colonel declines to discuss the case. Thus two marriages and one divorce have so far been insufficient to bring lasting love to Colonel and Mrs. "Billy" Furlong.

Mrs. Furlong's girlhood was happy. As Florence Rogers Harding she had every wish gratified. Her father, the late David Harding, made a fortune in the top and oil business. He built "Rockrimmon" for his home in the town of Mansfield.

The records of the Furlong marriage

Lost Her Way on "L"; Aged Woman Expires

Mrs. Haley of Lowell Exhausted by Her Wanderings on Way to Her Sisters in Malden.

Losing her way upon the Boston Elevated Railway system and becoming so exhausted before she finally reached her destination that she was hardly able to speak, Mrs. Mary E. Haley, eighty-three years old, of Lowell, died at the residence of her sister, Mrs. H. T. Seavey, No. 51 Wells street, Malden.

Mrs. Haley left her home in Lowell early this week to go to Malden. Upon reaching Boston she made the mistake of boarding a tunnel train instead of a train for Sullivan Square. When she finally managed to find her way to Malden she was completely exhausted. A physician was called, but Mrs. Haley gradually lapsed into unconsciousness and died.

She was a native of Lynn, N. H., and was the widow of Captain A. T. Haley, at one time a member of the Boston police department.

ROOSEVELT'S VIEW IS SELFISH, SAYS HEARST IN INTERVIEW ON THIRD PARTY MOVEMENT

"Many Democrats Believe Former President's Main Object Is to Break the Republican Organization So He Can Gain Control and Be Its Candidate for Presidential Nomination Once More in 1916"

"No Defection from Democratic Party Because Roosevelt Committed the Distinct Error of Making His Third Party Movement Entirely Republican: Therefore He Will Only Half Succeed"

"Many Democratic Progressives Are Supporting Wilson, as I Am, Because in Office They Believe He Will Be Compelled to Become Far More Progressive Than He Now Promises to Be"

Special Cable to the Sunday American.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Evening Standard publishes the following:

Mr. William Randolph Hearst, the well-known American newspaper proprietor and politician, in a special interview given to one of our representatives today, made a critical analysis of the unprecedented political situation in the United States, and, in discussing the chances of the candidates in the race for the Presidency, showed how Dr. Woodrow Wilson would, in all likelihood, be Mr. Taft's successor.

In doing so, Mr. Hearst expressed the opinion that the new party movement would not be successful until the progressive wings of both the Democratic and Republican parties combined and formed an independent party of consolidated progressives. This united progressive party, Mr. Hearst believes, would succeed and would exercise a potent influence on the future of American politics. Mr. Hearst said:

It seems to me that the report cabled from New York that, in view of the result of the Vermont State elections, Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt may retire from the Presidential contest in favor of a man agreeable to both factions, is an entirely irresponsible suggestion.

EXPECTS BOTH TO STAY IN RACE.

If it means anything definite, it probably means that a good many important Republicans would like to see both Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt retire in favor of some third person, but I do not think there is the slightest possibility of such a thing happening.

The independent movement in the United States is a real and powerful force. It began with the Independence League in New York and adjacent States; in New England, Vermont being a New England State; in the Middle West, with Chicago as a nucleus, and in the far West, particularly in the State of California. It attained great strength in those States and sections in which I had newspapers and was able to give ample publicity to the propaganda of the third party movement. As a result of this education and agitation and development, the third party's strength has increased immensely in the last four years.

Four years ago the Independence League had a candidate for President, and, though it actually carried no single State, it exhibited great strength and vitality in many sections of the country. Today, the principles of this third party movement are more widely known and more generally endorsed than four years ago. The organization of the movement is much better and the enthusiasm of the supporters of the movement is as great as ever.

"TOOK INDEPENDENCE PRINCIPLES."

Mr. Roosevelt undoubtedly realized the extent and importance of this third party sentiment, and when he was defeated for the Republican nomination at Chicago he at once offered himself as the leader of this third-party movement. He was gladly accepted as the leader on account of his vigorous personality and because of the strength of his following in the radical wing of the Republican party; also, because the importance of the third-party movement would be greatly increased under the leadership of a man who had twice been President of the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt adopted in their entirety the principles which the third party advanced, substracting little or nothing from the national platform of the Independence party adopted at Chicago in 1908.

The advocates of this third-party movement are enthusiasts. They believe absolutely in the necessity of a third party to free the country from the corrupt control of both of the old parties. They believe that both of the old parties are in the grip of the privileged interests and that the stranglehold of these special interests cannot be broken. They also believe that there is no desire on the part of the leaders of the old parties to terminate this association with the privileged interests, as it is a profitable association and enables them to secure large campaign contributions, as has been shown in the Standard Oil letters, and so to finance and operate their machines and party organizations.

The third party supporters believe ardently in their program, the main purpose of which is to take the control of government out of the hands of party machines and privileged interests and restore it to the hands of the people. Nearly all the measures of the third party platform are aimed directly at that, and you will see, therefore, how impossible it is for that third party to unite the Republican party, for the platform of the National Republican party is conservative in the extreme, and the Republican party is considered as the chief reactionary party of the United States.

NEITHER ONE WOULD BACK DOWN.

Then again, the proposal of Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt both retiring was brought up at the Republican convention in Chicago. Neither one was willing to retire. I cannot believe that either one is willing to retire now, or that a fusion between these two diametrically conflicting factions can be satisfactorily accomplished, even if both candidates should retire. Of course, if the division in the Republican party continues, the probabilites are that Mr. Wilson will be elected, or, that, felling an actual majority, the election will be thrown into the House of Representatives.

Explains Ex-President Should Have Named a Democrat to Run With Him.

The Vermont elections show no defection from the Democratic party. This is significant.

The progressive sentiment in the United States is tremendous. The men who class themselves as progressives, no matter to what party they belong, constitute a considerable majority of the voters of the United States. There are, probably, more progressive Democrats than there are progressive Republicans, and, finally, the Democratic platform was so vague and indefinite as to fall far short of expressing the sentiments of the progressive Democrats.

To a Democratic platform of milk and water, Mr. Wilson, in his letter of acceptance, merely added more water, bubbling water, sparkling with euphonious phrases, agreeably charged with gas, but, nevertheless, water. The situation in the Democratic party must be a disappointment to militant progressives. Why, then, is there not a notable defection from the Democratic party to the new third party? Because Mr. Roosevelt committed the distinct error of making this third party movement almost entirely Republican, recruiting it almost entirely from the progressive wing of the Republican party, and officering it with Republican officeholders.

Where Roosevelt Made Mistake.

Mr. Roosevelt, being a Republican, should have chosen a Democrat, and, preferably, a Southern Democrat, for Vice-President, and if Roosevelt had been as anxious to unite the progressives as he was to disrupt the Republicans he would have had a Democrat on the ticket. But Mr. Roosevelt, the candidate for President, is a Republican: Mr. Johnson, the candidate for Vice-President, is a Republican; nearly all the leaders and speakers for the third party in this campaign are Republicans, therefore I believe the third party movement will only half succeed in this campaign. This agitation will go far, however, to establish a third party, and the carrying of certain States by the third party will give added hope and confidence to the supporters of the Progressive movement.

In my opinion, the third party movement will not be successful until the progressives of the Republican party and the progressives of the Democratic party are united in one third party.

The Democrats who know Mr. Roosevelt and understand his personal ambitions and rather selfish intentions, believe that Mr. Roosevelt's main object at present is to break up the Republican organization, so that he can gain control of it and dominate the Republican party and be its candidate for President in 1916.

Therefore, many ardent progressive Democrats are supporting Mr. Wilson just as I am, not because they believe in the feeble professions of the Democratic platform, nor because they acquiesce in Mr. Wilson's indirect declarations, but because they believe that Mr. Wilson, once in office, and driven by the powerful, progressive sentiment in the Democratic party, will be compelled to become far more progressive than he now promises to be, and also because they believe that Mr. Roosevelt's leadership is depriving the third party of its non-partisan character.

Democratic progressives, then, have very plainly failed to support the third party's movement this year, and they failed to support it because they believe that Mr. Roosevelt is making it merely a medium for the control of the machinery of one of the old parties, and because they think that Mr. Roosevelt's leadership, as a whole, has been and is more partisan than progressive, and more selfish than sincere.

COURTESY CAUSES CRASH.

Motorman Trying to Overtake Car Ahead, Hits It.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 7.—In an effort to oblige a passenger, who wished to catch a Rye Beach car which was ahead, John Reddingsdale, motorman of a "Loop" car, drove his own car too fast and crashed into the rear of the beach car this afternoon on Middle street.

The front of the "Loop" car was crushed in and Reddingsdale's legs were injured. Three score of beach passengers on the car ahead were severely shaken up. The passenger whose request caused the trouble boarded the "Loop" car by mistake. Reddingsdale's car is No. 23.

"L" STRIKE BREAKERS NOW HOTEL WAITERS

among the thirty-two guests as best he could.

The guests surveyed all this action with extreme interest.

Down stairs the German room and coffee room waiters stayed on duty except four.

But from the kitchen department came thirty-six cooks and kitchen help, including twelve women.

These made a total of seventy-three who answered the call of the strike whistle.

Meanwhile the management's machinery to replace the strikers with strike-breakers had been set in motion the moment the thirty-three waiters left the main dining room.

The two detectives, who had been stationed in the passageway to the dining room, left the hotel quickly. They sprang into a taxicab which was held for their use. They were driven to the Parker House.

At exactly 7:12 the detectives were back at the Touraine with the first batch of fourteen strike-breakers. The latter were escorted through the main entrance on Boylston street. They walked in single file across the lobby and straight into the dining room. The pie of fourteen was led by one detective, with the second bringing up the rear.

They made an odd processional across the lobby. Guests not aware of the nature of it, must have thought they represented some club or lodge of trumps.

Having delivered their consignment of strike-breakers, the detectives retired six minutes later, at 7:18, a third detective arrived with a second batch of six more strike-breakers, making a total of fourteen strike-breakers to replace thirty-three striking waiters.

As the strike-breakers clustered in the main dining room, an AMERICAN reporter asked and received consent of President Pierce to talk with them. The reporter approached the nearest group of strike-breakers and asked:

Breakers Just "Laffed."

"Did you know of the strike when you left New York?"

"Sure, we knew of it," replied one, "that's our business."

"Say," broke in another, "you're a reporter, aren't you? Well, you can just tell the people that we are glad to get back to Boston."

"Back to Boston—how's that?"

"Why, we've been here three times before," was the surprising reply. "We were here on the Fraternity strike, on the longshoremen's strike and on the street car strike and now we're back here on the waiters' strike—"

"Say, what's the strike about here, anyhow?" broke in another.

"One of the principal grievances the men claim," said the reporter, "is that porters have to give up their tips to the head porter and waiters say they have to turn in part of their tips to the head waiter."

From the entire group of strike-breakers rose a loud laugh—but the decorous "lawfter" usually heard in the dining room of an expensive hotel—but a hearty ha-ha-ha-haw. The strike-breakers simply "laffed" as it were.

"Say, we don't give up anything," declared one. His companions grinned full approval.

"All I gave up in the trolley strike" said one, "was a fat bunch of transfers I handed out every night."

Another of the strike breakers resumed:

"We are brought here by the detective agency of Waddell & Mahan of New York. Seventy of us came on from New York today. They took us to the Parker House, where we have been kept ready all day for just this.

"We haven't a thing against the Boston waiters but we're paid to do this. We get $3 a day, all our expenses and are to keep all our tips." And we had a good time in Boston before and we were glad to come back here.

"There are 500 more of us in New York, all ready to be brought on if necessary."

The twenty strike-breakers set about their duties, but they were not used any more than necessary. A few more guests came in. By 8 o'clock the number of guests was swelled to forty. At that time, too, the strike-breakers were taken downstairs for their own dinner, and the seven loyal waiters served the forty patrons with what expedition they could.

Meanwhile the seventy-three strikers, who left the hotel on the whistle, had marched quietly over to union headquarters, at No. 724 Washington street. Sergeant Dunlap and a detail of twenty patrolmen from Lagrange street station were posted around the hotel. The police shut off Tamworth street from foot travel. This narrow thoroughfare, which leads to the employes' entrance, is a private way, according to the police.

Edward Blechlinger, organizer, for the union, declared later in the evening that there were 125 in all who were on strike from the Touraine.

He claimed between 200 and 300 out at the Parker House, though the management puts the number at 125.

Harry Cashion, organizer for Cooks' Union No. 8, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, said that if there is any hotel strike unsettled by next Sunday he will ask the Boston Central Labor Union to call out the hotel firemen and engineers. He also said that the Hotel Vendome will be "struck" today if demands are not granted.

May Strike at Vendome.

The demands to be presented to the Vendome are as follows for the different classes of service:

Porters—$30 a month, ten-hour day, better food, thirty minutes for meals, two days off a month.

Cooks—Ten-hour day, six-day week.

Kitchen Girls—$5 a month more, no scrubbing, clean-heated rooms, one day off weekly.

Chambermaids—$5 a month more, one day off weekly, no parlor work, thirty minutes for meals.

Storeroom Girls — Thirty-hour week, one day off weekly, $5 more a month.

Bellboys—Ten-hour day, no fines, keep tips, two days off a month and $5 a month more.

The strikers meet at Encampment Hall at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

A strike was threatened at the Adams House at the height of the dinner hour. It was reported that disaffected waiters urged a general walkout, but were overruled. One of the kitchen attaches said: "Two or three waiters wanted to strike in sympathy with the other hotel strikers, though Manager Hall granted every demand last Wednesday."

Whistles in Vain.

At Young's Hotel, where Harry Casalou, one of the assistant organizers, blew a whistle four times in five minutes, Mr. Blechlinger said forty-two came out from the dining room and kitchen departments. But he added that this number included the eleven porters already out, so that made thirty-two for Young's, according to Blechlinger.

At 8:40 Harry Cashion entered the crowded lobby at Young's, pulled a whistle from his pocket and blew one shrill blast. The guests were startled but no results were produced among the employes, so far as could be seen.

Cashion stuck the whistle back in his pocket in an unconcerned sort of way, walked out and climbed on the ledge of a window on the Court street side of the main dining room. There he sent in a whistle blast through an open window that surprised the nearby diner. Then the active Casalou came around into the lobby again, walked to the entrance of the main dining room and delivered a third blast. Finally, to complete the job to his satisfaction, he stuck his head in the entrance of the men's cafe and for the fourth time blew on his whistle.

Cashion said that three waiters came out. Later Blechlinger said that thirty-two came out from all departments.

WHIPPLE OFFER OF AGREEMENT TURNED DOWN BY WAITERS

The following form of agreement was given to the waiters of the Whipple hotels to sign last night, but they refused:

This agreement is made between the J. R. Whipple Company, operating the Hotel Touraine at Boston, here and after called a company and ——, waiter, here and after called the employe, on consideration of the mutual agreement herein contained.

1—The company will employ as a waiter from this date and will pay him wages at the rate of $30 per month.

2—The employe agrees faithfully to perform all services and duties incident to such employment and to conform to the posted rules of the hotel, the employe to be entitled to two days off each month, the hours of labor to be as agreed upon by the management of the hotel and a committee of employes, and in case of dispute to be submitted to arbitration.

3—The company will not discharge, and the employe will not leave the employ of the company except upon ten days' notice to the other in writing. Either party, however, may at any time terminate all obligations under it by such notice to the other. If the employe leaves without such notice the company may retain all wages otherwise due him as liquidated damages.

BACK FROM TEXAS SEEKING DIVORCE

give little of the first marriage or divorce of either. It is known that Florence Harding married a man named Emmons and secured a divorce from him in October, 1907.

Previous to her divorce she had met William Harrison Furlong, Jr. It was in Norcross, Me., that they met. He was there fishing. So was she. Each was an enthusiastic hunter and angler. She was only twenty-six years old, tall, supple and athletic—a veritable Diana of the woods and streams.

"Billy" Furlong was a six-footer, horseman, rancher and athlete. In his college days at University of Michigan and at Harvard he figured in many a meet.

Furlong Divorced in Texas.

Furlong thought Mrs. Emmons a charming woman. As he said two years later, when talking about his marriage: "I liked you the moment I saw you."

Furlong had been married and divorced in Texas. His divorce was granted four years before he met Mrs. Emmons. At the time of his marriage and divorce he was known by his baptismal name of Paul Hitson Furlong. After his marital experiences in Texas he returned to Boston and secured legislative permission to change his name to that of his father, William Harrison Furlong.

A year later, in October, 1907, Mrs. Emmons secured her divorce. It was not long ere she thought that real love had come to her in the gallant figure of Colonel "Billy" Furlong. Their tastes were most congenial.

He was—and is now—a dashing type of man. He was in the Texas Rangers—Captain of D Company of Laredo, he was then—he had shot and fished and rode and shot. He had the college finish and the charm of adventure and he was desperately attentive to pretty Mrs. Emmons.

He had given up his Texas affairs and was in business as a commission merchant at No. 40 Summer street. He lived in Winthrop, but he was a caller very often at "Rockrimmon."

NEW BILL TO STOP SHOE SUIT SECRECY

Norris Fights to Prevent Trust Action Being Heard Behind Closed Doors.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Congressman George W. Norris of Nebraska has begun a fight against the Federal Court in Boston, and Judge Putnam in particular, to prevent the government's suit against the United Shoe Machinery Company from being heard behind closed doors.

Congressman Norris has found a law which he believes would permit the removal of the trial of the case from Judge Putnam's jurisdiction to that of another judge. The Congressman will introduce a bill in the next Congress, he says, that will prevent such secret hearings in the future, if it becomes a law.

"Under the new code, passed by the last session of Congress," said Congressman Norris, "an affidavit may be filed to remove a case from a prejudiced judge, and I think this statute might be properly invoked by the Department of Justice in the pending civil suit against the Shoe Machinery Trust.

"There is no statutory inhibition against a secret hearing before a commissioner, such as has been appointed in this case, but such secrecy is abhorrent. If the allegations made by the government are true this trust is not only operating in violation of law but it is about the worst trust in existence. That there should be secrecy about the hearing of such a case and particularly at a time when the judiciary is under fire is amazing."

During this period any new Fall Suit, Gown, Coat, Skirt or Waist you purchase of us will be altered without any extra charge, or we will make to your special measurements any new Fall garment you buy of us without any charge for special measurements or for alterations

Free alterations and free special measurements are given during THESE SIX DAYS ONLY for the reason that we wish to induce early business, thereby keeping our very large force of selling and alteration help busy right from the beginning of an early season.

You will be sure to appreciate this genuine opportunity to save money on the purchase of your Fall outer garments. You will also find here a stock that is equal or better in every way than that of any other Boston establishment. The prices are as low as first-class garments can possibly be sold for.

Please Note: That the above offer is positively for six days only

In addition to this very special and bona-fide offer, you have the same broad and liberal guarantee to correct style, perfect fit, lasting wearing quality and right prices.

You have also the added advantages of dealing with SPECIALISTS, of expert service from courteous and intelligent clerks, and if necessity requires it, direct business transactions with the proprietors.

On the morning of Wednesday, Sept. 11th, at Washington & Winter Streets the doors of

Butler's Apparel Shops

Will be opened to the people of New England

IT will be a distinctive store in a broad sense of the word. A different—unusual kind of store, and we say this fully appreciating what has been done in a merchandising way by the more progressive stores throughout the country and abroad.

Combined under the one roof are thirteen complete Apparel Shops and a Daily Mark-Down Bargain Basement. Each shop a model of its kind, providing the best that the world's best manufacturers can offer in quality and style, for Women, Misses, Children and Infants.

The Shops

The Costume Shop	The Children's Shop	The Blouse Shop
The Dress Shop	The Young Ladies' Shop	The Underwear Shop
The Coat and Suit Shop	The Shoe Shop	The Glove Shop
The Outing Apparel Shop	The Millinery Shop	The Neckwear Shop
The Men's Shop	The Daily Mark-Down Basement

The Policy

The highest standards of merchandising have been applied in the selection of every line of goods admitted to these model stocks, and we have taken good care that nothing unworthy should creep in. At the same time we would strongly emphasize the fact that while superior quality and style will be the keynote of the new store, we must and will continue to live up to our reputation for economy-in-pricing won in the old.

Three Times the Space

Here we will have three times the equipment, three times the range of merchandise, and we propose to merit at least three times the patronage we enjoyed in the old store.

To deserve your patronage we must BETTER serve your needs—no matter what they may be—perhaps as little a thing as a handkerchief or as important an item as an evening gown from the atelier of one of Paris' great designers. The difference will be apparent in the merchandise.

From Paris

Our European buyers have returned from abroad and with them have come Fashion's latest conceits in hats, gowns, dresses and novelties. These you will be able to buy for actually less than you would be required to pay in Paris, for the reason that we regard original models as part of our Fashion Service and ask little more for them than we do for our clever American copies and adaptations equally beautiful.

Values

We are going to give unusual values in every shop commencing the opening day. Just what these are will be part of the surprise in store for you, and the beauty of it all is, that while the values will be decidedly unusual as compared with those found elsewhere, they will not be unusual for BUTLER'S APPAREL SHOPS. We can assure you of this now because our plans have worked out just as we made them, and we know what is coming. These are secrets that will unfold themselves from day to day, and week to week, beginning next Wednesday.

Butler's Daily Mark-Down Basement

is the latest and best plan yet devised to insure a generous daily budget of real bargains on strictly dependable merchandise. In the first place, no merchandise will be admitted to the basement that is not at least 25% below regular market price. Much of it will be as low as 50% under price the day it is put on sale.

All goods must be seasonable and of good quality—no shoddy or unreliable goods will be admitted at any price.

The "Daily Mark-Down" Feature

Every selling day mark-downs will be taken—not little degenerating mark-downs, if you please, but sharp, sensational reductions.

There will be no advance list of these mark-downs published in the newspapers—price tickets will be marked down during the night without the knowledge of even the salespeople.

You are cordially invited to visit this new store.

Butler's Apparel Shops

Washington and Winter Sts.

In the Costume Shop

What rivalry of beauty! In looking over these Paris creations one can mentally picture the intense competition of the artistic geniuses who produced them and easily imagine how each designer confidently believed his pet production to be the peer of them all.

And little wonder, for each successive model that meets your eye seems fairly to demand le grand Prix. "Gorgeous—Exquisite" are the two words that first flash through the mind—and they are none too eloquent.

Added to these original creations are many exceedingly clever American modifications showing the Directoire and Panier influence from which the great Paris Couturiers have drawn their inspiration.

In the Dress Shop

Fashion experts have designed, style critics have accepted and merchandise experts have bought every dress that will be offered for your approval in the Dress Shop next Wednesday. The fashion lines, laid down by those authorities to whom the fashionable world turns at the approach of each new season, have been followed closely in the essentials, but developed and enriched in a manner to lend a distinctiveness and originality charming to behold. Here may be found dresses and frocks for every occasion, also dainty negligees, winter lounging robes, bath robes, corsets, kimonos, aprons and the like. The tout ensemble expressing an atmosphere of quality refreshing in the extreme.

In the Coat and Suit Shop

Everywhere among this magnificent collection of fall styles you will see the unmistakable evidence of Parisian inspiration. This season's styles, you know, are largely modifications of apparel worn by gentlemen of the Directorate period, and very smart and becoming are they, so cunningly developed in the stunning new weaves of the season.

In examining the extensive offerings of this shop, we ask you to kindly note the unusual excellence of the qualities and tailoring at the various prices quoted. In other words, "Look for the difference in the merchandise."

In the Millinery Shop

Would that we had the gift of expression adequately to word-paint the showing for this new store. One cannot word-picture a masterpiece in oils, for instance, by describing the location of the various parts of the subject and the colors used. Even so, we are at a loss to describe these fascinating creations from the world's greatest milliners.

"Butler's Millinery"—Need another word be said in order that all women might know what to expect in originality, individuality and charm?

At every price—from the lowest up—we are prepared to show you better values—in truly fashionable hats, trimmed and untrimmed—than we have seen elsewhere—and we have made a careful canvass of all worthy showings.

We would like to know what you think of it all.

In the Underwear Shop

An extra thread woven into the toe, heel and garter top of a pair of hose doesn't add much to the cost to us, but it makes a very great difference in the length of wear to you. So we put in the extra thread without extra cost and a guarantee to go with it. This merely illustrates the Underwear Shop Idea—to add something in quality, in style or in finish to each line of underwear, that will make it superior to goods sold at the same price elsewhere.

And nothing short of absolute completeness in every needed article from hosiery to the most exquisite French hand-made lingerie.

In the Young Ladies' Shop

Girls in their teens who are growing so fast that mothers find difficulty in keeping pace with their clothing needs; girls who require special measurements in any way, and young ladies a bit older, who are very particular about having the latest style novelties in this or that—will be delighted with the "Young Ladies' Shop."

There will be youthful styles in Suits, Coats and Skirts, as well as extremely modish party and dancing frocks and jaunty tailored dresses for everyday wear.

Then, too, there will be Underwear, in the daintiest of fabrics and designs, designed for growing girls, with under sizes and out sizes, to accommodate small waists, extra broad shoulders and the like.

In the Men's Shop

We will make up in quality, snappiness of style and convenience what we lack in volume through limited space. The shop is located right on the street. You won't have to look around for it—one step inside the Winter Street entrance and you can take in everything at a glance. It won't take you a minute to decide that you like this odd little shop.

Butler's Apparel Shops

Washington and Winter Sts.

In the Outing Apparel Shop

An Aeroplane or "Pantaloon" Skirt for women aviators—this one item expresses the keynote of this shop. It will be a precedent-making shop—a place where you will find outing apparel specialties hardly to be found elsewhere, outside of the Paris, London and Berlin specialty shops.

Apparel for Golf, Polo, Horseback, Motoring, Skating, Tramping, Camping, Hunting and other outdoor sports will be maintained in the way of Novelty Skirts, Suits, Sweaters, Blouses, Bloomers, Caps and Hats, Gymnasium Suits, etc.

Full lines of Automobile, Mackinaw, Balmacaan and Storm Coats are also at your service, together with general outing accessories, such as Steamer Rugs, Sleeping Bags, Moccasins, etc., etc.

Furs—Fashionable Furs of every wanted kind and style will be carried in a most comprehensive variety at prices to meet every requirement.

In the Blouse Shop

Filmy materials in exquisite evening shades, beautifully elaborated with hand embroidery; all lace models; blouses with unique embellishment of beadwork, braiding and odd buttons; frilly lingerie blouses and exclusive foreign importations—what a myriad of styles between the clean cut tailor-made and the wonderful productions of the nimble-fingered French artistes. The most critical patron could find no cause to demur on the question of variety.

In the Glove Shop

All the skill and all the knowledge of European glove manufacturers have been drawn upon to contribute to the sum total of excellence represented in the style and quality of our gloves. The London markets have supplied us with popular English makes, always so reliable and satisfactory. The French manufacturers have given us the soft, pliable kid skins and suedes. From the German makers have come the popular suede fabrics. From our own United States come cape and mocha gloves, also the standard staple silk and other fabric gloves in full variety of color and style. All of these—every glove we sell—we guarantee absolutely. In order to meet every glove need satisfactorily in durability, quality, fit and price, we want your criticism, and we invite it.

In the Children's Shop

No mother could have assembled more complete outfits in little children's clothing than are to be found in this fascinating apparel shop for the youngsters. Infinite thought and attention have been given to the provision of all the tiny wearables for the new-born babe, as well as full lines of pretty, practical and economical clothes and hats for little girls and boys. Dainty, lacey, fleecy things of every kind and description for the infant: smart, sturdy, sensible togs for the active girls and boys up to twelve years of age.

No matter what the season of the year, full lines of heavy and light weight apparel will be in stock, thus affording patrons a convenient service always.

In the Neckwear Shop

Frills and furbelows—more favored this season than ever. And is there a feminine heart that will regret the fact?

This shop will have the novelties—those charmingly dainty bits of neckwear you have recently noted in the French and American fashion magazines—and many that you will see for the first time in Boston—the new Robespierre and Polonaise Collars, Marie Antoinette Ruchings and Ruffs and other neck-fixings contemporary with the Directoire period.

Handkerchiefs will also be found in the Neckwear Shop. The extent of the variety shown will doubtless surprise you. Instead of treating this department in the "don't-care-if-we-haven't-got-everything" manner, unfortunately familiar to many, we have made this a very important section of our store. Completeness of quality and style range is a policy that will be rigidly adhered to. You will find what you want at, or less than, the price you desired to pay.

In the Shoe Shop

There are three essentials that every pair of shoes must possess before they can qualify as part of this store.

These are "quality, fit, style."

"Quality" we insure by knowing exactly the quality of the materials that go into, and how those materials are put into, every pair of shoes we buy.

"Fit" we insure by buying only those makes made on the latest anatomic lasts.

"Style" we apply in the broad sense of the word. While a dressy shoe must show one kind of "style," the broad, sensible walking boot will show another, yet both will be equally good style.

100,000 CHILDREN WILL ENTER SCHOOL WEDNESDAY; DOCTORS WILL EXAMINE ALL PUPILS

The Boston public schools open Wednesday. More than 100,000 children will be enrolled in buildings capable of accommodating 10,000 in excess of the number of pupils in the Boston district.

An innovation this year will be the examination of every child upon entering school, for the detection and suppression of communicable diseases. This will require the services of eighty-two doctors, two of them women physicians, and thirty-five nurses.

Superintendent Frederick B. Dyer came over from Cincinnati just in time for the biggest event of the school year. He has his hands full, but is mastering details in his new field with commendable skill.

Mayor Fitzgerald says the big problem is getting the boy steered right after he is graduated from the elementary schools.

"We don't want our boys to grow up in to living question marks," adds the Mayor. "We don't want to find them walking the streets asking themselves what they are good for, while outsiders pop in and snatch all of the plums and prizes.

"The one point above all others which I hope Dr. Dyer will impress upon the parents and teachers alike is the crucial importance of a right decision at the time the point in a child's education, which is the period after graduation from the elementary schools.

"Two many boys drop out of school as soon as the age limit is reached or some tempting job is dangled before them. Places secured at this age are often ill-adapted to the boy's needs. In many cases they are mere blind alleys which lead nowhere and promise nothing in the way of future development.

"I find in the records of the school committee that 50 per cent. of the boys who graduate from elementary school, fail to enter high school and of this 50 per cent., at the end of the fourth year there are only 42 per cent. remaining in the high schools. In other words only one boy in five remains to take the full high school course."

Dr. Laura A. G. Hughes, one of the physicians of the Boston School Board, urges cleanliness for all school children—cleanliness in dress and body. And every school child ought to have at least ten hours sleep and should never be sent to school without food, she says.

"School children who are careful about their clothing and sleep will be careful about their studies," adds Dr. Hughes. "Holes in the shoes and stockings will lead to other forms of neglect. Parents should not push children; they should lead them.

"Every pupil should be bathed at least once a week and as much oftener as possible. Cleanliness of body is a disease preventative. Clothing should be worn next to the skin as where it is shown. Mothers with many children and cares should be helped by older school children in getting the younger ones ready for school and in other household duties.

"Parents should not be too lenient with children. They should be able to control in a kindly way. Getting sane and daughters into the habit of caring for their bodies and their clothing is half the battle.

"It is all right for mothers to want to do all they can for children, but they should not forget to teach the children to do for themselves."

Advice to School Children.

Keep your clothing and bodies clean.

Dress neatly and simply.

Don't let what you wear distract you from your studies.

Learn to help yourself and your mother.

Advice to Parents.

See that your children have at least ten hours' sleep nightly.

See that children bathe at least once a week and as much oftener as possible.

See that their clothing is as neat next the skin as where it shows.

Don't push children; lead by kindness.

Never send them to school without eating.

Teach them to help themselves.

GIRL TAKES PLACE OF INJURED PITCHER

Wins Game for Ipswich Golden Rods and Makes Double Play Unassisted.

IPSWICH, Sept. 7.—It was the sixth inning and the score was 2 to 2. Things looked dark for the Golden Rods, for the team opposing them on the Newmarch street grounds was playing some baseball. The Gleason, the pitcher, was put out of the game by an injury to his eye. Golden Rod fans signed in despair. It was all over.

But who is this approaching? What dear that young person in bloomer-like short skirts and a visored cap yanked over her eyes mean by usurping the deserted box? Now she has thrown the ball, and it went just where she meant it to. "Strike one—two—three," and he's out.

Sit up, ladies and gentlemen, and meet Miss Cecil Mason, seventeen years old, the last five feet two inches of ball player Ipswich ever saw.

Miss Mason won the game for the Golden Rods, 5 to 2. She started at third base and made some plays there that got everybody up. Once she caught a fast liner at third and accomplished one of the neatest double-plays you ever saw mustasted. At the bat she delivered the goods, too. In it was when she began to pitch that she showed her greatest skill.

Miss Mason, known by her friends as "Blossom," is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irl Mason of Beachmont. She is in the class of 1915 at the Beachmont High School, and it need not be said she shines in all branches of athletics. Miss Mason's captain of the basketball team and a member of the hockey team.

In a athletic meet at Beachmont a year ago she won two silver cups in the swimming contest and 100-yard dash.

MISS CECIL MASON, BEACHMONT GIRL WHO PITCHED BALL GAME

MASON A. HAWS DIES.

Oldest Resident of Leominster, Wisely Known as Financier.

LEOMINSTER, Sept. 7. — Mason A. Haws, prominent business man and the oldest soldier of the town, died at his home a Main street this afternoon.

Mr. Haws was ninety-five years old and was we known throughout the State in business circles. He was a director of the Holliston National Bank of Fitchburg; trustee of the Worcester North Savings Institue of Fitchburg, and director and large scholder of the Fitchburg and Leomtiser Street Railway Company.

JAMES J. PHELAN TO WED MISS M'GAFFEE

Member of Hornblower & Weeks Figures in Palm Beach Romance.

Social and financial circles were pleasantly thrilled yesterday when it became known that James J. Phelan, of the banking and brokerage firm of Hornblower & Weeks, was engaged to be married to Miss Mabel McGaffee, the charming daughter of William J. McGaffee, vice president of the Thomas G. Plant Shoe Company of Jamaica Plain.

Under the sunny skies at Palm Beach it is believed, Cupid shot the dart that pierced the two hearts. That was last year, when Miss McGaffee and Mr. Phelan were there with a large party from this city. In the party were Mayor and Mrs. Fitzgerald. It was then noticed that Mr. Phelan paid a great deal of attention to Miss McGaffee.

Since that time the young banke has found it convenient to call frequeny at the handsome home of Mr. McGaffe on South Huntington avenue, Jamaica Plain. The announcement of the engagene has been expected for som time.

The date of the marriage has no been set, but it is expected that the ever will take place next Spring. Both Mr. McGaffee and Mr. Phelan were congratulated by many friends yesterday.

Miss McGaffe is a handsome young woman, highly accomplished. Sh is a great favorite in social circles. J. Phelan's career in the brilliant of fame has been such as to elicit much attenta. He came to Boston as a boy and obtaed employment with Hornblower & Weeks, working his way steadily upwa. He joined the Stock Exchange in 97 and three years later became a membr of the banking firm.

Mr. Phelan is president of the onnecticut Valley Lumber Company.

His name has been mentioned fqeatly with the mayoralty of Boston, at ate business interests have not permed him to take much active interests in pitics.

Fear Aviator's Back Is Baken.

NORWICH, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Aviator Chambers, who has twice flown across the English Channel and once nearly lost his life in an effort to fly over the Alps, fell 175 feet while giving an exhibtion. He was badly crushed and it is believed his back is broken.

Woman Is Attacked by a Crazy Pet Cat

Mrs. Joshua P. Small of Washington Chambers, Winthrop, was severely scratched and bitten by her pet cat yesterday afternoon.

The cat, which had been playing on the veranda, suddenly went mad and leaped at Mrs. Small, who was in a rocker. Before she could drive it off it had clawed and bitten both of her legs.

She telephoned for the police. Patrolman Turner came past hands with a loaded revolver of heavy calibre. He pursued the cat into the cellar, and it took three well directed bullets to destroy it.

Mrs. Small cannot explain the sudden turn in the disposition of the animal, with which she had always been most indulgent.

INDICT WALLACE FOR SLAYING HIS WIFE

John W. Wallace, who killed his wife, Margaret, with a bread knife in Charlestown on August 1., was indicted for murder in the second degree by the Suffolk County Grand Jury yesterday. Harry Irwin of South Boston and Joseph McMillan of the South End were indicted for assault and battery on Officer William J. Trainor, whose brother shot Miss Gertrude M. Jordan in a department store last week. And for robbery.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

Seven Thousand Men Building Smaller Six Cylinder Packard

The Packard motor carriage shops have been turned over to the new model—an unparalleled concentration of energy and resources to complete the production of Packard "38"

Perhaps you were among the hundreds who wanted a Packard "48" and spoke too late. The output of that model for summer and fall was practically sold out six weeks after the spring announcement.

Now you have an opportunity to reserve an early delivery date for the new "38," consort of the Dominant Packard Six.

In road efficiency, ease of riding and luxurious appointment, the smaller six typifies Packard quality.

Left drive and control; electric self starter. Starting, lighting, ignition and carburetor controls on steering column. Sixty horsepower shown by brake test.

7th Annu

In this editorial we are going to do SOME boasting, SOME praising and NO exaggerating.

This editorial is about the East Side of Washington Street.

The East Side of Washington Street, north of Essex Street, is the main traveled pathway of Boston. You know THAT to be a fact. The foresight of Henry Siegel in locating this, his fourth store, at Essex and Washington Streets, seven years ago, is reflected in the trend of travel along the East Side of Washington Street to and from this point. Furthermore, Essex Street is the nearest direct artery from the South Station to Washington Street; Boylston Street, terminating at Essex and Washington Streets, is the nearest direct route from Back Bay, Brookline and the Newtons—from the principal hotel and theatre districts.

Boston's largest and leading stores are located on the East Side of Washington Street.

In Greater Boston the Siegel store continues to lead in value-giving. The Siegel store occupies a position not occupied by any other store. It is one of the four great Siegel stores in Boston, New York (2 stores) and Chicago, about as large combined as all the department stores in Boston.

The buying organization of these four stores forms the Siegel United Purchasing Power in America, Europe and the Orient—the Power of four stores to buy and sell cheaper than any other retail organization. We make a simple request: That you ALWAYS visit our store when you are down town on a shopping tour, as we are glad to have you compare our prices and merchandise, our styles and qualities, with those of other good stores, whether or not you eventually make your purchases here.

We were the first department store to have a modern building in Boston. You know THAT to be a fact. Other stores have followed in our footsteps to the extent that Boston has witnessed during the past few years the greatest improvement in mercantile affairs in the world's history. You know THAT to be a fact. New

SAMPLE SUITS

For Women—Sizes 34, 36, 38 and 40 in Sample Suits, and up to 46 in Stock Suits.
For Misses—All sizes.

While on the lookout for Anniversary bargains in New York endeavoring to avoid the shoals of high prices our buyer ran into a smooth sailing sea of sample suits. The smooth sailing will continue Monday (and while the samples last) in our Suit Section, Second Floor.

All of these suits will be sold and sold quickly. Our Suit Department has not always enjoyed the popularity attained by it during the past year. But the tide of public favor has gradually swung around our way until today thousands of loyal friends are eagerly awaiting our Anniversary announcement. And many will be waiting at the doors for the store to open tomorrow morning, 8:30. THEY know when we say $50.00 Suits for $18.50 they will get real $50.00 suits at a bonafide saving of $31.50.

No suits reserved. None placed in regular stock to be sold for regular prices. All the $40, $45 and $50 suits will be in full view, same as the $30 and $35 values.

First customers will get the highest priced Suits—naturally. But there will be plenty of Suits at $18.50 all day Monday and none will be worth less than $30.00.

The Best of Everything in Tailored Suit Designing Is Here at $18.50

Every model is a different style. Only the best materials, linings and trimmings are used. Only the best, guaranteed workmanship and expert tailoring are represented.

The MATERIALS are fine novelty materials, fine corduroys, fine velvets, fine imported novelties, smart mixtures, diagonals, a few of the new two-toned materials, serges and broadcloths.

The STYLES include Robespierre effects, one of which is bound with braid and has satin vest and velvet collars.

The TRIMMINGS are heavy braid, hand embroidery, narrow braid trimmings, braid embroidery, fancy and tailored models portraying all the newest ideas.

The COLORS include every desirable shade, navies, blacks and the beautiful new Autumn shades.

building have been erected, old buildings have been remodelled; store service has been improved, salaries have advanced, delivery service has improved, competition is keener and the prices are lower. You know THAT to be a fact. We feel that we have been in a great measure the inspiration for these improvements for they have all taken place since the establishment of Henry Siegel Co. Innovations we adopted seven years ago are now being copied by others. You know THAT to be a fact.

We want you to have a correct understanding of this store. We want you to feel that it has done and is doing a public service. We want you to bear in mind that this store is looking out for YOUR interests. Possibly you will argue that we are in business to make money. And that is true. But we know of no better way of making money than to make our values so attractive that an ever-increasing number of people will patronize our store.

We welcome all the improvements in store-keeping methods of Boston. We welcome the new buildings, the new stores, the renewed activities all along the line. They will bring more people to Boston and increase prosperity. We congratulate our competitors on their ability to foresee the needs of this community and rise to the demands of the public. We wish each and everyone success commensurate with the efforts put forth and the money expended. We believe there is enough business in Boston for all and we want every store to have its share.

Tomorrow we inaugurate our 7th Anniversary Sale in all departments. It is not necessary for us to speak editorially of the values. They are strong enough to speak for themselves. Each Anniversary Sale Value is typical of the Siegel United Purchasing Power, and although we have four pages of advertising today, there is a vastly greater number of values unadvertised than advertised.

HAYES SAYS WALDO HAMPERED HIS WORK

Accuses Commissioner When Cross-Examined by Corporation Counsel Farley.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Cross-examined by Assistant Corporation Counsel Farley today at his trial on the charge of making false statements to a superior officer, former Inspector Cornelius C. Hayes accused Police Commissioner Waldo of having interfered with his work.

Hayes says that when he went to the fourth inspection district from the first he had made a reputation for stamping out vice. He decided to pursue the same tactics in the new district as in the old one.

These tactics were to raid disorderly houses after obtaining evidence against them.

"What happened while you were carrying out this policy?" he was asked.

"Orders from the Commissioner that I was not to make arrests as long as things were outwardly quiet came later," replied Hayes.

"What do you think is the best means of stamping out these disorderly houses?" queried Mr. Farley.

"Well, when I came to the Fourth District I thought the houses ought to be closed up," said Hayes. "Later, upon receiving orders not to close them, I changed my policy."

"If it was your belief that they ought to be closed," said Farley, "why did you not close them?"

"Because," answered Hayes, "I suppose that when a superior officer gives an order the superior officer knows what he is about and it was up to me to obey."

MARGARET KELLEY, WHO IS TO BE BRIDE OF MAJOR CALLAN

THE PRODIGAL IS BACK.

Harry Weiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Weiner of No. 271 Eastern avenue, Malden, returned home after the police of Boston and neighboring cities had hunted for him for five days. Despite his meagre dozen years, he managed to elude the officers of the law until he had visited all of the Boston and suburban moving picture houses and had spent all of the cash with which he departed.

UNCLE SAM'S HIGHEST PAID WOMAN TO WED

Miss Margaret V. Kelley Betrothed to Major Callan; Chief Clerk of Mint.

The highest paid woman in the United States service is engaged to be married. She is Miss Margaret Valentine Kelley, chief clerk of the director of the mint. She has several times been acting director of the mint.

Miss Kelley is engaged to Major Robert E. Callan of the Coast Artillery. The engagement was announced last night by her brother, John W. Kelley of Portsmouth, one of the best known attorneys in New Hampshire. Miss Kelley is summering just now at Wanalancet, N. H.

The salary paid Miss Kelley by the government is $3,000, and is the highest received by any woman in the pay of Uncle Sam.

She entered the government service several years ago, and her advance has been rapid because her ability has been recognized as extraordinary.

She first came into the public eye when during the illness of Chief Clerk Preston she became acting director of the Mint, and the country awoke to find a woman at the helm of this very important branch of the government.

Her parents were poor but respected Portsmouth people and when a young girl Miss Kelley sold flowers at the Isle of Shoals.

Major Callan is a brilliant officer and is expected to go far in the Army.

CAMPBELL IN CHARGE.

Foss Campaign Chairman Now Reigns at No. 15 Beacon St.

Charles F. Campbell of Worcester came down yesterday to tackle his new place as chairman of the Governor Foss Campaign Committee.

The Governor's political headquarters are at No. 15 Beacon street, Rooms 74, 75 and 76.

Chairman Campbell didn't care to talk much.

"We are going to work," he said, "and many prominent Democrats from out of the State have already called to express their loyalty to Governor Foss and pledge him their support."

2,000 VETERANS TO MEET.

Plans for Spanish War Men's Convention in Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 7.—At a reception to the Commander-in-chief and visiting indies by Effie M. Record, president-General of the auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans, tonight, the plans of the coming convention of that body, September 9-11, were formally announced. This program includes hotel arrangements for 2,000 expected delegates and provides a long list of interesting discussions and entertainments. The convention will be in the steel pier ballroom.

Among the speakers expected are Governor Wilson, Commander-in-Chief Maurice Simmons of New York and Mayor William Riddle of Atlantic City.

MORE TROOPS TO MEXICO.

United States to Be Prepared for Intervention.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Following the receipt of urgent appeals from Brigadier-General Steever at El Paso for more troops with which to guard the border, the War Department today decided to send the Thirteenth Cavalry to Ninth Cavalry from Forts D. A. Russell and Riley to the frontier immediately. More troops will be sent later. The United States will now make complete preparations to intervene in Mexico.

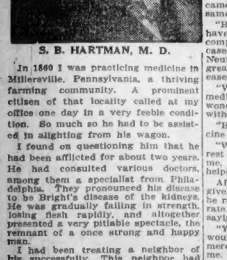
Serious Kidney Disease Treated By an Old-Fashioned Doctor



S. B. HARTMAN, M. D.

In 1860 I was practicing medicine in Millersville, Pennsylvania, a thriving farming community. A prominent citizen of that locality called at my office one day in a very feeble condition. So much so he had to be assisted in alighting from his wagon.

I found on questioning him that he had been afflicted for about two years. He had consulted various doctors, among them a specialist from Philadelphia. They pronounced his disease to be Bright's disease of the kidneys. He was gradually failing in strength, losing flesh rapidly, and altogether presented a very pitiable spectacle, the remnant of a once strong and happy man.

I had been treating a neighbor of his successfully. This neighbor had highly recommended me and thus it was he had come to me.

He told me that the doctors had practically given up his case as hopeless and he felt free to consult any other physician. I hesitated to take the case, as I felt sure I could not do anything more than the other physicians had done. I told him so, yet he insisted upon my prescribing. I was a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, and as one of the consulting physicians had been a professor in that college it seemed to me quite unlikely that I would be able to do any more than had been done, but I prescribed what seemed to be the best thing under the circumstances.

He went away and in a week he returned saying he was no better, that he was still losing ground. He judged that he had taken the same medicine before. No doubt he had. But he wished me to prescribe again. I did so.

This went on for about two months, the patient failing all the time, and I was becoming thoroughly discouraged with the case.

One day the patient said to me, "Doctor, why don't you give me the medicine you gave my neighbor? We all thought he would die, but your medicine cured him. This was why I came to you. Why not give me the same medicine you gave him?"

"But," I said, "your neighbor did not have kidney disease. It was a bowel complaint that I prescribed for in his case. I remember I gave him the Neutralizing Mixture that I make a great deal of use of in bowel diseases."

"Well, I want some of the same medicine you gave him. It worked wonders with him and I believe it will with me."

"But," I said, "this is not a medicine for kidney disease."

"Well, since you seem to be like the rest of the doctors, you cannot help me, why not try the medicine that helped my neighbor?"

After some hesitation I concluded to give him a bottle of it. In ten days he returned. He at once began to berate me in no complimentary words, saying:

"You knew very well this medicine would help me. You held it back merely to get more fees for treating me. From the first the medicine has helped me and I have made rapid improvement. If I could have had this medicine a year ago I should have been saved a great deal of expense and loss of time."

I replied that I was glad the medicine had helped him. I was somewhat confused by his brusque manner and rough speech. I gave him another bottle of medicine. Did not see him again for about three weeks. Once more he called at my office for another bottle of medicine, which was his last call. A month or so afterwards a neighbor of his called and got a bottle of the same medicine, saying that my patient was practically a well man, attending to his duties about his large farm.

I had given him the Neutralizing Mixture which was the remedy that I had used before only for bowel diseases. The same remedy that has since been sold under the name of Peruna. I could not quite understand how it was that Peruna should operate so beneficially in such seemingly different diseases. I had not yet grasped the correct philosophy of disease. I did not then clearly comprehend that catarrh may affect the kidneys as well as the bowels. Nothing of that sort was taught in the books of those days. It took me years before I clearly comprehended that catarrh was a disease liable to attack any organ of the body.

Catarrh is a disease of the mucous membranes. The mucous membranes line every organ, duct and cavity in the body. Thus it is catarrh may settle anywhere where there is a mucous membrane.

Peruna is my remedy for all these cases. I insist upon it, however, that Peruna is not a cure-all. I use it for just one disease, catarrh. But as catarrh is liable to affect so many different places, disturb so many different functions, derange so many different organs, it does seem to many people as if I regarded Peruna as a cure-all.

The above narrative is simply one of the many cases in my early practice that brought me to comprehend the wonderful efficacy of Peruna in such a variety of diseases. The kidneys may be affected by other diseases than catarrh, but the average case of kidney disease is catarrh of the kidneys. In cases of Bright's disease it begins with catarrh of the kidneys. This being true, and it also being true that Peruna is a catarrh remedy, it follows that a great many cases of kidney disease would be benefited by Peruna. Peruna is for sale at all drug stores.

SPECIAL NOTICE—Many persons are making inquiries for the old-time Peruna. To such would say, this formula is now put out under the name of KA-TAR-NO, manufactured by KA-TAR-NO Company, Columbus, Ohio. Write them and they will be pleased to send you a free booklet.

Our First Shot Creates Sensational Sales

A NEW STORE

Everybody's Store. A New Corporation—has bought the stocks, fixtures and leases of Butler's, at 90 Tremont St. Added to this splendid lot of merchandise are many new Fall lines, all secured at concessions in prices, to from a wide range of selections for the Opening Day, Monday, Sept. 9—at BUTLER'S OLD STORE.

FOR NEARLY HALF A CENTURY No. 90 Tremont Street has been a celebrated retail trading place. About forty years of that time it has been famous as a department store. Therefore, its LOCATION and past SUCCESSES are known throughout New England, and the way has been paved excellently for the NEW Corporation, the NEW name, the NEW policies, the NEW merchandise and the NEW trading advantages.

LIBERALITY EVERYBODY'S STORE will be known for its liberal policy toward patrons. It will give customers the most for their money. The general attitude will be that of "Value Generosity," coupled with "Service Satisfaction."

THE "SLOGAN" EVERYBODY'S STORE has for its slogan: "Lowest Prices in Boston." That means exactly what it says. Shoppers will be able to make a dollar go farther here than elsewhere.

MERCHANDISE EVERYBODY'S STORE will carry a stock of staple merchandise, usually found in a well-balanced department store. The assortment of goods will be varied, as well as seasonable and reasonable. Special attention will be devoted to complete lines in each section offering full ranges of prevailing colors and sizes.

"CASH ONLY" EVERYBODY'S STORE will be a strictly CASH concern. No extra expense in the bookkeeping department means lower prices on merchandise. The absence of "clerk hire," "account books," "collectors," "correspondence" and "losses" is significant.

PROFIT-SHARING EVERYBODY'S STORE will maintain a profit-sharing plan with the public by means of Legal Trading Stamps. It will redeem full books in cash ($2.00) or merchandise ($2.50 value) upon presentation of books any hour of any business day.

MILLINERY A FEATURE EVERYBODY'S STORE starts as the Millinery headquarters in Boston. It will carry a comprehensive assortment of hats (trimmed and untrimmed), wire shapes, velvets, ribbons, wings, plumes, ornaments, flowers, bows, etc. The Millinery Parlors on second floor will satisfy the most fastidious requirement, with imported or domestic models of acknowledged authenticity. A specialty in smartly trimmed Hats at $5.00 will be featured. When hats and materials are purchased here, there will be no charge for trimming.

ADVERTISING EVERYBODY'S STORE will use Sunday and daily papers to advertise its sales. Afternoon papers the day before sales will contain the announcements, while morning papers will publish the advertisements on the day of such events. (Remember this, and look for Wednesday's sales in Tuesday afternoon papers and Wednesday morning papers).

BARGAIN TABLES EVERYBODY'S STORE will offer daily exceptionally strong attractions on "Bargain Tables," located throughout the building, one on each floor. The goods will invariably show selling figures so low that advertising cost is prohibited. It will be a splendid demonstration of the general plan to combat the "high cost of living."

DELIVERY SERVICE EVERYBODY'S STORE will deliver purchases to any railroad station in New England, where the order involves goods aggregating $5.00 or more. Purchases amounting to $1.00 or over will be sent free of charge to points in Massachusetts.

A PLACE FOR VISITORS EVERYBODY'S STORE will be considered one of the "show places" of Boston. Visitors will be made to feel welcome at all times. Constantly changing displays of merchandise, featuring latest color effects, newest styles, special lines and sale events, will interest and delight all, so that the casual visitor will become a regular customer.

A cordial invitation is extended to you, your family, your friends—come Monday morning and be among the first to share in the wonderful values prepared.

CHAIRMAN HILLES SAYS TAFT WILL BE RE-ELECTED; "CONSERVATIVES" WANT HIM

President Taft, returning to his Summer home at Beverly from Washington and New London yesterday, conferred for four hours with political leaders from this State, Connecticut and Rhode Island. The reports regarding G. O. P. conditions in these three states were of such an optimistic nature as to cause Charles D. Hilles, chairman of the Republican National Committee, to predict the re-election of Taft.

"The conservative business men like Taft," said Hilles. "He has devoted himself to setting a great business house in order. He has turned a deficit of $58,000,000 in Roosevelt's last year into a surplus of $36,000,000 in the last year of the Taft administration."

The President reached Beverly on his yacht, the Mayflower, from New York. It was announced that during the Fall political conferences would be held on the yacht. The President entertained his visitors at luncheon at his home. Besides Chairman Hilles there were present: Treasurer Sheldon, of the National Committee; Charles F. Brooker, National Committeeman from Connecticut; J. H. Rossbeck, chairman of the State central committee; C. H. Clark, editor of The Hartford Courant; Charles E. Hatfield, chairman of the Massachusetts Republican Committee; Congressman Sheffield, of Rhode Island, and General Wilson, of the Rhode Island Republican committee.

President Seems Pleased.

President Taft appeared well pleased at the reports made to him and urged systematic organization work. Chairman Hatfield told the President that he would carry Massachusetts. The visitors left at 4:30 o'clock.

Following the conference Chairman Hilles made the following statement:

"I find that conservative business men look with favor on the candidacy of President Taft for re-election because they think he has been a conscientious and successful administrator of the finances of the government.

"Usually a public official who imposes a check on the increase of expenditures finds that he has performed a thankless task. It is not a sufficiently spectacular stunt to lay hold of the imagination.

"The situation in the Treasury with which President Taft was confronted was very different from that which confronted Mr. Roosevelt when he became President. Mr. Roosevelt, in 1902, assumed charge of a government whose ordinary disbursements for that fiscal year were $471,190,857. The receipts for that year were $91,000,000 in excess of the disbursements. The aggregation of public expenditure increased steadily for seven years under Mr. Roosevelt. During the last year of his administration the total of the current operating expenses approximated the stupendous figure of $662,324,444, and during that year there was a deficit of $58,000,000.

Compares Administrations.

"Thus, by ignoring opportunities for effecting economies and introducing efficiency, President Roosevelt had converted a surplus of $91,000,000 in 1902 to become a deficit of $58,000,000 in 1909; and during that period of seven years the ordinary expenses of government had increased $191,000,000, or 40 per cent. Hence the increase in the cost of conducting the ordinary governmental operations during the Roosevelt regime was almost 6 per cent annually; it was 5.4 per cent, during the preceding period of ten years; and approximately 3 per cent. per annum during the decade of '82-'92.

"Mr. Taft might have looked with complacence upon this phase of governmental operations and defended an annual increase in disbursements of 5 or 6 per cent. by pointing to the practice of the past twenty years, but he chose to dedicate himself to the task of settling a great business house in order, so that instead of increasing the burden of expenditure $35,000,000 a year during each of three years, President Taft's administration has reduced the ordinary disbursements from $662,000,000 per annum to $654,000000 per annum and the deficit of $58,000,000 for the last year of Mr. Roosevelt administration has been turned into a surplus of $36,000,000 in the last year of the Taft administration."

The President ordered General Wood to send additional troops to the Mexican border, took a short motor ride and greeted many Beverly friends.

CHILD'S HANDS CRACKED AND BLED

Poisoned by Brown Tail Moth. From Wrists Down Sore and Red. Scratched Until They Were Almost Raw. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Completely Cured Her.

◆ Faunce Place, Brockton, Mass. — "My girl was poisoned by the brown-tail moth when she was five years of age. Her hands from her wrists down were sore, red and bleeding. She scratched them until they were almost raw. She suffered enough when they cracked and bled. Her hands and wrists looked so bad I was discouraged to take her out in company. It keps her from sleeping well. I tried ——— Ointment, and also a treatment with no avail. I was so discouraged I said 'I will see what the Cuticura Soap and Ointment will do.' I started to use them. I was obliged to keep her hands and wrists done up day and night in linen cloth saturated with the Cuticura Ointment, but always before it was applied I washed them in hot water and Cuticura Soap. The bathing soothed her wonderfully. When I took the cloth from her hands in the morning the dry skin would all peel off. Cuticura Soap and Ointment completely cured her. It has never returned." (Signed) Mrs. L. H. Allen, Feb. 10, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little that it is almost criminal not to use them. Cuticura Soap (25c.) and Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

T. R's EARS WILL TINGLE.

La Follette to Get Even With Sharp Attack in His Book.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Though Senator La Follette refused to reply to Roosevelt's recent attacks on him, he will "get even" in a book which the Senator is about to bring out. This volume will contain some of the sharpest attacks on the Colonel ever seen in print. Friends of La Follette declare that Roosevelt's principal reason for attacking the Senator is the latters' recent stirring up of campaign contribution matters which will result in forcing the ex-President to testify under oath.

CLAMS AND ORATORY.

Double Bill for Swampscott Improvement Association.

Members of the Swampscott Improvement Association and their friends held their annual clambake at Clamp Progress, Swampscott, last night, and besides enjoying a good dinner listened to several speakers on various topics of the day. Thomas A. Mullin of Boston and Miss Edna L. Spencer of Cambridge were the principal speakers, the former dwelling on the splendid qualifications of Governor Wilson for the presidency. Miss Spencer talked on woman suffrage.

STRAUS' NOMINATION PRAISED BY WILSON

Says N. Y. State Progressive Ticket and the Platform Are Both "Admirable."

SEAGIRT, N. J., Sept. 7.—Commenting on the nomination for Governor of Oscar S. Straus by the New York Progressives, Governor Wilson said today:

"They have put out an admirable ticket and an admirable platform. Mr. Straus' nomination is admirable. It puts us on our mettle."

"Do you mean that it shows the necessity of nominating Progressives on the Democratic tickets in all States?" he was asked.

"That goes without saying."

He would not discuss the merits of the other candidates for Governor in New York or state his preferences.

The Governor today received a contribution of $1 each from T. O. Gilium and his nine sons, who compose a baseball team in Madison Mills, Va. Mr. Gilium enclosed a picture of the team.

The Governor has not arranged the dates upon which he will speak in the primary fight for United States Senator from New Jersey against James Smith, Jr. Asked where the speeches would probably be delivered, the Governor said:

"That will depend wholly on circumstances."

The Governor will devote three days to the campaign against Smith.

The Governor will go into seclusion tomorrow. He will be in New York early Monday morning. He is to make the opening address at the tariff exhibit in Union Square at noon and in the evening is to be the guest of honor at a dinner at the press club.

POSTOFFICE OUTGROWN.

John J. Walsh at Rally Says it is Village Institution.

John J. Walsh, Congressman Murray's rival for the Democratic nomination in the Tenth District, talked about it last night in Central square and Maverick square, East Boston, and created some enthusiasm.

Mr. Walsh called the Boston central postoffice "a village institution which has not kept pace with the growth of the city." As to the Navy Yard, it "should be removed entirely, to make way for the commercial enterprise, or be run at its full capacity." Mr. Walsh favors the full capacity treatment.

PELLETIER APPEALS FOR DYNAMITE NEWS

Urges Citizens to Tell Him All They Know of Lawrence "Planting."

District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, issued last night a statement which was both a personal appeal and an official demand for all citizens having knowledge, however slight, of the dynamite "planting" at Lawrence, to tell the District Attorney immediately.

In the opening part of his statement the District Attorney reviews the Lawrence case and the conviction of John J. Breen last Spring.

He dwells strongly on the "heinous crime" committed in planting the dynamite. He recites the disturbed and critical condition of Lawrence at that time. Then he proceeds as follows:

"That the plot to commit this crime was planned in Boston I have sufficient proof. That men who were not indicted with Breen were parties to it, I have sufficient proof, also. I have information which convinces me that men who have not as yet been publicly named were involved, but I have not as yet sufficient proof to prosecute.

"Such an anarchy-breeding crime should enlist the aid of every citizen as a volunteer assistant to the district attorney.

"I call upon citizens of this State who has any knowledge of the facts, however slight or seemingly trivial, those facts may seem to him, touching the crime either before or after its commission, to convey information to me.

"That there are not a few such men I have certain knowledge. First, I appeal to their sense of loyalty to the State to help bring the guilty to justice, but I further, in my official capacity, demand such information possessed by any and every man. To conceal evidence of the commission of a felony from the public authorities is itself a crime.

"However innocently one may acquire information of such crime, he becomes a criminal when he fails to aid justice by making disclosure. For failure up to this time to make such disclosure no man otherwise innocent shall be punished through me.

"The inquiry as to the principal offenders will be pushed vigorously. If, after this warning, evidence comes to me that any person conceals any information as to this conspiracy or the persons involved in it, which information may have come to him either before or after the commission of the crime, I shall present to the Grand Jury such evidences and advise that body that it is their duty to indict any or all such persons."

PROGRESSIVES FAIL TO HEED ROOSEVELT

Disobey Party Leader in Nominating Oscar Straus for Governor.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 7.—It became known today that the National Progressive party's first State convention, which ended at 12:45 o'clock this morning, when the delegates marched out to the strains of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," rode rough shod throughout its closing sessions over the wishes of its national leader, Theodore Roosevelt. The ticket that it named, headed by Oscar S. Straus of New York and Frederic M. Davenport of Oneida County, was not the ticket of the Colonel.

After a dramatic stampede in which the bitterness between the forces of State Chairman William H. Hotchkiss of Westchester County and Committeeman Perry A. Prendergast of Kings had been wiped away by the Straus sentiment, the convention repeated its stampeding when it named Davenport for second place. In doing so it related absolutely the wish of Colonel Roosevelt, who sent word to the convention by Chairman Hotchkiss that it should name Dean Cook, head of the St. Lawrence University's agricultural department. The Colonel favored Prendergast for the head of the ticket.

The rest of the slate was smashed into pieces by the convention.

TWO ACCIDENTS IN PARK.

One Boy Caught in Wheel, Another Gets Clot on Brain.

Bell Rock Park, Malden, was the scene of two peculiar accidents yesterday in which two young boys were injured. John Coleman, aged six, climbed on the wheel of a lumber wagon and when the horse started was caught in the spokes. The wheel had to be taken off before the boy, who was unconscious, could be removed. Fred Delloff, eight, was riding in a go-cart, when the cart tipped over. His head hit the curbing. A blood clot formed on the brain. It is believed it will result fatally.

Young Leeds Expert as Skipper of Yacht

NEWPORT, Sept. 7. — Captain James, skipper for William B. Leeds of the New York Yacht Club, is grieving over the loss of his $30,000,000 prise pupil, William B. Leeds, Jr., son of the "Tin-plate king." The young millionaire sailor has left Newport with his mother.

Every afternoon he had gone sailing with Captain James. The skipper was in charge until they left the boat and then his pupil took command. Of course Captain James trimmed sail, but the son of the "Tin-plate king" handled the tiller.

"The lad was a wonder at grasping the idea of sailing the craft," said Skipper James. "He was easier to teach than any of my older pupils."

William B. Leeds, Jr., is to have a thirty-foot special design for next season, which has been ordered from the Herreshoffs.

"Joe Wood" Girls Beat "Johnson" Boys

PITTSFIELD, Sept. 7.—The Joe Wood baseball team, captained by Miss Caryl Spoor of Chicago and made up of her young woman friends of her home city and New York, beat the Walter Johnson team of young men, headed by Kimball Salisbury, of Pittsfield and Chicago, in an exciting nine-inning game this afternoon by a score of 10 to 9.

The game was marked by brilliant playing on both sides, but especially by the young women. They batted the ball and chased around the diamond like feminine Speakers.

The contest came off on the estate of Mrs. William Bryce of this city. The fans who cheered the players were made up of the Summer visitors and residents from a large area of the Berkshires.

INVEST FOR LARGE RETURNS

Consider the Big Dividend Possibilities of this Revolutionary Heating System—the Inexpensive Ideal System that the World Has Longed For—Profits in Heating, 100 Per Cent.

The Heating System of the Future

For generations people have longed for an improved system of heating; countless inventors have wrestled with this problem. The development of thermostatics finally accomplished the result of keeping an even temperature, by an expensive auxiliary system to old heating methods. Luxurious New York Hotels have advertised this as a feature for certain of their rooms, for which they have charged fabulous rates. The inexpensive Vacuum system accomplishes this, incidentally, besides eliminating the furnace nuisance and absolutely preventing waste of heat. In short, it presents a perfect solution of the heating problem. Heat is turned on or off by pressing a button like an electric light. No care or attention is required. It can be installed for about the same expense as other systems, and it puts it in your power to regulate your heating bills just as you now can regulate your electric light bills. Just as you use your light when you want it and where you want it, so you can immediately have your heat when and where you want it, and turn it off when you don't want it. For example, you can turn off your heat at night, and turn it on from your bed in the morning by pressing the button. In a few moments the room is exactly the temperature you desire, according as you have set your thermostat. This all seems wonderful to you at frst glance, but it is very simple when you understand how it is accomplished.

It remained for the Vacuum Gas heating system to turn accepted principles of scientific heating topsy turvy. Experts had believed that gas would not burn in a partial vacuum. They were wrong. It is being done every day by the Vacuum Gas Heating system, which is fully covered by patents that give this company a monopoly in this new ideal system of heating. The perfect combustion obtained by the Vacuum system is due to the thorough intimate mixture of gas and air particles while in a rarified state, free from any of the products of combustion which are immediately drawn away by suction from the combustion chamber, creating there a partial vacuum which rarifies the gases. The result is the greatest heat that can possibly be obtained from the gas—actually 100%, and the absolute elimination of the odor and poisonous products from the atmosphere of the room.

Vacuum gas radiators are much like a steam or hot water radiator in appearance except for the combustion box in the center in which the gas burns. Instead of steam or hot water passing through the sections of the radiator the heat of the flame is drawn through by suction, created by a device usually located in the basement.

There is no such thing as an overheated room for users of Vacuum gas radiators. When the room temperature reaches that desired by the occupant the thermostat turns off the gas automatically. It remains out until the temperature of the room lowers, when a small pilot flame reignites the gas.

There are many reasons why you and other householders will ultimately install the Vacuum system of heating. The elimination of the furnace nuisance, requiring constant attention, creating smoke, dirt, cinders and ashes, causing overheating and underheating, causing waste of heat and heat cost, will constitute a sufficient reason for most of us who have fumed and imprecated against this inanimate tyrant. The Vacuum system will as surely supersede the old, unsatisfactory systems in the future as the typewriter, telephone, telegraph and sewing machine superceded old methods in the past.

The Vacuum Heating System, from the standpoint of efficiency, adaptability, healthfulness and economy supplies a system of heating which by actual use is proved to be not only better than any other, but so perfect that it meets the needs of every user.

Large Profits From Vacuum Gas Heating Sales

A faint idea of tremendous profits that will be secured from the Vacuum Gas Heating business of the company will be gained if you consider that every such heating system installed brings a profit of 100% and that the owner of every house or building in Massachusetts are prospective buyers of the Vacuum Gas Heating. The usual profit on heating systems is about 20%. Yet the heating business is recognized to be an extremely profitable one. There are in the United States about 100 companies manufacturing and selling radiators. Over twelve of these are million dollar concerns. The American Radiator Company alone has a capital stock of $10,000,000, of which $7,000,000 is common stock and $3,000,000 preferred. Dividends on preferred stock have been paid regularly. Dividends of 10% were paid on the common stock in March, 1912. The United States Radiator Company has a capitalization of $8,000,000 and pays dividends on its stock.

Yes, the heating business is a profitable business, and it is a safe business, because the great demand for the necessity—heat—is constant and continuous.

Think of it. It will require the sale of less than 1,000 Vacuum Gas Radiators to pay 7% dividends on the preferred stock. It is not exaggerating the business prospects of the Massachusetts Vacuum Heating Company to predict that this amount of business will be done each month, with an efficient selling organization.

A sure indication of the business to be done by the Massachusetts Vacuum Gas Heating Company is presented by the phenomenal business done with this system by the Los Angeles (Cal.) Vacuum Gas Heating Company, which has placed on its books $42,000 worth of contracts since that company began business three months ago.

Limited Offer of 1 Share of Common Stock with Every 2 Shares of Preferred

The Massachusetts Vacuum Gas Heating Company is organized to manufacture and sell the Vacuum heating and lighting systems in the State of Massachusetts. Its capital stock is $600,000, par value $10 per share. The shares are divided into 30,000 shares Common stock and 30,000 shares of participating 7% preferred stock. A LIMITED AMOUNT OF COMMON STOCK WILL BE GIVEN FREE, ONE SHARE OF COMMON FOR EVERY TWO SHARES OF PREFERRED. This offer may be withdrawn any moment, because recognition of the great money earning possibilities of the Massachusetts Vacuum Gas Heating Company by investors will probably cause the limited amount of stock set aside for this special offer to be over-subscribed in a few days. To secure the benefit of this special offer we caution you that you must ACT IMMEDIATELY.

$10 Per Share Now

We ask you to investigate carefully, because it is our positive conviction that we are offering an opportunity such as comes but seldom in a lifetime—a chance to come in on the INSIDE—to co-operate with other citizens of your State in launching a business in Massachusetts in a revolutionary invention which compares from the standpoint of dividend-earning possibilities with the telephone, linotype, airbrake, Welsbach light and other revolutionary inventions which have made fortunes for original investors.

We believe that even in this limited space we have been able to show the big future ahead of this company and the sure commercial progress; If you have any uncertainty—investigate. See our demonstrating plant at the company's offices at 91 Bedford Street.

$10,000 CASH FOR AN AMERICAN READER

It Is But One Prize Out of $40,000 in Return for Spare Time Work.

OTHER PRIZES $1,000 EACH

REMEMBER about that house you were going to build sometime back there five or six years ago?

How far along have you got on it? How much have you been able to save, outside of your life insurance?

How's that? Not much?

The babies came along, eh? And the wife's father died, and Tom was sick for three months, and last Spring things were dull in the shop?

Well, so goes the old world, but

DON'T YOU WANT TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS?

Dear friends, neighbors, fellow citizens, readers, this is not a fairy tale nor are you dreaming

For somebody in New England who today reads these words the Boston Sunday AMERICAN is holding, in trust, ten thousand dollars in cash.

This money belongs to one of YOU. It will be cheerfully paid over by the Sunday AMERICAN when you have proved title.

Task Simple One.

And proving title will not be an impossible task. The proposition is a simple one.

The Sunday AMERICAN is out to make the 500,000 mark in circulation. It wants your help. It will pay for that help and pay well.

First of all, take notice that this is not the ordinary voting contest. You are merely called upon to induce others to subscribe for the Sunday AMERICAN for terms of six months, one year or three years—and, if you get more subscribers for the Sunday AMERICAN—more subscribers measured by months rather than individuals—than anybody else who enrolls in the competition, THE TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS IS YOURS.

What can you not do with $10,000?

In some towns in New England men and women retire on that sum, and live comfortably ever after.

Ten thousand dollars will buy that house you have had your eye on for so many years, send Mary and Willie to college, make a teacher of the girl and a doctor of the boy.

Ten thousand dollars will make you.

The fact is, however, that the Sunday AMERICAN has set apart a great fund of $40,000 to be distributed among those of our readers who help us make the 500,000 circulation mark.

The big prize will be $10,000 in cash. This will be ONE prize. The winner of this first or grand prize will take ALL the $10,000.

But then there will be five district prizes of $1,000 each.

The city of Boston makes up one district, places outside of the city within twenty miles make up a second district, Massachusetts beyond the twenty-mile mark constitutes another. Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont the fourth, and Rhode Island with Connecticut the fifth.

On pages 4 and 5 of that section of today's Sunday AMERICAN devoted to "Society and foreign news" you will find all that is necessary to know about the 500,000 club at this time. You will also find there an enrollment blank which, if received before September 23—two weeks from today—will start you in the race with equivalent of 1,000 votes.

The first six months subscription you send to the Sunday AMERICAN wins another 1,500 votes, while a year's subscription counts for 3,500 and a three years subscription is worth 7,500 votes.

You might enter the contest this minute. The people around you, neighbors or shopmates, will be glad to help you. To begin with, canvass your own street or your own office.

Certainly $10,000 in cash is worth striving for. The district first prizes, $1,000 each, would be splendid prizes if the $10,000 did not overshadow them. Make up your mind to win this $10,000 prize and you will be sure to make at least the district prize.

This contest means exactly what is set forth in the announcement. There is no trick about it. Those who earn the 1,501 Sunday AMERICAN prizes will get them without any restrictions if with no string tied to them. The Sunday AMERICAN, indeed, will be glad to pay. No employe of this paper and no member of the family of an employe will be allowed to compete.

The Sunday AMERICAN, which makes these offers, is the best Sunday newspaper in New England. It is read by more New Englanders than any other Sunday newspaper. So you have something to give your friends and neighbors in return for their support.

Campfire Girls Are Awarded Honors in Nature Lore

New Organization's Ideals Like Those of Boy Scouts

MEMBERS OF MIANIMO COUNCIL, CAMPFIRE GIRLS OF AMERICA, IN CAMP NEAR WOBURN.

Instruction in health, duty and patriotism is given the campfire girls. They are also taught valuable lessons in caring for the home

First Council in Greater Boston Established by Girls of Woburn.

Ever heard of the Camp Fire Girls of America?

There is such an organization, the complement of the Boy Scouts of America. It is spreading so fast that councils will soon have been established in every State of the Union. Its ideals are similar to those of the Boy Scouts—service and character.

The first council to be established near Boston is Mianimo council, Camp Fire Girls of America, which held its first council meeting last week in Woburn. Gowned in the ceremonial robes of the order the girls gathered around the camp fire in true Indian fashion and each received the honors to which a month of initiatory work had entitled her. The emblems presented by the national order, the string of beads and the wood-gatherer's ring were given them.

The large number of honors awarded—nearly eighty in health craft, about seventy-five in home craft, four in nature lore, four in camp craft, seventeen in hand craft, six in business and twenty-two in patriotism—reflected the enthusiasm of the girls in their attempts to win honors and finally gain the coveted title of Firemaker.

At the council meeting each girl who won honors was given a string of beads—each bead typifying an honor—strung for the flame of the hearth fire in home craft, red for each honor in health craft, pine for nature lore, brown for camp craft, green for hand craft, yellow for business, and "work," which is afforded by the fire of this string she will add during the Winter as further honors are won.

Twelve girls received the honors to which their preparatory work has entitled them at the council meeting, several others entitled to receive them not being present. Those present were Rachel Blodgett, Emily Clement, Marion Wallace, Cora Bonteille, Blanch Tripp, Grace Robertson, Mildred Pixon, Laura Tuber, Dora Gilbert, Gertrude Maloney, Edith Place and Margaret Smith.

Two members of the council, Miss Theodora Richardson and Miss Edith Lillian Smith, assisted the guardian, Miss Mary E. Grimm, in conferring the honors and giving instruction in the work of the camp.

When a girl joins the council the work that once was considered drudgery takes on the fascination of play, character is built and a new ideal of service is inculcated. The ceremonies of the council appeal to all that is spiritual in maidenhood.

The first watchword of the girl is "work which is glorified by find me in the task in that is in even the plainest tasks well done. She learns to wax nine stitches once each week, the camps picturesque lesson of the "stitch in time" of the proverb.

By this she adds another string to her beads, and incidentally learns to do her own mending. She takes care of the baby, too, and asks her mother to teach her how to prepare his milk. She learns more of Nature's world in trying to gain another honor, Nature. The flowers by the road side that have been nameless for so long are now well known to the girls, as are the stars and their stories. All the world becomes full of new and inspiring things that once were accepted as mere commonplaces.

For these duties she must be strong and well, so the camp fire girls learn to live in the fresh cold air; to be regular in their habits; to swim and walk and row and to know what every girl should be taught—care of herself. "Health," then, is the second watchword of the camp fire girl.

For this, too, she must understand the meaning of "love thy neighbor as thyself," so she is given knowledge in all human crafts that she may cheerfully and with trust give the service that she owes to all the world, in handcraft, patriotism and nature. The last watchword is "Love."

When she has won twenty elective honors and the fourteen that are required of every girl, she becomes a fire maker. Now she may make the fire for which before she could only gather the wood.

WALSH AND RILEY SPEAK IN CHELSEA

Chelsea Democrats in Grand Army Hall last night cheered David I. Walsh, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, Chairman Thomas F. Riley and other speakers as Democratic success in both State and nation was predicted.

Arthur J. Murphy, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, presided. It was the liveliest and most largely attended rally that Chelsea has seen in years.

David I. Walsh, who framed the high cost of living plank in the Democratic national platform, laid to the tariff the burdens that load the tables of the people.

"We are a party," said Mr. Walsh, "that will keep our promises. We will revise the tariff, revise it downward and, moderately, as Governor Wilson has declared. And with this downward revision we will have a lower cost of living."

Chairman Riley of the Democratic State committee, predicted that the electoral vote of Massachusetts in November would be cast for Governor Wilson.

Which of the three parties is the force of the future.

Which the other two should swing? asked Chairman Riley.

The choice lies between the Bull Moose party and the Democratic party. The leader of the two should join with the stronger, yielding its own leadership and organization forms, for the time being, in order that the common cause might not be endangered by continued separation of the forces.

The Bull Moose position has been taken within a comparatively brief time, almost a matter of weeks only, while the Democratic position is a matter of consistent, positive, long years standing."

William H. Barter, candidate for the Governor's Council, and Michael J. O'Leary, executive secretary of the Democratic State Committee, addressed the rally.

"I'll Win," Say Foss, Walker and Others

"Why, I Cannot Help Winning," Says Governor Just Before the Battle.

Governor Foss said last night that he was certain of renomination and re-election.

District-Attorney Pelletier said he made it and he will be handsomely nominated.

Speaker Joseph Walker said he had no doubt he will be nominated for Governor by the Republicans.

Everett C. Benton said, through Campaign Manager Cavanagh, that he will be nominated and elected.

The campaign begins tomorrow in earnest.

"Win?" said the Governor, "Why, I cannot help winning. I am going to finish my fight for railroad supervision and regulation and the people who want these reforms are going to help bring them about by my nomination and re-election.

"I'm off for the week," Mr. Pelletier said, "and I'll be at it every day from now until September 24. I believe I'll be handsomely nominated."

"I believe in the sober thought of the Republicans of Massachusetts," was the way Mr. Walker put it. "I believe they will remember and appreciate proven service. I have no doubt of my nomination for governor."

Colonel Benton will speak in New Bedford tomorrow night and on Tuesday night in Somerville. To-morrow will be field day at the Clinton Fair, Friday at the Sturbridge Fair and Saturday in Wrentham.

AID BABIES' HOSPITAL.

Contribution of $5,000 Needed Before November 1.

The Massachusetts Babies' Hospital founded in 1893, needs $5,000 before November 1. It will require $15,000 for next year's work. It sends its nurses to the Floating Hospital for their patients. It places babies, whose mothers cannot take care of them, in country homes. Among the poor of this city there are many cases of neglected babies caused by a mother's illness, and in order that infants may not suffer it puts its shelter and its nurses at the young ones and finds a home for them until the parent or parents can do their duty.

Contributions of any size will be thankfully received, and may be sent to Walter Hunnewell, Jr. No. 19 Congress street, Boston.

BOSTON PAYING UP.

Debt Has Decreased $1,004,291 in Six Months.

Boston is paying off its debts. This is the substance of a statement made by City Auditor Mitchell who says that Boston's gross debt has decreased $1,004,291.66 in eight months. The report also shows the department funds to be in good condition.

CHAIRMAN RILEY TO STUMP FOR FOSS

Pelletier's Ambition, He Says, Is Unseasonable, but Not Unreasonable.

Chairman Thomas F. Riley of the Democratic State committee from now on, every day and evening, will advocate the re-nomination for Governor of Eugene N. Foss.

He will not resign from the chairmanship of the Democratic State organization, although District Attorney Pelletier, contesting the nomination with Governor Foss, has openly denounced it.

"I feel," said Chairman Riley last night, "that Governor Foss is our best asset.

"With Foss at the head of our ticket we are sure to win. Without him success would be doubtful. The ambition of the District Attorney should wait upon another year. It is now unseasonable."

"If this was an off year in politics—if there were no presidential election hanging in the balance—if there were no Congressional elections in the balance—we might be justified for the sake of personal friendship, etc., in giving kindly and favorable consideration to the personal ambitions or factional demands within the party even though the particular man whose candidacy was involved might not be the strongest man for the party standard bearer.

"But in a year such as this the Democrats of the State is not warranted in taking any chance with anything or anyone in the least and this applies to candidates for office from the top to the bottom of the ticket.

"It is for the voters of the party to exercise an extraordinary degree of judgment in their action on primary day, lest through unguided impulse, personal friendship or other minor or selfish considerations they gratify their own desire at the very great expense of party success.

"I shall accept the invitations of the Foss campaign committee to speak at the various rallies which I understand they are to hold between now and primary day, and I shall do my best in behalf of advancing Governor Foss' renomination—clearly and unmistakably.

"For that nomination will not in any way be strained into a disparagement of Mr. Pelletier or a reflection upon his attributes and general fitness for the high office to which he laudably aspires.

"I feel merely that his ambitions should wait upon this year's necessities—in other words that his candidacy is unseasonable, rather than unreasonable."

MRS. JOHN ASTOR COMING.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept 7.—Mrs. Astor, widow of Colonel John Jacob Astor, her son Vincent Astor, and her daughter, Miss Muriel Astor, will sail soon from France and will be met in New York by the Astor steam yacht Nourmahal. MR. R. H. CHASE, 79 years of age.

The strength, vigor and health enjoyed by Mr. R. H. Chase, who is almost 79 years of age, are most remarkable, and he says it is all due to the use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

"I have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for over 13 years, and although nearly 79 can out-walk most of the young men of today. My strength, activity and ability to enjoy life are all due to your valuable medicine. I am now negotiating starting a fruit farm in Washington or Michigan, as I feel like a young man with all the world before me. I will always keep Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey with me, and I recommend it to all old people who wish to keep young and vigorous." R. H. Chase, 7218 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

the great renewer of youth has been used for more than half a century with great success in the treatment and prevention of all throat, lung and stomach troubles and for all weakened and run-down conditions. The merit and honesty of an article that has been used and approved of by the public for such a length of time cannot be questioned. Its fame has spread the world over, and it stands today the most celebrated and most successful medicine and body builder known.

Develop Your Bust in 15 Days

A Full Firm Bust is Worth More to a Woman than Beauty

I don't care how thin you are, how old you are, how fallen and flaccid are the lines of your figure or how fat your chest is, I can give you a full, firm, youthful bust quickly, that will be the envy of your fellow-women and will give you the allurements of a perfect womanhood that will be irresistible. They say there is nothing new under the sun but I have perfected a treatment that I want to share with my sisters.

What it did for me it can and will do for you, and I now offer it to you. Others after me build up your figure with cheap, greasy skin foods, creams, dieting, massaging and exercise, inharmonious and devices. I have done away with all these injurious methods and have given a system of women's development to the world by a treatment never before offered the public. No massaging, nothing to take, nothing to wear.

Why be skinny, scrawny, flat and unattractive? I claim to be the highest priced artist's model in the United States, and what I did for myself I do for you.

I don't care what your age may be, I am only that you be of good health, for I am no invalid, and I will undertake to develop your bust in two weeks. All it takes is five or ten minutes of your time every day.

Write to Me Today for My Treatment | Develop Bust Now Way

It will only cost you a penny for a postcard and I will mail you this wonderful information in a plain cover so that no one will know your secret.

Don't let a false pride and silly sense of shame keep you from writing to the fair, the charms you should have to be a perfect specimen of womanhood. Let me help you. Your correspondence shall be held in absolute confidence and secrecy. Write me today.

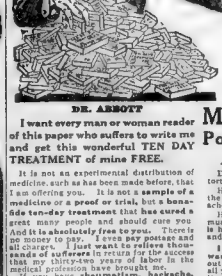
I WANT TO GIVE AWAY THOUSANDS OF 10-DAY TREATMENTS FREE

TO RELIEVE THE SUFFERINGS OF HUMANITY



DR. ABBOTT

I want every man or woman reader of this paper who suffers to write me and get this wonderful TEN DAY TREATMENT of mine FREE.

It is not an experimental distribution of medicine, such as has been made before, that is now offering you. It is not a sample of a medicine or a proof or trial, but a bona-fide ten-day treatment that has cured a great many people and should cure you. And it is absolutely free to you. There is no money to pay. I even pay postage and all charges. I just want to relieve thousands of sufferers in return for the success that my thirty-two years of labor in the medical profession have brought me.

If you have rheumatism, backache, kidney or bladder troubles, chronic catarrh, or any of the other Uric-Acid complaints, such as often are female weakness and so-called nervousness or debility, write to me, filling out the little coupon herewith attached and I will send you at once a full Ten-Day Treatment, as thousands of earnest testimonials I have in my possession will prove to you.

Don't send me any Money not even postage—I will pay all expenses. But if you value happiness, success, a healthy mind in a healthy body, don't waste any time, but fill out this coupon and mail it to me. Remember, it is FREE. You will owe me nothing now or later.

My Ten Day Treatment Positively Cures BACKACHE FREE

Are You racked with pain?

Do you suffer so that your daily work is a torture instead of being a pleasure?

Have you lost ambition, zest, enterprise, the desire to better yourself because of pains, aches, dullness?

Has rheumatism set its clutches on your muscles and palsied your limbs so that life is hardly worth living, your days a horror and your nights a terror?

I can relieve your sufferings and I want to do it now. Write to me. Fill out the coupon and mail it to me. That is all you need to do. I will do the rest and it will cost you absolutely nothing.

No man tortured with uric acid sensations is fit for the battle of life. He cannot bring his brain nor his hands to strong, powerful work when his body is racked with pain. No woman can care for her home, bring up her children right or work if she is cross, miserable, distracted by suffering. Any struggle to win love, companionship or success, the fight for success too strenuous or exacting, ends in failure. In the man or woman who suffers I want to bring relief, one application of which will prove to you the truth of what I say. Don't delay. Don't even wait until you finish reading this. Do it now. Do it at once. Write me for this Treatment. It will be sent by book or by mail, whichever you prefer. It is a wonderful thing, the result of an experience of thirty-two years, during which I have specialized in uric acid complaints. It costs me also a few of the tens of thousands of testimonial letters from grateful men and women who have been cured by this treatment, and I have received hundreds of them from the country over who have been healed to say, but how much I have benefited them.

DR. G. B. ABBOTT

P. S. Perhaps you have a friend who is a sufferer. Don't hesitate to have him or her fill out this coupon or write me a letter, or you do it for your friend. They will call you blessed.

4 DEATH MYSTERIES IN LAWYER'S CAREER

Gibson Fails to Produce Mother of Countess' Szabo, Who Drowned While With Him.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7—Burton W. Gibson, the lawyer with whom the Countess Rosa Menschik Szabo was boating when she was mysteriously drowned, did not succeed today in producing the Countess' mother. Neither can the detectives employed on the case find the woman the lawyer declared signed the papers which caused him to take possession of the Countess' estate as executor. The death mysteries of the Countess and of others connected with the lawyer's career deepen.

"I shall produce Mrs. Pergelli Menschik, the mother of Mrs. Szabo," Gibson declared, "and I shall prove also that the Austrian consul's notation in referring to the names of brothers or sisters of Mrs. Szabo living abroad. She had none, positive than her mother living, I am told."

"Mrs. Menschik died in Vienna, Austria, in February, 1910, and had never been in the United States," says the chief of Police of Vienna to the Austrian Consulate here.

Woman Key to Mystery.

The investigators say if the woman sought were the real Mrs. Menschik, she would come forward or the attorney would produce her. The appearance of the mother of the dead woman is all that is necessary to clear the lawyer of suspicion. He denies that what he said earlier that he could find the woman at any time.

Gibson was at his office today harassed by reporters, but as usual sought nothing. He is to appear before the surrogate on September 17 to prove when he, should not be removed as administrator of the estate on the ground that he acted at the expense of the Austrian consul as a brother and also of the countess with legal proof of the death of the mother. They will be here in time for the hearing. Then Gibson will be confronted with all the evidence against him and told to explain if he can the suspicious circumstances that surround the death and the transfer to him of her future as executor.

Story of the Drowning.

District Attorney Rogers of Orange County was in New York today consulting with District Attorney Whitman's assistants about the steps to be taken in connection with the drowning of the countess Szabo. He met with Mrs. Hiles Brooks, of Piermont, and her daughter. Mrs. Brooks' story of what she said saw the drowning in Greenwood Lake from a rowboat.

The women had told Mr. Rogers that when the boat in which they were rowing the Countess was about a hundred feet from shore a scream and started up. If to free herself to reveal the woman's pocketbook and started for New York.

The statement of a teller at the Franklin Savings Bank, where the Countess had $3,000 on deposit, also the payment of the money. The teller whose name as written held says that Gibson on seeing to obtain the money on the day in question signed her name as witness. Gibson, who said he died of heart disease suddenly in Washington, D. C., on July 17. Warwick, the place where her body was removed from bathing

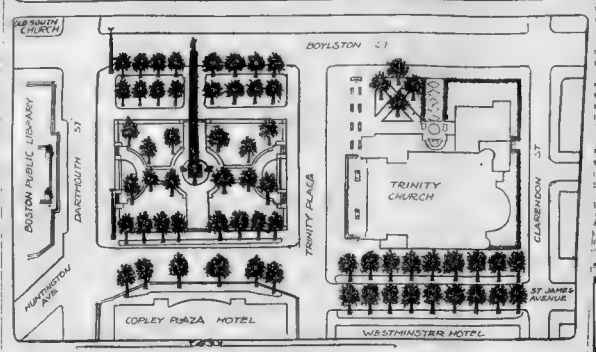
Copley Square May Be a World Beauty Spo

Winthrop Assures Cost of Bourne's Plan

ARCHITECT BOURNE'S PLAN FOR NEW COPLEY SQUARE, SHOWING TRAJAN COLUMN



The remarkable offer of Frederick Winthrop of Boston, from the landing of the Pilgrims at No. 280 Beacon street to help finance the Bourne plan for reconstructing and beautifying Copley square makes it probable that the scheme of the great architect will be adopted and that a Trajan column will decorate the new square in Boston.

Frank A. Bourne, the architect, is very much pleased at the championship of his plan by Mr. Winthrop.

"It is one of the most extraordinary examples of public spirit that has ever come to my notice," he declared. "I was a week in my office the other day when Mr. Winthrop called. I had never met him and he only knew me through my work.

"When he declared his willingness to come to the assistance of the city with a large sum of money in behalf of the descendants of John Winthrop, the first Governor of Massachusetts, I was amazed.

"Mr. Winthrop was adverse to any publicity, but he consented to accompany me to the Mayor's office. I assure you that I was not through before I had his proposition in the newspapers. However, I am sure that he will not draw out and I feel confident that one public interest is around the plan will go through.

Architect Bourne's Plan.

The Bourne plan is, broadly, to do away with that part of Huntington avenue which crosses diagonally Copley square, switch the street cars from Huntington avenue to Boylston street via Dartmouth street, in front of the public library.

This would give a great open plaza 600 feet square between the Public Library, Trinity Church and the Copley Plaza Hotel.

Extend the line of Trinity Church out to Boylston street and utilize the corner left by the obliteration of Huntington avenue as a garden park.

Boston then would have a great public square worthy of comparison with other great squares in Europe and America. Two rows of trees would be planted on the Boylston street side of the square and two on the Copley Plaza side. The centre would be sunk about two and a half feet.

This part of the Bourne plan can be executed at a cost of only $150,000.

The expensive part in the monument scheme, and, with the monument, the cost of the improvement of the square comes to $500,000.

A great column, like that of Trajan, of the Vendome column in Paris or the Nelson monument in London, is planned for the exact centre of the square. This column might have carved upon it the history

Brilliant Lighting Effect.

Its pedestal would be ornate with lions, griffins, terraces and seats. On either side of the square there would be fountains with tiled walks and ovens and shrubs.

Subterranean public conveniences stations are provided for. The two seated figures in front of the public library represent art and science. Mr. Bourne would balance them with figures of religion and commerce on the opposite side of the square.

Fine gas lamps would aid in beautifying the square.

Mr. Bourne declares that a monument of the character suggested is necessary to set off the buildings about the square, and in a sketch shows how the public library building is improved when seen behind the impressive column.

On the top of the column there would be placed a statue. Of whom? Some famous American. John Winthrop, if his descendants, who have come forward and offered to help build it, have their way.

Mr. Bourne estimates the cost of the improvements roughly this way: Monument foundations, $47,100; building, $129,000, carring, etc., $128,000, pedestals, seats, etc. $17,000, total monument expense $272,-100.

For other improvements: Two fountains, $11,402; sidewalks, $12,740; lamps, $18,-200; toilets, $40,000, miscellaneous (including removal of Huntington avenue, etc. $98,280.

"The removal of the tracks from the middle of the square is absolutely essential to every plan of beautifying it," explained Mr. Bourne. Raymond Lewis, the English artist who visited here last year; Mr. McKim, the architect of the library, and many others all recommended that the tracks be removed.

"The present shape of the square is also against it. It should be a quadrangle. The extension of the line of Trinity Church makes it so. That idea also is neither new nor radical.

JORDAN MARSH FIELD DAY GREATEST EVER

The biggest and the best ever," was verdict of the 1,400 members of the Marsh Mutual Aid Association, posed of the employees of the big department store, and their families, after last of the fireworks which wound up program for the annual field day of association, held yesterday at Lexington Park.

The proceeds of the outing will go to the relief fund of the association, which during the seven years that it has been in existence has paid out over $40,000 in benefits.

The big event of the day was the baseball game between the department superintendents and the buyers, in which the superintendents beat their opponents down to defeat in five innings by a score of 16 to 3.

In the fifty-yard hobble race for women Miss Mary O'Neil hobbled across the line a winner ahead of Miss Eva Johnson by a foot. Miss Frances Kelley was third.

A surprise lunch at twilight followed the sports. The fireworks in the evening were contributed by the firm.

$500,000 Memorial on Landing of Pilgrims

Pilgrim Society Plans to Let Tide Flow Up to Rock.

PLYMOUTH, Sept. 7.—The Pilgrim Society which closed its convention here today, plans to raise $500,000 for a memorial to perpetuate the memory of the landing of the Pilgrims the triennial celebration of which takes place in 1920.

This town already has an imposing monument in commemoration of the landing, but it is the consensus of opinion among the members of the Society, who come from every State in the Union, that the most fitting memorial would be to restore the landing place of the Pilgrims to as nearly as possible its original surroundings.

Accordingly, the sum raised will probably be used in buying up surrounding property, tearing down buildings thereon, and allow the tide to flow up to the very edge of the sacred rock on which, tradition says, the hardy Pilgrim band first set foot three hundred years ago.

The following were elected:

Thomas Snell Hopkins, District of Columbia, Governor-General; John Parkwood Tilden, Secretary-General; Henry Hedges Belknap, Pennsylvania, Treasurer-General; Rt. Rev. Charles Edward Cheney, Illinois, Elder-General; Myles Standish, Massachusetts, Captain-General; Abel Ward Nelson, N. H., Counsellor; Burgess Gen'l; Frank Russell, Massachusetts, Historian-General.

HARVARD EXPECTS HEAVY ENROLMENT

The two hundred and seventy-fourth academic year begins at Harvard on September 23, and about the yard and in the buildings there is beginning to be a bustle of tidying up. Employes are back already from vacations. Professors and instructors are returning. A few of them are seen about, getting ready for their Winter's work. Not many students are in evidence yet, but a few begin to make the square look familiar again. In another week the freshman examinations begin. Then the students will start drifting in.

As an earnest of the new conditions, witness the activity of the employment bureau even at this early day. Already it is the busiest place about the college, as it will be for weeks to come. Hundreds of young men who are eager to venture within the grave hundreds of others who have passed a year, perhaps two or three, in work and study, seek jobs. Few will go away disappointed. About 1,400 last year partially supported themselves by employment about the college, in Cambridge or in Boston.

A student can get through the year now on $400. That is the minimum, and only young men with very aggressive ideas and ability to do without a lot of comforts and luxuries are advised to try it.

The New Filene Store

First of All It Is An American Store

WHEN planning new store stocks of made-ready apparel for women, children and men we turned first to the best American producers and said to them: "Show us the best you know how to make."

Among those acquainted with conditions it is a matter of patriotic pride that American producers of wearing apparel are making tremendous strides not only as reproducers of foreign products but as actual style creators.

This achievement takes on the statue of a national triumph. We have encouraged it in every possible way and shall continue to do so. And we can think of no better way of extending such encouragement than by supplying business.

We would rather hear the busy hum of American mills than the fog-horn of inbound trans-Atlantic steamships.

At the same time we aim at leaving nothing undone in the way of supplying to New England with what it wants when it wants it, whether foreign or American merchandise.

Months ago our representatives journeyed to the world marts—Paris, London, Berlin, Vienna, Frankfort, Chemnitz, Pforzheim, Brussels, Berne, Coventry, Edinboro, Dublin, Belfast and the others.

In a number of these cities they had the advantage of being in close touch with the local Filene bureaus of merchandising. These bureaus we established a long time ago! They are in charge of men and women who are authorities on styles and adepts in the acquirement of merchandise.

We can only hint today at what has come to us as a result of the co-operation of our touring buyers and our resident commissionaires. The best way is for you to visit the new Filene store and see.

For women we are showing imported millinery, costumes, wraps, neckwear, gloves, hosiery, jewelry.

For men we have brought topcoats from London, tweeds from Ireland and Scotland, hats from London, Paris, Vienna and Berlin, Spitalfields silk cravats, English underwear and hosiery and men's outdoor togs.

We invite you to this new American store to inspect not only American merchandise but the proudest creations of foreign lands.

BOSTON HAVING THE GREATEST BUILDING BOOM IN ITS HISTORY

Over $6,000,000 Has Been Spent for New Homes In Past Six Months, as Against Half That Sum the Year Before

Two Great Mercantile Emporiums Have Arisen in the Shopping District; Eight New Theatres Built Since January

BOSTON is experiencing the greatest building boom in all its history.

Stores, banks, hotels, factories, theatres and homes are rising all over the city.

The Old Boston is being supplanted by the New Greater Boston, and while all this is going on by land, there is in progress a tremendous growth in Boston's commerce by sea.

$6,000,000 in New Homes.

With increasing facilities for transportation, the suburbs are being built up with amazing rapidity, and the people who once lived in Boston proper are daily purchasing homes farther out, where they have their own grass plots and gardens.

Over $6,000,000 has been spent for new homes in this city in the past six months. For the same period last year only $3,500,000 was expended.

Eight theatres have been built since January.

Four more schoolhouses have been erected at a cost of $450,000.

Probably the most important building work, both from architectural and business standpoints, in the past year was the erection of the new Filene and Gilchrist stores at the corner of Washington and Summer streets, right in the heart of the shopping district. These stores are a credit to the city, and are bound to stimulate trade.

The extension of Arlington street is another step in the march of business upward, and opens the way for the development of a long idle Park square section.

The Copley-Plaza hotel in Copley square is a decided ornament to that beautiful area, and is one of the finest hostelries in the country.

Fine New Apartment Houses.

Only a few days ago a new synagogue was opened in Dorchester. The Second Church on Copley square has been torn down to make ready for the Wesleyan building, which will be completed in the Spring. The Second Church in Brookline is to be rebuilt.

Apartment houses costing $100,000 each have been built in Ward 11. These houses are steadily advancing in other wards. No investment takes as well with the average investor as this type of real estate.

February for this year was the best month in the record of buildings. More dwellings were erected in this month than any other

Brick buildings continue to outvalue the wooden buildings While this is to be expected, yet the number of wooden dwellings erected in the outlying districts has been phenomenal.

Builders declare that the constant demand for rental land has made a building boom in all sections. Land is selling well and has been selling this year better than for the past three years.

Big Boom in Ward 7.

For the past six months Ward 7 has been the banner ward. More building permits for new houses have been issued in Ward 21 as a close second. In Ward 7 more than $1,150,000 has been spent for buildings since January; $905,000 in the same period going to Ward 11.

Garages are being built in many wards, and more than one a month since the beginning of the year have been erected. Plans are under way for many. In the next six months it is believed that the number will be doubled.

Manufacturing buildings and warehouses are going up to Ward 18. From January to July more than $600,000 worth of this type of property has been built. Within two years nearly $1,500,000 of this property has been erected in this ward. More buildings of the same kind are planned, and will be built within the next twelve months.

Every ward in this city indicates a corresponding advance over last year for the same period.

Great business enterprises have likewise been going on in the business sections of the city, and they are a credit to the city, and are bound to stimulate trade.

Doctor Racing to Mrs. John R. M'Lean

Special Trains Carry Noted Physician, Found After Frantic Search.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Dr. L. F. Barker, the noted physician of Johns Hopkins University, for whom a frantic search has been made in the mountains of North Carolina by representatives of the family of John R. McLean, left Seneca, S. C., this morning in a special train for Bar Harbor to attend Mrs John R. McLean, who is critically ill with pneumonia.

Dr. Barker was located in the mountains near Cashiers, N. C., and hurried over forty miles of mountain roads in an automobile to Seneca. From there he is speeding in a special train which is expected to reach Washington at 1 o'clock tomorrow morning.

There a second special will be waiting at the Washington Union station to rush the physician northward. This special is expected to reach New York at about 5 30 Sunday morning, where a change to a third special over the Knickerbocker express route will be necessary.

The third special train is expected to reach Mt. Desert Ferry, seven miles from Bar Harbor, at about 6:30 Sunday evening Here the fastest motor boat in Maine waters will be waiting to carry Dr Barker to the bedside of his patient.

PROBE EMERY TRAGEDY.

Cause of Double Killing at Portage Lake a Mystery.

An investigation was begun yesterday of the double tragedy resulting in the murder by Daniel C. Emery of his wife, followed by his suicide at Portage Lake, Me. The investigation is in the hands of Coroner William F. Bussel of Maine.

One of Emery's relatives who is greatly interested in the result of the investigation of the two deaths is Mrs Herbert Clark Emery of Clarendon street, Boston. What was back of the tragedy is not known. It is thought that illness may have affected his mind, resulting in his strangling his wife and then shooting himself.

STRAUSS HAS A NOVELTY.

Opera, Dealing with Moliere Hero, Is Called "Music for a Play."

VIENNA, Sept. 7.—Richard Strauss' new opera is entirely different in conception from any of his other works.

Strauss calls his music "eigenspiel-musik," or "music for a play," a name which probably fits the opera very well, for it is neither grand opera, music drama nor opera bouffe.

The story of the opera deals with the joys and troubles of Jourdain, Moliere's hero in "La Bourgeois Gentilhomme," and whose antics in preparing himself for his duties in the aristocracy are a source of endless amusement.

BUYS PATERNAL HOME.

William A. Gaston, president of the National Shawmut Bank, is now the owner of the "Captain Gaston Home" in South Attleboro, Ct., where his father, Governor William Gaston, was born. The house, which dates back more than century, is to be restored to its original design.

MORSE MAY GET N. H. LINERS BACK

Mellen Steamships Must Be Sold Because of Passage of the Panama Canal Bill.

IS MUM ABOUT HIS PLANS

News That He Is to Re-enter the Transportation Business Creates a Stir.

THE news that Charles W Morse, former "Ice King" and steamship magnate, and recently a Federal magnet, is about to re-enter the steamship business, caused a stir in financial circles in Boston.

Nothing is known about his plans but when he opened an office in the Wall Street district soon after Congress passed the Panama Canal bill, which makes it obligatory for the New Haven railroad corporation to cease being an amphibious road and to sell out all steamship lines Boston-bers began to conjecture that Mr Morse's liberation from the Atlanta prison might have been on the eve of a great opportunity for his rehabilitation.

Only a few days ago President Mellen of the New Haven Corporation intimated that he might sell out his ocean lines to the Merchants' & Miners' Transportation Company, but now it is more than probable that the Morse syndicate may get them Morse is by no means "broke," and he has powerful financial backing in Boston, New York and all through New England.

There has been considerable discussion as to the interpretation of the Panama Canal law's meaning. Some have declared that if such a railroad company as the New Haven did not send ships through the canal it need not sell its water lines; but here is the wording of the act, which says that no railroad company may own vessels which operate through the Panama Canal OR ELSEWHERE. In case the railroad does or MAY compete with the ocean carriers:

What the Law Says.

From and after the first day of July, 1914, it shall be unlawful for any railroad company or other common carrier subject to the act to regulate commerce, to own, lease, operate, control or have any interest whatsoever (by stock ownership or otherwise, either directly, indirectly, through any bonding company, or by stockholders or directors in common or any other manner) in any common carrier by water, operated through the Panama Canal or elsewhere, with which such railroad or other carrier aforesaid does or may compete for traffic, or any vessel carrying freight or passengers upon said water route or elsewhere; and in case of the violation of this provision, each day in which such violation continues shall be deemed a separate offence.

It is said in New York that Morse is going to establish a steamship line between New York and Boston. When an effort was made by the AMERICAN to interview Mr. Morse on the report he would not be seen.

Morse May Buy N. H. Ships.

When the Panama Canal bill was passed it was said it would be a hardship upon all railroads owning boats, and particularly upon the New Haven and the Southern Pacific. In regard to the Mellen road, it is understood that, under a forced sale, could it gets a customer?

Mr. Morse may be able to answer that. He is one of the ablest men who ever had steamboat interests, and financiers familiar with his career and the meaning of the Panama Canal law are wondering if he is seeking or has obtained backing to make the New Haven an offer for any or all of its sea lines

He might be staving off a conjecture, to do that later even if he starts a new Boston-New York service at once in competition with New Haven lines. The railroad will have about two years in which to sell out of steamships. It has large interests in what were formerly Morse lines, and it would be a strange turn of fortune's wheel if the man who was for a time deprived of liberty under the operation of one Federal statute would be able to regain control of his former marine interests through the operation of another.

Once Controlled Several Lines.

When misfortune befell Mr. Morse, on the eve of the 1907 panic, he controlled the Consolidated Steamship Company, a holding concern capitalized at $50,000,000, which had for operating companies the Clyde, Mallory, New York and Porto Rico, Ward, Eastern and Metropolitan lines Besides the Hudson Navigation Company, which was not included in the Consolidated.

After Mr. Morse was prosecuted by the Government, the Metropolitan and Eastern companies were separated from the Consolidated, but when he got temporary liberty under bail he again got control for a time, under foreclosure proceedings, of the Metropolitan, which was practically bought by the New Haven interests. Hayden, Stone & Company took over the Eastern Steamship Company. The Eastern Steamship Corporation was formed by a merger of the Metropolitan, the Maine and the old Eastern Steamship companies. The New York, New Haven & Hartford, which now controls the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Company, and Long Island Sound lines under the New England Navigation Company, is a large bondholder of the Eastern Steamship Corporation.

BIG SALARIES PAID BOSTON OFFICIALS

A LONG $10,000 COLUMN

Four Bank Presidents Among Others Known to Receive $50,000 a Year.

THESE ARE BOSTON'S 10 HIGHEST PAID MEN.

W. Winslow, President of the United Shoe Machine Co..... $100,000
Theodore N Vail, President of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company $100,000
William M. Wood, President of the American Woolen Company $100,000
William A. Gaston, President of the National Shawmut Bank..... $50,000
Daniel G. Wing, President of the First National Bank..... $50,000
Philip Stockton, President of the Old Colony Trust Company..... $50,000
John M. Graham, President of the International Trust Company. $50,000
Arthur T. Lyman, President of the Massachusetts Hospital Insurance Company $40,000
Alfred D. Foster, President of the New England Life Insurance Company $35,000
Roland D. Lamb, President of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company..... $30,000

Who are the Boston men who get the big salaries?

It depends very much, of course, on what you call a big salary. But take, for instance, what even a budding millionaire might condescend to call big $100 000 a year.

Not one man, but three in Boston get that amount. Perhaps there are more, for it isn't always possible to discover just what a man is paid for his daily toil, but the $100,000 big stand Sidney W. Winslow, Theodore N. Vail and William M. Wood.

Mr. Winslow is the president of the United Shoe Machinery Company. His financial information and experience are vast. To the directors of the giant corporation his services are indispensable. Of course, in Mr. Winslow's case, as in those of the other $100,000 men, he is so much a part of the company he serves that it is not possible to say just how much of his time is given to each, but it is exactly fair to call his $100,000 "salary."

A figure of equal prominence in Boston's business life is Mr. Vail, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company The great organization of which he is the head owes much to his administrative skill. The third man in the "big" list, Mr. Wood, is president of the American Woolen Company. He began life as a mill hand. Now his salary represents only a part of his income.

In the $50,000 Class.

Then we take a slight drop, down to the $50,000 a year. At least four men receive that amount. All are concerned with Big Business. They are:

William A. Gaston, president of the National Shawmut Bank, Daniel G Wing, president of the First National Bank; Philip Stockton, president of the Old Colony Trust Company; John M. Graham, president of the International Trust Company.

Several insurance men receive quite sufficient to keep them in automobiles and Summer homes. Arthur T. Lyman, president of the Massachusetts Hospital Life Insurance Company, receives $40,000. He also is connected with other large interests. Alfred D. Foster, who directs the destinies of the New England Life Insurance Company, receives $35,000 for doing it. Roland O. Lamb, president of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company, does almost as well, with $30,000

Passing from finance, the railroads come next in line as regards the size of salaries. Timothy P. Shea gets $25,000 for being vice-president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. Without doubt that is a small slice of his income. Herbert R. Fisher, treasurer of the Boston & Maine, has a salary estimated at something more than $20,000. James H. Hustis, a vice-president of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad, collects $25,000 for administering the affairs of the Boston & Albany.

Long $10,000 Column.

All the men hereinfore considered are wealthy. They are closely identified with their various enterprises. Now we come to those who at jobs—some of them very exalted, but still jobs, for which the Government receives "pay." In this class there is a long list of $10,000 salaries.

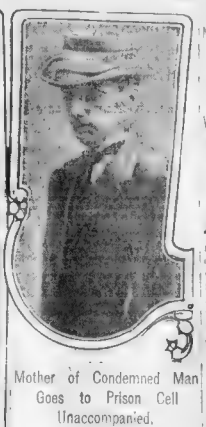
F. E Dyer, our new Superintendent of Schools, gets $10,000. So does President L. H. Morris of Boston University. Richard M. McLaurin, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, receives the same amount. Rev. Dr. George A. Gordon, pastor of the Old South Church, receives $10,000. Bishop Lawrence of the Episcopal diocese gets as much. Rev. Alexander Mann's salary as rector of Trinity Church is not far from that amount. Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham, pastor of the Arlington Street Church, is in the same $10,000 class.

Spencer Greets Mother

Talk in the Death House

"Whatever my fate, mother, I shall be content. Whatever the Governor and Council decide for me will be satisfactory."—Bertram G. Spencer to his mother, at the death cell in Charlestown State Prison, yesterday

Snapshot of Mrs. Spencer taken yesterday as she was coming from death house at Charlestown, after an interview with her son. Spencer is shown as he appeared entering the death house on Friday.



Mother of Condemned Man Goes to Prison Cell Unaccompanied.

Bertram G Spencer the Springfield burglar who shot and killed Miss Martha B. Eckstorm, a school teacher, in the last of a series of brutal thefts that terrorized the city for a year and a half, and who has only another week to live unless his life is spared by the Governor's Council on Wednesday, said his mother yesterday in a death cell of the Charlestown State Prison that whatever fate awaited him he was ready to meet it.

Buoyed by the help that has come from religious faith, Spencer chatted and smiled with his mother, and not once were there any of the cringing manifestations that marked his trial in Springfield. When Mrs. Spencer finally left she went with these words from her son ringing in her ears:

"Whatever my fate, mother, I shall be content. Whatever the Governor and Council decide for me will be satisfactory."

Spencer is sentenced to die the week beginning September 16. Unless clemency is shown he will probably be put to death a little after midnight a week from next Tuesday morning.

Hears Prison Rules.

Mrs. Spencer came to Boston from her home in Connecticut. She was not expected. She came to the South Station and then inquired her way to the Charlestown State Prison. She reached the prison office at 2 o'clock. She asked for Warden Bridges, and was told that he was absent

"What is in charge of the prison?" she asked in a voice hardly above a whisper.

"Deputy Warden Allen," she was told.

"I should like to see him, please," said the black-robed, quiet woman.

Then she asked the attendant:

"I am Mrs. Spencer—Bert Spencer's mother" She faltered.

Mrs. Spencer was taken into an anteroom immediately and given a chair Deputy Warden Allen was summoned When he arrived and was told by Mrs. Spencer that she wanted to see her son he explained to her the rules of the prison.

"You must not kiss your son, Mrs Spencer You must not shake hands with him, even You may remain with him an hour or longer if you desire and you may come again when you wish I am glad to tell you that your son is very cheerful. I have been with him a great deal."

Mrs. Spencer listened to Deputy Allen very attentively and when he had finished she said she understood and thanked him for his kindness.

Greets Condemned Son.

Allen then escorted Mrs. Spencer down the stone steps from the office through the prison yard to the entrance of the death cells. Allen knocked on the iron door. It was opened and the deputy stepped in, followed by Mrs. Spencer. Allen walked over to Cell No. 1 in which Spencer sat—the same cell that Clarence W. T. Richeson occupied. The condemned young man sat on a stool reading from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy.

"Spencer," said Allen, "there is some one here to see you."

Spencer arose and laid the open book, back upward, on his cot. He started toward the iron door of his cell and look-

MONSTER RUBY FOR RIGO.

Indian Prince Presents Gypsy Fiddler With Flaming Token.

Paris, Sept. 7.—What is said by some to be the biggest ruby in the world, has been presented to Janesy Rigo by Indian Prince Nitisen Dwarkadas, of Paris and Bombay. The cost of it is said to have been $25,000, and the occasion of the presentation, the twenty-fifth anniversary of Rigo's playing the violin in Paris. The ruby is set in a gold frame on which is engraved the following inscription:

"Presented to Janesy Rigo king of violinists, by Nitisen Dwarkadas, of Paris and Bombay."

The former Princess de Chimay was present at the presentation and said:

Rigo leaves for America on October 18

"DEAD MAN" TURNS UP.

My Name off Death List."

Auringer of Detroit Says "Take

ALBANY, Sept. 7.—"Please scratch my name off the death list." was the request contained in a communication received today by Dr Porter, State Commissioner of Health, from John M. Auringer of Detroit According to the department records, the body of a man drowned in the Erie canal at DeWitt in May, 1911, was identified as Auringer by his daughter and two brothers.

Auringer had disappeared from his home shortly before the body was discovered.

WOMEN DANCE TURKEY TROT ON WARSHIPS, SAY SAILORS

Navy Enlisted Men, Stirred by American's Expose of Saunder's Discharge, Make More Charges Against Officers

Women Dined on Board Ship and Taken on Trip to Sea by Captain in Violation of Rules, Say Men on the McCall

A SHAKEUP of the whole submarine service of the United States Navy is expected to result from the exposure of conditions in the second group of submarines at Provincetown in the AMERICAN last Sunday. The Navy Department has already begun an investigation and an independent investigation is likely to be undertaken by the House Committee on Naval Affairs In the meantime fresh charges are being made by the sailors, who assert that on the destroyer McCall the "turkey trot" is practised by women.

In an interview with Washington representative of this newspaper Rear Admiral I. Cone, acting Secretary of the Navy admitted that a series of accidents has occurred to the submarines, and in some cases men have been suspected of wilfully bringing them about

The high-handed method of Junior Lieutenant W. G. Child, who in spite of 6 youths and low rank is acting commander of five submarines at Provincetown, i sending S. L. Saunders out of the navy with an unproved charge was one of the his discharge papers, will probably cause a separate investigation, for Congressman William F. Murray of the Ninth District has been appealed to by Saunders, who is one of his constituents, and Congressman Murray intends to find out what rights a United States sailor has in a case where a court martial fails to find him guilty

Sailors Reiterate Charges.

The following letter has been received from a group of sailors who read the AMERICAN with the original information, which events have proved absolutely truthful

The Sunday AMERICAN created consternation, and all through Monday our officers were sleuthing and scouting to find out who gave all the information Several of the sailors were called into the skipper's office on most of the ships and questioned severely. We are aware that we are suspected and that something may be framed up for us. Should they try to make out a case against any of us we will need all the help and support your paper can give

I would like to ask if the Boston AMERICAN will protect and furnish counsel for us if events take such a turn and the need becomes apparent? When it is necessary we can be depended upon to repeat our statements and as long as with people sitting upon it who are impartial will bring out more damaging facts than so far recorded

A second letter from men on the U. S. S. McCall, one of the second destroyer group, also at Provincetown and commanded by Lieutenant Hugh Osterhaus, son of the admiral in command of the Atlantic fleet, would seem to indicate that the conditions which prevail upon the submarines extends to the destroyers. This says

Women Taken on Trip.

Our case is very similar to the one published in the Sunday AMERICAN, in fact almost identical. A case happened today which made the crew exceptionally bitter against the navy. A man with over twenty years' service was liberated from machinist's mate, first-class, to machinist's mate, second class and given five days' solitary because he dared to be insulted to one of the captain. A man's record for long service counts for nothing We work long hours and do lots of unnecessary work. The regulations of the navy are being broken continually by the skipper, and when an enlisted man commits an offence he always receives "the limit."

While we were in Newport women were taken out on a trip, a thing that is strictly against the regulations. It was at torpedo practise and the captain gave them a dinner. He was afraid to steam in view of the fleet at anchor, but went up Narragansett Bay, down around Conanicut Island and back the same way.

Women are frequently in the

cabin doing the turkey trot and such dances, and on one such occasion one of the women changed her clothes for a baseball suit to "rag" in.

Lieutenant W. G. Childs, who commands the second group and is skipper of D-3, which had ground glass placed in her motor bearings, is censured by naval officers to have exceeded his authority in writing his suspicions upon the discharge of Electrician Saunders.

Only "Suspected."

Saunders was tried upon the charge of attempting to destroy the machinery of D-3. The only evidence against him was a cut on his hand and a bloody fingerprint upon the ground glass can. Experts in Washington could not find that the fingerprint was made by Saunders and on this against him collapsed. Child reported his suspicions to the commander of the fleet and as Saunders's enlistment was up he was ordered by the commander of the fleet to give the man an "ordinary" instead of an honorable discharge.

Lieutenant Child took it upon himself to exceed the fleet commander's instructions and wrote in red ink upon the discharge paper, "Suspected of attempting to destroy the machinery of D-3," and gave him and given an ordinary discharge by order of the commander of the fleet.

This while the navy could not punish Saunders for a deed which a court martial was unable to find he had committed, Lieutenant Child succeeded in preventing the man from securing employment anywhere by his red ink addition to the "ordinary discharge."

Saunders declares he will never rest until that red ink charge is erased from his discharge papers.

NAVY DEPARTMENT ADMITS AN INQUIRY INTO THE ACCIDENTS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 7.—While officials of the Navy Department admitted today that investigation is in progress concerning a series of accidents to the "D" group of submarines of the Atlantic fleet, they denied specifically that any official complaints had reached here from men of the fleet concerning their treatment by their officers. When queried concerning reported complaints Rear Admiral L. Cone, Acting Secretary of the Navy, said:

No such complaint has reached here. We have on record an anonymous letter purporting to come from the family of one of the enlisted men, complaining about treatment meted out to privates in the navy, but the naval officers themselves have not filed any complaint of this kind.

The service has not in their power to punish unjustifiable reflections on any justice, but of course they can refer complaint directly to the department or to commanding officers of their squadron who would in turn forward a letter here. But neither of these has occurred, and I am inclined to believe any reports of ill-treatment in the submarine fleet are without foundation.

I understand the men complained of a number of details, of their food and of their living conditions on board the fleet.

There is no naval regulation that limits hours of enlistment duty to eight hours, as is alleged to be claimed by enlisted men. Men, I believe often put in sixteen or eighteen hours a day.

The officers of a fleet have it in their discretion to make permanent any appointment as well as to impose fines on men for non-observance of orders or for lack of attention to duty. We have strict conditions for our officers to believe that they will not overstep bounds of decency in these matters, and if we have any complaint, I must decline to discuss charges.

The food on board submarines is exactly the same as that served on board larger vessels. But if anything, it is better. The men's alleged complaint that they are served coffee and tea without milk or cream, which is not allowed any deserts, is false. I, myself, have investigated menus of submarine foods, and I know of no such red mush better than they allege.

We have no reason to believe that series of unfortunate accidents which has occurred to the "D" group is any way connected with any mutiny among men, but as is always the case, the department has ordered an investigation of accidents.

No complaint has reached here concerning illegal punishments alleged to have been given by younger officers on boats, and we have no intention of investigating unless such complaint be filed.

KOSHER DEALERS REOPEN.

Co-operative Stores Closed Now for More Than Week.

Local kosher meat dealers have resumed business. The co-operative stores that also started since the opening of the kosher meat strike have been closed for more than a week and the orders is now going back to the retail dealers. Some of the dealers claim that the strike has resulted in a victory for the poor.

Strike leaders claim that the co-operative shops will open again. Meldon co-operative shops are not successful, according to some patrons, who claim that the meat sold there is of an inferior quality. A mass meeting will be held to try to procure better meat from the wholesalers.

SOON TO OPEN NEW HOME.

Four-Story Immigrant's Shelter Completed at $30,000 Cost.

Officers of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the New England annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church are planning the opening of their "New Immigrants' Home" at No. 72 Marion street, East Boston early next month.

The new building is about completed, at a cost of $30,000, and the officers plan to have the building dedicated before the annual meeting in October. Invitations have been sent to national officers to attend.

The new building is four stories, of brick.

CHAUFFEUR IS HELD.

Child of Eight Was Killed on Revere Beach Parkway.

Willard V. Pryor, chauffeur for Isaac Davenport of Richmond, Va., was held in $2,000 bail for the Grand Jury in the Chelsea court yesterday on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Annie Levine, three years old, of No. 54 Hill street, Boston, on the Revere Beach parkway, Aug. 17. The child was on an outing at the beach, and ran back across the street for a lost pump in the sand when her sister was on the way home. The death is one of four caused by automobiles at the beach this season. Pryor furnished bail and was released.

POMEROY MASTER OF SEVERAL LANGUAGES

With Aid of Books, Convict Is Up in French, German, Spanish and Italian.

Jesse Pomeroy, the notable life prisoner in the Charlestown State prison, who is said to have served longer in solitary confinement than any other known prisoner in the world, today begins his thirty-seventh year behind the grim walls that hold him.

Doomed to live alone in the narrow confines of a cheerless cell, Pomeroy through his marvellous gift of languages talks through books to more men and women of various ages and tongues than probably any other man outside of the big colleges.

Having no work to do—and he would not do it, if he had—he puts in all his time in reading and writing. Many years ago he began the study of other languages than his own. He took up the living languages and with only the use of grammars and dictionaries became proficient in French, German, Spanish and Italian.

Then he devoted his attention to the so-called dead languages, and many otherwise dreary days and weeks and years were passed in comparative comfort while he lived in the ages and with the scholars that have gone.

One Hope Is Freedom.

Pomeroy is fifty-four years old now. He is bent and gray. He has made numerous attempts at escape. His faithful, aged mother has made repeated attempts to obtain his pardon. But all their efforts have failed.

The dream of his solitary life, of course, is his musing moments when he is not scribbled in his books, is freedom. He thinks that he would like to be able to walk the streets of Boston—the streets of South Boston as he did as a boy.

But many believe that after so long a life of monotony with his books that the things of the world would prove as unattracting to him as they would to one who had devoted his life to the quiet of the cloister.

The lonely prisoner began a fight for freedom as far back as 1876 when Rice was Governor of the State. His petition has been presented to every Governor since. Governor Foss, after previously looking into the case, deemed it unwise to liberate Pomeroy.

Pomeroy obtains his books through Chaplain Stebbins from the prison library. He cares little for fiction. During the past year he has read the following books:

Has Read Many Books.

"Desert Ways to Bagdad"
"Three Years in Persia."
"Bagdad Railways"
"Mar time Law."
"Letters from the Levant"
"Die Herz Haimbeh" (in German)
"Beating the Veil in Persia"
"Arabs in Work"
"Ibrahim Aegi"
"Governor of Egypt."
"Life and Adventures Beyond the Jordan."
"Semitic Language."
"Short Cut to India."
"Customes Ines Arabes" (in French)

Pomeroy talks little, even to his mother, Mrs. Ruth A. Pomeroy of North Weymouth, who visits him once a month and furnishes him with extra food. He lives in a world that is as dead as his prospects for freedom—a past that is as silent as the grave.

He is in what is known as the Cherry Hill section of the prison. Of late years he has made little or no trouble. His chances of doing so are very slight.

MORGAN BACK OF CLAIM.

Staggering Sum Demanded of Mexican Government.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 7.—A claim for $195,190,304.80, arising out of the celebrated Manning and Mortimore demand, which was allowed by Benito Juarez, when President, has been presented to Minister of Finance Ernesto Madero. It is believed here that J. Pierpont Morgan is back of the claim. The demand, which is for principal and interest, amounts to more than half of the national debt of the republic.

M'CABE ALSO MAY GO.

Many in Capitol Believe Quiet "Clean-Up" Is Under Way.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The resignation of F. L. Dunlap, a member of the Pure Food Board, and the discoverer of "irregularities" committed by Dr. H. W. Wiley, has caused the rumor to start again in Washington that Solicitor Adams is also intending the leave the government service for private employment. Many are of the opinion that a quiet "clean-up" of the department is under way.

$1,00,000 "L" Claims.

Suits for about $1,000,000 have been filed against the Boston Elevated for car accidents and other occurrences during the strike. In Suffolk county the damages sought in more than 100 actions aggregate $768,500.

PATROLMAN KING WEDS MARY CAREY OF DEDHAM, OCT. 23

Patrolman Walter B. King of Station 13, Jamaica Plain, is to be married on Oct. 23 to Miss Mary Catherine Carey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Carey of No. 90 Clark street, Dedham.

The ceremony will take place in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Dedham, and there will be a reception at the bride's home. Miss Carey is a graduate of the Dedham High School, a musician and a lover of aquatic sports.

SPENCER MEETS HIS MOTHER IN PRISON

ing through the bars caught sight of his mother. He stretched out his arm toward her and then, realizing that he would not be allowed to touch his mother, let them down. He smiled cheerfully.

"Mother, mom are you?" he asked. "I'm awfully glad to see you."

"How are you feeling, Bert?" she asked in a low, trembling tone.

"I'm fee-ine for mother," replied the young man in remarkably cheerful tones.

One of the men on the death watch placed a chair in front of the cell door for the mother and she sat down. As the sibling prevented her from getting nearer than two feet to the door which, of course, was closed.

Guard at Cell Door.

The death watch sat near Mrs. Spencer as witness to the interview. The opening conversation between the mother and son related to her trip to the prison. They talked for an hour and a half.

"Minnie will be down to see you next week, Bert," said the mother, referring to his wife. "I'll be down again and Mr. Perkins will come to see you."

Mr. Perkins is a member of the Christian Science Church. Spencer asked if there was any news about the petition presented to Governor Foss and the Council asking for clemency.

"Your lawyer is going to take some action," said Mrs. Spencer, "but he will be down to see you about it, himself."

It was at this point in the talk that Spencer told his mother that no matter what happened he would be content. While they were in the cells of the prisoners who is a member of the prison orchestra could be heard rendering on a cornet:

"My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

Because of the oppressive heat the door to the yard had been left open and through it came the cheers and shouts incident to a baseball game that was being played between two nines composed of prisoners. Mrs. Spencer left, promising to come again soon.

Gazes at Prison Walls.

"How glad you find your son'" Mrs. Spencer was asked.

"Bert is very, very cheerful, surprisingly so," she replied.

She walked to the elevated station at Thompson's square she stepped on the ride form. Her eyes sought the gray walls of the prison. She stood gazing through Austin street at the big building. Then after train passed it from sight dropped her veil over her face and boarding a car started home.

GREATEST BUILDING BOOM YET IN BOSTON

Stores, Banks, Factories and Homes Going Up All Over Greater City.

city. The Filene and Gilchrist buildings they. Already steps are being taken by Houghton & Dutton to move that the Boston building boom will not be overlooked by this enterprising firm.

Other firms during the past months have been consulting architects about alterations and proposed enlargements of their present quarters.

The retail trade is demanding these changes. It is constantly increasing. It must find more and more modern buildings and it is generally felt that a new building with an up-to-date equipment will count a larger patronage.

It has already been found so in other cities where for the retail trade in this city.

Scollay square will soon witness a radical change. Many of the old buildings fronting on this square will be torn down and replaced with modern structures. Plans have been already submitted and at no distant day, a new enterprise in the building line may be looked for in this section.

Around Tremont row many changes are expected. Old structures will be razed within the next three months for new fireproof buildings.

Orient Heights, a part of East Boston, has had the largest building boom within the past six months of any section of Boston. Hundreds of homes are being constructed.

St. Paul's Church on Tremont street, which has been made the cathedral of the Episcopal Church in Massachusetts, will undergo repairs next Spring at a cost of $250,000. The whole front of the building will be changed and brought on a level with the street.

Last Year's Figures Doubled.

Besides new buildings in Boston, the alterations and enlargements in buildings have been more extensive than for the past five years.

The figures for these every month go well into the thousands.

To show how the increase in building has doubled over last year will be indicated in the following figures.

In 1911, 101 brick buildings for six months were built at a cost of $3,032,950. In the same period for 1912, 239 buildings were erected at a cost of $7,018,075.

In 1911, 600 wooden buildings were erected for six months, at a cost of $2,242,470. In 1912, 801 wooden buildings were built at a cost of $4,980,615.

WOBURN MARRIAGE SECRET FOR MONTHS

Mr. and Mrs. David C. Bailey Now Receiving Congratulations on Event Last Spring.

A hidden romance, crowned by a marriage kept secret for nearly six months, has just come to light in Woburn, where the friends of David E. Bailey, twenty-three, and Nellie F. Buxton, twenty-one, were startled yesterday by learning that the pair are really man and wife.

The marriage was the outcome of a romance that began when both were schoolmates in the Morse Street school and that continued when both were in the Woburn High school, of which they are graduates.

Saying nothing of their intention, the pair went to Nashua, N. H., on Monday morning in the early Spring, and there were married by the Rev. Edward C. Stroud of the Nashua Methodist Church. They returned at once to Woburn, and went to their parents' without telling of their marriage.

None of their intimates knew of the marriage until a day or two ago, when the news created a sensation in the town, where both are widely known. Mr. Bailey is a son of W. E. Bailey, senior member of the Bailey & Blendinger Manufacturing Company of Natick.

TRACE HIGH COST OF COAL TO SHORTAGE

A reason for the steadily mounting price of hard coal in Boston is found in the report of the Chamber of Commerce on the amount of coal brought to Boston for the first eight months of the current year.

While the anthracite arrivals were heavy in August, nevertheless there is a shortage of upward of 220,000 tons when compared with the figures for the corresponding period a year ago.

Only 1,071,266 tons of Anthracite coal have come to Boston, both by rail and water, during the eight months ending August 31. This is just 220,943 tons less than last year.

This shortage is caused by the small arrivals in the late Spring and early Summer as a result of the coal strikes, only 15,000 tons coming to Boston during May.

August, however, was a banner month, with 187,984 tons, an increase of 30,007 tons over the same month a year ago.

The soft coal situation is the antithesis of the hard coal. 3,266,360 tons of bituminous coal coming to Boston during the first eight months of the year. This is an increase of 841,460 tons over the corresponding period last year.

SQUANTUM WOMEN LEAD.

Get Site for Clubhouse after the Men Failed.

Squantum women have stolen a march on the men. A special committee of the Squantum Improvement Association tried two weeks ago to select a site for a clubhouse and failed. The members of the Squantum Women's Club in two days found a site and secured an option on land facing Dorchester Bay for a clubhouse of their own.

The building committee is Mrs. Wilhelm A. Reed, chairman; Mrs. T. F. Calihan, Mrs. C. E. Carlson, Mrs. L. P. Titus, Mrs. Gustavus Wunderlich, Mrs. W. N. Kenyon and Mrs. John R. Nelson.

Caught on Ice Tong.

STOMACH BAD? SOUR FOOD? BELCHING GAS AND WANT TO FEEL FINE?

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and you feel as though you had fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Diapepsin and in five minutes you truly will wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

HENRY SIEGEL CO.

A FINE MUSICAL PROGRAM BY OUR ORCHESTRA — RESTAURANT 12 TO 2

...ure | In Our Restaurant Every Afternoon This Week

Kinemacolor Motion Pictures are truly the scientific achievement of the age. That Nature's restless energies should be captured at our pleasure by motion pictures is wonder enough, but that her very complexion should be stolen and depicted is still more wonderful and astonishing. All this is possible. The Kinemacolor pictures not only catch every movement in detail, but portray Nature in all her beauty, from the rainbow of the sky to the hidden wonders of the sea. They are beautiful beyond description. No tint is too delicate to be caught and portrayed by Kinemacolor. They are reproductions of Nature's own self, realistic beyond the question of the most fastidious. The Waltzes throw wonderful motion pictures to see the dream of centuries come true—the perfection of photography, expectations and prophecies. Nature's wonderful phenomena, the beautiful scenic the people, their habits and customs, homes and industries of all parts of the world have been kinemacolored. The kinemacolor of life itself, the sunshine and shadows, anticipations and disappointments of the ocean, of the human life are brought out in detail. Nine's humor is looked until the most sedate grouch finds himself holding his sides laughing and enjoying himself as never before. Kinemacolor Motion Pictures have met with enthusiastic indorsement of many of the world's great newspapers, educators, entertainers, business men and clergy, as being the height of perfection, also educational and entertaining.

Admission Free by Ticket Main Floor

Tickets will be admitted. New show begins every half hour, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Matinee daily at 2:30. All children accompanied by adults. Hub, 1 and 1:30. The Siegel stores are the first department stores in the country to secure the privilege of showing the exhibitions of Kinemacolor Motion Pictures. Here is the entertaining and interesting programme:

RICHESON'S BODY IS IN VILLAGE CEMETERY

Beautiful Flowers From Unknown Boston Sender Adorn Virginia Grave.

AMHERST, Va., Sept. 7.—The body of Clarence V. T. Richeson, electrocuted in Boston for the murder of Avis Linnell the girl who once sang in the young clergyman's church, has been removed from the family plot on the Richeson farm and buried in the village cemetery here.

Flowers have been shipped here all the way from Boston with much regularity and they have been placed on the grave. It is the general belief here among those there is no verification of the fact, that floral remembrances come from Miss Avis Linnell Edmands, to whom Richeson was affianced to be married when he gave Avis Linnell cyanide of potassium to get her out of the way.

The reburial of the body of the executed man caused much quiet talk here. When the body was shipped here from Boston it was taken to the Richeson farm, three miles from here, on the crest of Richeson Mountain. The farm lies on the highest range of the elevation, which is known as Tobacco Row.

On the Richeson farm is a small family burial plot and here the body of the former clergyman was placed. Miss Russell Richeson, sister of the man who met his doom in the electric chair, and who went to see her brother before his death in Boston, was responsible for the removal of the body.

Colonel Varland Richeson, the father, it is understood, wanted the body to remain undisturbed. Miss Richeson persisted in her determination to have the body placed in the cemetery where their mother was buried, and she was permitted to have her way.

But she was not able to have the new grave at the side of her mother's. It is in the same churchyard but some distance away. On the day the body was reinterred a box of fresh flowers reached her from Boston. The flowers were taken from the box and placed on the newly made mound.

At the head of the grave there was placed a simple granite cross about which clings wilted flowers. The gravestone was placed there by Miss Richeson. On the arms of the cross are these words.

Asleep in Jesus.

Happy Colony in Westwood Where They Fool the Trusts

Clergyman's "Fellowship Farm" Laughs at High Prices

How Rev. G. E. Littlefield Has Solved Living Problem With Nature's Aid.

In the picture at the top, left to right, are: A. G. Langhera, "handy man"; the Rev. George E. Littlefield, promoter of the co-operative farm plan; Mrs. Littlefield, his wife and partner; Mrs. Littlefield, his mother; Mrs. M. C. Gardner, occupant of one of the $50 homes, and Mrs. E. A. Berry, sister of Mr. Littlefield. Below is a $250 house built by Miss Frances Lyon, an artist of Brooklyn. The large photograph at the side is of Mrs. Lee Luther, another Brooklyn artist.

The Rev. George E. Littlefield, pastor of the Baptist church at Westwood, just beyond Dedham, better known as Fellowship Farm, defies the trusts, chuckles when the high cost of living is mentioned and pursues serenely their own life.

In a word, they are getting back to nature, taking advantage of natural resources, making the best of every opportunity by following the simple life in its truest sense and becoming independent and contented.

Fact becomes a producer as well as a consumer, thereby fooling the trusts. The colonists have boiled as it were from the scheme of existence mapped out by the captains of finance and production and have settled down into an existence planned after ideas of their own.

Whole String of Colonies.

The co-operative colony at Westwood has proved so successful Mr. Littlefield has started five others a whole chain of them stretching across the continent. One of his great acquisitions is a ranch in the Lucky Baldwin tract at Los Angeles Cal.

At each one of the colonies Mr. Littlefield has established a co-operative store, and the preacher's plan is a co-operative bank, so that the syndicate of communities will be so federated as to be almost entirely independent of the rest of the world.

"When we get matters working as outlined, our communities can actually thrive without money," said the clergyman.

A Sunday AMERICAN reporter rode to Dedham and took a trolley car to Pond street, Westwood.

The advocate of simple living was hard at work at a pump behind his house. He is in middle life, short and slight, and back to might be taken for a boy except for his frosted hair.

Couple Built Own House.

"My principles?" said he, with a radiant face. "This pump here exemplifies them. Cost only $11.25. My wife and I bored the well and set up the whole thing.

"See that house? She and I built it. Took us more than three months. Never handled a tool before, either of us. But we overcame problems as they arose. Not such a bad job, is it?

"For rooms on first floor and two in attic, but quite finished. Some trimming to be done yet. Notice the living room? Large as big as ordinary apartments and chock full of comfort. No style, you understand, just for ease and contentment and plenty of room.

"See all those interesting little bungalows and houses at the foot of the hills? The homes of the members of our colony—all on the principles of Fellowship Farm. Built them themselves just as my wife and I did our larger one, and now they have shelter and comfort and a door to close against the woes of the trusts.

"I used to be a printer in Rosedale my town. I met the Rev. Edward Everett Hale. He made a minister of me. I took courses at Harvard. I had three pulpits the last in Neponset. But I wasn't satisfied with myself in the ministry.

"I would suggest things and my flock would balk. I got tired of seeing people preaching and not practicing what they preached. Then I hit upon this plan. I jumped out of the pulpit and got back to nature and God's plain, green earth. I got back to the land.

"This place was bought for $5,000 in 1909. We paid $1,000 down. There are forty acres. We started with thirty-eight members or holders. Some began with investments of $250. Think of it. And now they own their homes.

"All but $1,500 of the mortgage has been paid. Like the first air ship, Westwood has not been altogether successful. It marked the beginning. It was the experiment, but it has worked and paved the way for larger and more prosperous colonies.

"I should say the Westwood settlement is about 70 per cent. successful. I tried to erect a co-operative hotel here, but the members didn't buckle down to it. My other five colonies are to have hotels and some have already.

"The hotel idea rounds out my principle. From Atlantic to Pacific the farmers and producers have been pinched, lost heavily or failed because of the grasping middleman. With our co-operative hotel plan we eliminate the middleman.

"My system calls for a division of yield into thirds—one third for the consumption of producers, one third for our hotel tables patronized by summer or all year guests and one third for our auto truck routes and co-operative stores.

"What has the high cost of living got to do with us? We have all our vegetables and care nothing for inflated meat prices when our beef is running around on four legs. See that corn and those eggs for supper? They are less than half a day old.

SHAFT UNVEILED TO SIX MEN OF DORSET

Early Martyrs of Trades Unionism Honored in Native Place In England.

Of profound interest to trade unionists all over the world is the story of the Six Men of Dorset, to whom a monument has just been unveiled in their native village of Tolpuddle, Dorsetshire, England.

These six laborers, finding that the time had come when they could no longer keep body and soul together on the miserable pittance which their masters paid them, raised for a increase of one shilling a week. Such a startlingly impudent demand was flatly refused. The men held a meeting to consider their position. This was conspiracy. They were arrested, convicted and promptly sent into transportation for seven years.

And now, less than seventy years later, a monument is unveiled to the memory of these, the "Early Martyrs of Trades Unionism."

To Boston their story has a timely and local interest, for it was on the old British convict ship Success, which now lies, an exhibition relic, at Warren bridge, near North Station, that these men were transported and served the first and most cruel part of their infamous sentence.

The time was at the passing of the Great Reform bill when the hopes of the workers were many but their realizations few. The six men honored in the monument lived at sleepy Tolpuddle. They were George and James Loveless, both Wesleyan local preachers; James Hammett, Thomas Stanfield, also a local preacher; John Standfield and James Brine, all described as "honest, industrious, God-fearing men, whose only desire was to obtain better conditions of living for themselves and their neighbors."

Food was high and wages were low. Wages formerly nine shillings a week were reduced to eight, then to seven. Their principal food was barely bread on which they would spread some boiled weeds instead of butter.

With all these hardships it was reported that the farmers intended to lower the wages to six shillings a week. This was more than human nature could endure. The six men met and consulted.

They could not exist long under the conditions, so when two delegates from a friendly society paid them a visit they agreed to band themselves together to improve their lot. The landlords and farmers posted placards threatening to punish any man joining a trade union with seven years transportation.

On February 24, 1834, these men were clapped into prison, stripped, searched and had their heads shorn even before they were brought before their accusers.

The notorious Judge Williams passed sentence of seven years, as promised, adding these illuminating words: "Not for anything that you have done, or as I can prove you intend to do, but AS AN EXAMPLE TO OTHERS I consider it my duty to pass this sentence upon each and everyone of you."

BOSTON STRIVING FOR HEALTH RECORD

Deaths in Past Eight Months 452 Less Than in Same Period of 1911.

Boston is out for a new record. This time it's health, and it bids fair to add for the records for the past eight months show 452 less deaths than in the corresponding periods of 1911.

A large part of this improvement is said to be due to the work of the new Division of the Health Department for the care of infants and mothers with infants, the number of deaths of infants this year so far being 327 less than up to September 1 of last year.

The only disease that has been more prevalent this year than last has been the measles, the number of cases being 4,334 this year and 2,647 last year, and the deaths resulting being sixty-nine this year as against fifty-three last year.

There were 76 scarlet fever cases to 1,143 last year, and 1,020 cases of diphtheria this year to 1,417 last year.

BABY DROWNS IN TUB.

Lynn Child Falls in While Mother Is Absent for Moment.

Thomas E. Hooker, Jr., one year and three months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Hooker of No. 63 Camden street, Lynn, was drowned yesterday in a tub. Mrs. Hooper left the house for a few moments. The baby was playing in the kitchen. His mother found him in a washtub which stood on the floor. Attempts at resuscitation were vain.

GIRLS! GIRLS! SURELY TRY THIS! DOUBLE-BEAUTY OF YOUR HAIR

All you need is a 25 cent bottle of "Danderine"—Hair gets lustrous, fluffy and abundant at once.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

A delightful surprise awaits, particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff, cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use of Danderine, when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

FRENCHMAN'S DARING FIGHT FOR FORTUNE RIVALS RUSSELL CASE

Impostor Undone by Woman After Proving That "Father" Did Not See Him Go to the Grave

Ignorant Soldier, with Criminal Record, Wins Right to Inheritance, Although the Rightful Claimant Was Dead; Witnesses Declare Claimant Is All He Calls Himself Despite the Fact He Was Afterward Proved an Impostor

STRIKINGLY alike in many of its phases to the great Russell will inheritance dispute, which is to be resumed a week from tomorrow before Master Pevey in the East Cambridge Court, is a celebrated French case in which a soldier, named Pierre Mege, laid claim to the inheritance of Isaac de Castellane, the son of a Lord.

Although it was known that Castellane was dead, having died in the presence of his father, Mege claimed an estate that was to have gone to the dead man from Castellane's aunt, Madame Rolland. The fight was kept up for thirteen years. Mege won for a time and even married (committing bigamy) after the courts decided in his favor

Rolland, the husband of Madame Rolland, carried the case into Paris, where the parliament finally decided that the claimant was an impostor. He was thrown into jail, where he died as preparations were being made to prosecute him for bigamy.

Although the soldier was an illiterate fraud who bore no resemblance to the man he pretended to be, and could tell little or nothing about the relatives he claimed, yet 110 witnesses swore he was Castellane, who was absolutely known to be dead'

One hundred and thirty witnesses swore that the claimant was Pierre Mege and fifty-four more declared that he was not Castellane All of the Castellane family (known as the De Caille family) repudiated the pretender

There was in this old case just the clash of oaths that there has been and will be in the Russell case—the tense and bitter feeling engendered The French case was decided in Paris just 200 years ago and was printed in the Eclectic Magazine forty years ago, it being dug up by Dr. Charles W. Rodgers, a bookworm of Harvard street, Dorchester

The account of the French case concludes with this remark:

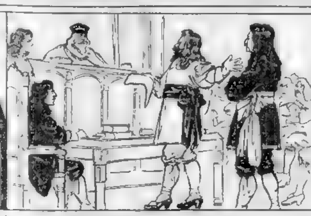
> Enough has been printed to show that boldness and effrontery are principally needed for successful imposture, and that the clearest and most unimpeachable evidence is sometimes scarcely sufficient to combat successfully the fraudulent designs of those who possess such qualities.

There is no dispute but that at least one of the men in the Russell case—either Fresno Dan or Dakota Dan—fits the description given.

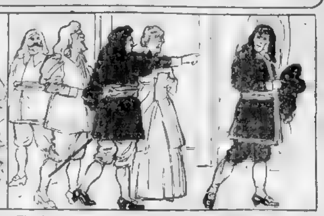
The story of the French case as related in the magazine is in part as follows:

STRIKING INCIDENTS IN TWO REMARKABLE CONTESTS OVER BIRTHRIGHTS TOLD IN PICTURES.

Pierre Mege, a soldier and an impostor, is accepted as Isaac de Castellane.



In court witnesses were found who testified both ways, many supporting the claimant.



The impostor is finally deprived of the inheritance and punished for bigamy.

DECLARE CLAIMANT IS AN IMPOSTOR.

The Criminal Court now issued an order that the claimant should be taken to Manosque and other places, and confronted with those who could speak positively to his identity one way or the other, and as this [illegible] Monsieur Rolland, who had come to Toulon on behalf of his wife, demanded permission to proceed against the soldier as Pierre Mege and accordingly this was done. Twenty witnesses swore that he was Pierre Mege, the son of a convict in the galleys, and some of them said they had possessed an acquaintance with him extending over twenty years. Others with as great certainty swore that he was not Isaac, the eldest son of Monsieur de Caille, (Castellane) with whom they had been fellow-students.

It might have been supposed that this evidence would have utterly disconcerted any impostor. But the countenance of the soldier expressed little besides firmness and courage, and many saw only in his calm and self-collected manner a determination to win back his own in spite of everything and notwithstanding the fact that appearances were [illegible] greatly against him. He demanded that he should be confronted with Monsieur Rolland in the presence of his judge. He charged that gentleman with having attempted to poison him whilst in jail, and he succeeded in thus exciting the sympathies of the public in his favor. Finally he demanded that the order of the court that he should visit the places where Isaac de Castellane was known should be carried out.

After much delay he was taken to Aix, and on the road an attack, instigated, the prisoner alleged, by Monsieur Rolland, was made upon him by three men, who put a pistol to his head and tried to compel him to escape; and his keeper swore to the truth of this statement, and said that he had to come to his rescue. This part of the story was never thoroughly cleared up, but at the time it certainly strengthened the soldier's case.

Father Said Son Was Not Living.

Monsieur de Caille, Isaac's father, who was all this time in Switzerland and unable to attend the trials personally on account of the laws against Calvinists in France, signed a deposition on January 6, 1700. He simply affirmed that his son Isaac died on February 15, 1696, and that, being neither bereft of the common feeling of humanity nor of those of a father, he should have requested his relations to inquire into the matter had there been any cause whatever to doubt the fact of the occurrence; but as he had seen his son die such a doubt did not exist. Monsieur de Caille at the same time gave full power to an attorney to prosecute the impostor for a criminal offence before the Supreme Court of the Provence.

By an order of the court the prisoner was then removed to Toulon to be tried and to receive a final sentence. This decision did not appear to disconcert him in the least. He always expressed himself with certainty as to the ultimate result of the trial, and said he was sure that if his father, the Sieur de Caille, could see him he would recognize him and that paternal tenderness would lead him to own him. Those around him saw no signs of wavering, no hesitation, no nervousness, nor any mark of imposture.

At his trial he was charged with in itself a capital offense but he appealed impersonating a man who was dead—pealed from the whole criminal proceedings and demanded that he should be allowed to prove before the Parliament of Provence who he was. After further delay this was allowed. Both sides set vigorously to work to collect evidence.

The soldier was taken to Manuosque, to Caille and to Rougon. Many persons recognized him as Isaac de Castellane, and after these journeys, which were almost triumphal in character, the soldier had found upwards of one hundred witnesses who were prepared to swear to his desired identity.

On the other hand Monsieur de Caille's side undertook to prove: First, that his eldest son died on February 15, 1696; secondly, that the soldier was not his son; third, that he was Pierre Mege.

Monsieur Rolland tried hard to induce the Parliament to delegate the powers of a magistrate in partibus to some one resident in Switzerland who should take the depositions of witnesses in reference to the residence and death of Isaac le Brun at Vevay, as it was owing to this weighty evidence not having been given before any of the French courts that it had not been deemed fully admissible, but this course was violently opposed by the soldier's counsel, and the case was brought to a conclusion without Monsieur Rolland having gained his point.

The soldier renewed his attacks upon Monsieur Rolland, accused him of tampering with the depositions and brought experts who swore that the alterations were in his hand writing, charged him with erasing other portions with corrosives, and used against witnesses of perjury, and by the aid of his own band of followers he was, after fifteen sittings, and another examination, declared to be the son of Monsieur de Caille.

Impostor Is Hailed as Hero by the People.

The public joy at his decision was immense. Merchants and shopkeepers, farmers and laborers alike left their work and added to the dense throng that had assembled round the court and choked up its approaches since the early morning. The judges were drawn home by the mob, and it was as much as one of them could do to prevent them carrying him off on their shoulders.

Three weeks afterwards the soldier married the daughter of Monsieur Serri, a physician, who had furnished the expenses of the trial; and the young lady being related to three of the judges who had given their votes in favor of her husband, it was alleged that a knowledge of the proposed alliance had influenced them in their decision. However this may be, the soldier obtained Monsieur de Caille's property.

His first act was to drive forth the residents in Madame Rolland's private poorhouse, which had originally been his father's residence. This was particularly noticeable, because on a visit he had paid some time previously to this institution, he had remarked when looking up at the windows:

"You are within, whilst I the heir am without; still I will not unhouse you."

A short time afterwards, the soldier had his picture engraved, with these words under it:

Isaac Le Brun De Castellane,
Seigneur de Caille et de Rougon.
Aged 37 years in 1707

Below, again, were verses, of which the following is a free translation:

Since childhood's days, my life was dearly bound
By Fate's capricious chains, which gnal and wound
Away from me my natal right they'd keep.
Who deemed me helpless in the grave-bound sleep;
But Heaven, defender of my injured right
Even through the tempest, points the port in sight.

Monsieur Rolland was ruined by the adverse judgment, but did not give up the struggle. He at once took the necessary steps to obtain a reversal of the decision, and obtained leave to bring the matter before the King's Council and he was strengthened in his hope of ultimately gaining the day by the fact that Honorade Venelle the wife of Pierre Mege who had kept silence during the trial now came forward, and positively declared the soldier to be her husband to whom she was lawfully married in 1685.

Such a declaration, however, giving as it did the lie direct to the judges' decision induced them to order her immediate arrest and she was confined in jail at Aix.

On the case coming before the council Monsieur de la Blinière appeared for Monsieur Rolland, and Monsieur Sylvain for the soldier; the result being that the judgment of the Provençal Parliament was reversed by a majority of thirteen members, and the case ordered to be sent before the Parliament of Paris.

This reversal wrested the property from the hands of the soldier and a favorable termination to another and entirely new trial could alone restore it to him. He had, however gained one grand point. His life was no longer in danger, as the French law did not admit of any one being twice put on his trial for the same capital offence, and the decision of the judges of the Parliament of Provence given in his favor after criminal proceedings had once been commenced against him, removed him from a position of great peril.

The scene of the struggle was now removed to Paris, and it was before the Parliament of that city that the case was to be more fully investigated and a final decision arrived at. The counsel employed on behalf of the soldier was Monsieur Sylvain and in addition Monsieur Terrasson, who was well known at the French bar as an able and eloquent lawyer, and an upright and conscientious man. Monsieur de la Blinière again appeared for Monsieur Rolland.

There probably never was a case in which such hard swearing and counter-swearing took place, or where the counsel on either side appeared more thoroughly convinced of the righteousness of the claims of their respective clients.

On behalf of the soldier it was urged that his steady [illegible] adherence to his story throughout the case was greatly in his favor and it was denounced as absurd to suppose that a man without [illegible] education, money, or any kind of resources would have dared to take a name to which he was not justly entitled. It was argued that such a proceeding would require powers of intellect and memory that would have been nothing less than superhuman.

The soldier's marriage with Mademoiselle Serri was also cited in his favor, as it was pointed out with some apparent show of reason that he would not have been fool enough to have married again while his first wife was alive and thus run the risk of a second criminal prosecution should she choose to give evidence against him. Numberless witnesses again gave testimony in his favor. Esprit Martine deposed that she had nursed Monsieur de Caille's son, and had weaned him. Her account of what he was like tallied exactly with what the soldier then was. She detailed the scars which Isaac had upon his body, and similar marks were found upon the soldier. She swore positively that they were one and the same person.

Catherine Regniere also swore to having nursed Isaac, and said she recognized him the very moment she set eyes upon him, upon which occasion she had been unable to restrain her tears. She gave a clear description of the various cicatrices which Isaac had on his body and concluded by swearing that the soldier was the same being she had nursed.

Marine Pierron another [illegible] recognized him by his eyes, his thin legs, his matted hair and [illegible] in an equally unhesitating [illegible] identity as Isaac le Brun [illegible].

Louise Mandel [illegible], in whose [illegible] Isaac had been placed after he was weaned, also gave an account of the scars which the soldier bore, and declared she recognized him as Isaac by his cheekbones, which were [illegible] the boy she had [illegible].

[illegible] servants [illegible] a host of other [illegible] saying positively [illegible] of Monsieur de [illegible] remarkable [illegible] large, bony and prominent shoulders. He was pot-bellied. His skin was [illegible].

His hair was coarse [illegible] his face was long [illegible] jutting and irregular. His eyes were small, deep set and [illegible]. His temples and cheekbones were [illegible] and his cheeks were hollow. His nose was flat [illegible] sharp, his mouth large [illegible] with black and [illegible] teeth. Nature [illegible] his complexion was pale and [illegible] face to avoid looking like [illegible]. His voice was [illegible] appearance was contemptible. The general expression of his face was idiotic. He had the manners of a clown and the gait of a fool. He had a scar on the left eyebrow, caused by a stone thrown at him; scars beneath both eyes, produced by the incision of a lancet.

At his birth his ears were attached to his head at the outer edge in such a manner as to make it necessary to separate them with a razor. He had marks of scrofula on his neck and legs, and a [illegible] at the knee, which had been [illegible] twice. As a child his great toe was [illegible] for inflammation caused by the nail growing into the quick. His nurse had cauterized his left leg. At the back of his head there was a large pointed bone, which protruded in a very remarkable manner. His father, grandfather and uncle had each a similar peculiarity, which, indeed, was hereditary in his family. Finally the son of Monsieur de Caille resembled his mother chiefly in his nose and the lower part of his face. He resembled Mademoiselles le Goucue and St Etienne his cousins but above all he was like Madame de Lignon, his aunt, and Mlle. la Couette, his cousin.

Such was the description of his person. As to his mind, he was, it was alleged, stupid, and rarely spoke without making some silly remark. It was found impossible to teach him either to read or write. [illegible]

[illegible] nesses and the soldier's counsel urged that as Monsieur Isaac de Castellane could not have two noses, two mouths, in short two faces and two bodies this was the right portrait. [illegible] Other instances of persons who had forgotten to read after they had learned were proved in order to meet the evidence of those who [illegible] to remember that Isaac had been [illegible] and reached this far.

On the other hand Monsieur de la Blinière's witnesses [illegible] upon Isaac le Brun. According to their testimony, Monsieur de Caille's son had fine eyes, a well formed nose, a small rosy mouth, remarkably well formed face and a clear complexion. His figure was slight but [illegible] and compact [illegible] he carried himself well, and had a most pleasing expression of countenance. His manners were winning and his disposition kind. He was a man of high character, and extremely liberal minded. He was well informed, full of wit and vivacity, yet at the same time gentle and unassuming. He spoke French perfectly and was devoted to the exercise both of body and mind. He was much attached to his own profession of faith, was pure in morals, fair in his dealings. In fine he was a scholar, gentleman and Christian.

Four of Isaac's tutors deposed to his having learned to read and write and to his having studied Greek and Latin at college. Divers attestations, certificates, signed by the French minister at Geneva, from five different professors set forth that Isaac le Brun had attended their lectures at Geneva during three years. As it had been urged that he had forgotten to read and write, Monsieur de la Blinière pointed out that the soldier had denied ever having been able to learn to write.

With regard to the proofs of Isaac le Brun de Castellane's death, certificates were produced from the magistrates of Vevay establishing the fact. [illegible] depositions were also forwarded [illegible] having been authenticated by the [illegible] of Berne and the Marquis de Puysieux, the French ambassador in Switzerland, among others. These of Monsieur [illegible] Sage, the minister who attended Isaac le Brun on his death bed; of [illegible] second in whose house he [illegible] of the doctor, surgeon and [illegible] who attended him, [illegible] who had been placed over [illegible] who had laid it out, of the undertaker who had prepared the corpse for burial and placed it in the coffin, and of several others who had attended the sick man during his last illness and who had subsequently followed him to the grave.

Monsieur de Caille further obtained [illegible] of twenty-nine other witnesses who had known the deceased [illegible] and who gave an accurate description of the illness that had eventually carried him off and of his general appearance. Three of Isaac le Brun's aunts gave similar evidence, and the [illegible] of the parish of St. Louis at Grenoble deposed that he was present when Madame Rolland received the news of her nephew's death in 1696.

Honorade Venelle came forward and swore [illegible] that Pierre Mege was the [illegible] she had married in [illegible]. Her reasons for keeping silence [illegible] she first heard [illegible] proceedings [illegible] had she attempted to verify [illegible] her position would have been that of partisans [illegible] on the other hand had she given information as to who he really was [illegible] would in effect have been [illegible] his death [illegible] more so as her position as a married woman was [illegible] the marriage of Pierre Mege with Mademoiselle de Serri

WITH AMERICAN LEAGUE PENNANT ALL BUT WON, STAHL'S GREAT TEAM IS OFF ON LAST WESTERN CAMPAIGN

LEADERS START ON LAST TOUR OF THE WEST

Red Sox Leave Today With a Certainty of Winning the Flag, Officially, Within the Forthcoming Three Weeks

AMERICAN LEAGUE.
The Red Sox now lead the Athletics by 13½ games, and the Senators by 14½ games.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.
The Giants lead the Cubs by eight full games.

They will play three games at Chicago, go to St. Louis for three more, jump to Cleveland for a quartet, clash thrice with the Detroit Tigers, and then on September 24 will open up again at home in their last stand of the season, playing at least four, and possibly five, games with the Yankees. Then they will hike to Washington for three battles, and will end their campaign at Philadelphia, playing three with the Athletics, whom they have seated from the proud pinnacle of league leadership.

To all intents and purposes, the pennant is now all tucked away in the Red Sox trunk. Nothing but a train wreck, or an earthquake, can ever pull it out.

But when next their dirt stained uniforms are seen at Fenway, it's a hundred to one shot that the confusion will be sure, so that successive defeats for the remainder of the year for the Stahlmen, and successive wins for the same period for the trailers, would in no wise affect the standings.

The Red Sox have 22 more games to play, the Athletics 23 and the Senators 21. The Stahls have now won 92 and lost 38. If they win 10 more games, they cannot be beaten in the race, though they could be tied, provided the Athletics win out every one of their remaining games.

The Red Sox, since they returned to the Hub, August 14, have played 24 games, for a record of 19 wins, 4 losses and one draw. With the exceptions of 2 wins in New York Labor Day, all the battles were staged on Fenway Park, and Boston paid a splendid tribute to its champions by turning out crowds which put all attendance records into the waste basket.

Great Crowds Out.

In the last four days, after the pennant was beyond all doubt coming to Boston, nearly 100,000 fans were recorded as having watched a four-day series, which unheard of attendance only lends further proof to the claim that Boston is the banner baseball town of the land.

On this present invasion it is safe to assume that the baseball brotherhood in each of the cities will turn out in great force to take a last peek at the proud leaders of the American League.

If will of course be the Red Sox' ambition to get that small matter of ten wins out of the way, so that the remainder of the procession will be in the nature of a pleasure trip and a resting spell, rather than a baseball race.

Banking on past experience, the locals will probably pick up two games in Chicago, tack on as many more at Cleveland, take the entire series at St. Louis and snatch two out of three from the Tigers.

This will leave them with but one more win to be encompassed, providing the Macks are winning daily, to be assured of the pennant.

Beating this one win, they will come into the town on September 24, for their last performance, and as Nap York is the opponent, they may, perhaps, have the pleasure of tucking away the fray that will mean absolute security on the home sward.

The chances are against this, for while it is safe to say that the schedule is mapped out for the Sox will be sent through, it is rather stretching the limits of the imagination to suppose that the Athletics will not suffer a single reverse.

Of course there is too, the chance that the leaders will have a slight slump, but even if they do, they cannot break worse than even, and in that case, coming home to five games with the Yankees, the dollars to doughnuts that they will suit away the necessary margin here.

Tesreau's "No Hit" Game Up to Lynch

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—President Thomas Lynch of the National League must decide if "Big Jeff" Tesreau, the Giant pitcher, is entitled to a no-hit game for the first victory yesterday in the double-header.

As the matter now stands, one hit is chalked up against Tesreau. George K. Bretzlan, the official scorer of the National League in Philadelphia, has sent in his official score sheet, which shows that Paskert got a hit in the first inning on a pop fly. Meldon has changed his mind, and has now written to President Lynch requesting that the score be changed and that Tesreau be placed in the illness hall of fame.

Man Who Put Washington on the Baseball Map Declares "Stahl's Men Have McGraw's Men Backed Off the Board In Every Department of the Game"—Gives Expert Opinion to American

In this story, which was written expressly for the Boston Sunday AMERICAN, the Washington leader tells why he thinks the Giants will be easy picking for the Red Sox. Griffith, who by taking a squad of almost unknown youngsters, and molding them into a team that forced the Red Sox to go at wonderful speed all through the campaign, has won more fame than any other major league manager ever did in a single season, is well qualified to compare the two teams. He is a veteran baseball expert. He has been a big league manager for years, but until this season has never had full control of his players. When he took over the tail-end Senators, it was with the express understanding that he alone would have the handling of the players. And the gallant race he made speaks for itself.

By CLARK GRIFFITH.
(Manager of the Washington American League Team.)

THE Boston Red Sox, one of the smoothest baseball machines ever known, will, in my opinion, take four out of the first five games from the New York Giants in the coming World's Series.

Any way you look at it, Stahl's men have McGraw's squad backed off the baseball map.

In the box, in the field, and with the stick, the Red Sox are superior. In base running alone, they do not entirely outclass their opponents, and, as I will show later, this feature of the game does not cut much figure in World Series battles.

The Giants have just one pitcher in whom they have sufficient confidence to win such a series, namely Mathewson. The Red Sox have more confidence than any team I have ever come across, no matter who is in the box for them.

And they sure have a staff that merits confidence. Wood, Hall, O'Brien, Bedient and Collins are all equal to the task of facing the Giants at their best and turning them back.

BOSTON PITCHING STAFF UNBEATABLE.

True, McGraw has Marquard, but say what you will, the Giants do not play behind him, as they do with Matty. This old boy is still right up in the front rank, but he is not as strong as he was a few years ago.

He now depends entirely on his headwork to pull through. The reserve strength, which chaps like Wood and Hall have to call on when things are breaking badly, is no longer to be called on by the New York star.

The constant strain of many seasons has worn away the reserve and now, when Christy's best offerings are bumped, he cannot rely on sheer speed to recover his equilibrium. Wood and the other Boston stars can, and therein lies their invaluable advantage.

If Matty is bumped hard the first time he faces the Stahls, as I believe he will be, it's goodby for the Giants. If he pulls through its only a matter of stalling off the inevitable for a day or so.

I do not think Marquard will bother the American champions a little bit, while Tesreau, whom I have never seen, but who, from all accounts, must be a real pitcher, has not had the experience to stand the terrific strain of such a series, though he may come through and surprise the critics.

The same holds true in the case of Bedient for the Boston team. He is a grand twirler, but "Buck" O'Brien, on the other hand, though young to the big league, has had the baseball experience to bear up against it.

WOOD AND HALL TO DO THE HARD WORK.

I expect, though, that the brunt of the pitching will fall on the shoulders of Hall and Wood. The former is a bear for work, does not know what it is to be afraid, and is at his best in tight places.

The latter, of course, as I have stated in the AMERICAN, I consider to be equalled by only one man now pitching—Walter Johnson. It would not surprise me a little bit to see Joe Wood win three games in the first four days of the contests.

Speaker, too, in my opinion, will be another very great stumbling block for McGraw. He will, I think, be the first big star player who will live up to all previous reputation, and perhaps surpass it, in a world's series.

Cobb and Wagner, and other headliners, have faded and fallen down, but take it from me, "Spoke" will be there with bells on all the way through. He is a natural ball player, in the game for the love of it, and the bigger the crowd, and the greater the excitement, the better he goes.

When Mathewson last pitched against Boston, Speaker bumped him very hard, and in those days the Bostonian was a more kid, just breaking in. There's no telling what he's likely to do now.

As to the outfield, it's useless to compare the grand Red Sox trio with the Giants gardeners. The Boston bunch will make the New Yorkers look cheap in all departments of the game, and those three sterling wings will put a very severe kink in the Giants' big reputation for base running.

I will not be surprised either to see Harry Hooper throw out Chief Meyers at first base on some of those hits that the Indian is accustomed to put to right field.

In the infield, the advantage is all

EVANS LOSES GOLF MATCH TO TRAVERS

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Jerome D. Travers of Montclair, N. J., won the amateur championship of America on the Wheaton golf links by a score of 7 and 6 from Charles Evans, Jr. of the Edgewater Country Club, Chicago. Travers entered the match on the second hole of the afternoon play and after that failed to score a point.

A record gallery followed the pair as they made their way around the course. Evans started playing in magnificent form. The hoodoo to which he had laughingly referred as hanging over him in the national tourney was not in evidence at the start and he won the first two holes handily. For the first hole, 462 yards, both drives were straight down the course, with Evans getting the better distance. Travers sliced his second to a bunker and wasted a shot there. Evans was bunkered also, but was well out and won 5 to 6.

Battle Was Close.

The second hole was 362 yards. Evans again had the better distance from the tee, both being straight. The approaches were about equal with Travers away. Evans holed his eight foot putt and won 3 to 4. Evans 1 up.

The third hole was 333 yards. Travers sliced a little way into the rough while Evans was straight. The Eastern golfer earned applause by a splendid approach. The hole was halved in four.

The fourth hole was 418 yards. The drives were within ten feet of each other close to a trap on the right, this time Travers getting the longer ball. Evans hooked his second with his mid-iron to the far left-hand corner of the green and Travers played a good one though it stopped well to the right of the pin.

President Strawn, of the United States Golf Association, was called upon to decide who was away and he confessed to

Bay State Man Wins Seagirt Rifle Title

SEAGIRT, N. J., Sept. 7.—The final important event of the rifle tournament, the Seagirt championship match, was won today by Sergeant Frank Kean, of Massachusetts, who scored 194 and gets the medal presented by Governor Woodrow Wilson.

The other five leaders were: Sergeant Keough, Massachusetts, 193; Corporal Cullum, Marine Corps, 192; Captain Duff, Texas, 192; Corporal Long, Massachusetts, 189; and Lieutenant Colonel Lewis, New Jersey, 189.

PILGRIMS DIVIDE A DOUBLE-HEADER

BROOKLYN, Sept. 7.—The Boston Pilgrims split even in their double-header with the Brooklyn Dodgers today. The men piloted by "Noisy Johnny" Kling captured the first game after a hard battle by the score of 2 to 1, while they were humbled in the second contest by a score of 4 to 0.

Both games were well played. The Boston team displayed a lot of dash and vim and kept battling for all it was worth until the final man was declared out in the second game. Otto Hess did the honors on the mound for the visitors in the opening game, and the veteran southpaw covered himself with glory.

Hess held Brooklyn to seven scattered hits, while his teammates were only able to gather six bingles off the three Brooklyn pitchers. Neither team was able to score during the first six innings, but Boston got busy in the seventh and eighth and hammered out one run in each chapter.

Tyler and Kentner had a close battle in the second game, but the local twirler won out.

Barely Won First Game.

The first game was a pitchers' battle, three other games played in this series, the winner nosing out a victory by one run. For the first five innings the sides nearly went out in order by some good pitching and some exceptionally clever fielding. Both teams made several chances.

The Dodgers broke the run of goose eggs in the sixth inning, when two extra base hits were bunched. Bortfeld started it with a scorching drive to left, and Daubert drove a scorcher to right. Both runners were out a long triple that scored Cutshaw.

This was the only run scored off Otto Hess, who settled down and thereafter kept the hits well scattered.

The Pilgrims managed to tie the score in the seventh inning, and the run came rather cheaply, as the Pilgrims were aided by an error.

Moran opened with a single, Devlin walked, and O'Rourke bunted to Bacon, who threw wildly in an effort to catch Devlin, and the latter scored the tieing run.

Game Won in Eighth.

The game was won in Boston in the eighth. Campbell started with a double to left field. McDonald bunted safely and Sweeney scored the centre fielder with a sacrifice fly to Northen.

The Second Game.

SENATORS WIN LAST STRUGGLE FROM RED SOX

Foster's Triple in the Fifth Breaks Up the Game and Washington Saves Itself With One of the Series of Four

Champions-to-Be Have an Off-Day After Winning Nineteen of the Last Twenty-two Games They Have Played

Bill Gleason proved a stumbling block in the path of Red Sox progress yesterday, and, aided and abetted more or less by the desultory defence display of the new champions, managed to grab off one game of the series for the Senators to the tune of 5 to 1.

The fray attracted another great gathering of the clans, some 27,000 of the faithful watching the contest and taking the defeat in very contented fashion, serene in the fact that the pennant is tucked away in the Red Sox locker.

Rube Bedient assumed the mound duties for the locals, and while his flinging was nothing to brag about, he might have had some chance of keeping a kink out of his record, had not the team been in one of those slumps which assail it now as biweekly instead of once-a-week intervals, as before. As the bonehead turned in one of the errors, which later was coined into a run, and as his indisposition to pursue a bunt which was ultimately cashed into runs by means of a three-sack crash, figured largely in the upset, most of the blame rests on his shoulders.

Groom Pitched Airtight Ball.

The Senator hurler, on the contrary, was as tight as a drum, and after being dented for a lone tally in the initial stanza, was thereafter as effective as a waiters' strike in a Boston hotel, and the Red Sox chances of crossing the pan were about as good as that of a blind man trying to pick a time-lock safe with a match. Bedient permitted just seven safe thumps, and the most of them were scratchy, at that. Several times he faced the possibility of a hostile run, but refused to be disturbed, and scrambled out of the pinches with his accustomed unconcern.

Heinie Wagner was given a well-deserved rest, Krug making a good attempt at filling his shoes, though several bumps were his way and were credited hits that the more experienced Wagner would have turned into outs. The youngster made a mighty good impression with the handycon, his triple being a very lusty swat, while one of his other attempts would have netted him another three cocker were it not for the fact that he whirled directly at Right Fielder Moeller.

The judgment of the German sheet-fielder was sadly amiss, and the tale might have been otherwise had he been on the job, calling the play. However, the experience is good for Krug, and a game more or less doesn't make a great deal of difference to the red hosed tribe these days.

Sox Make Four Errors.

As we have observed, the defensive works of the leaders were in rather scrappy order, four errors, all inexcusable, being charged up. Bedient made a wild heave, which let a runner amble from first to third. Engle recovered the sphere, and, for some unknown reason, gently propelled it to the plate.

Carrigan set himself, and watched it waft toward him, and then allowed it to trickle between his legs, while a run counted. Duffy Lewis let a hit get through him and gave a runner an extra sack while Steve Yerkes fooled a perfectly easy ground ball.

Add to this that the Sox fielders showed no desire to back up throws or anything of the kind, while several hits were allowed to fall or roll while the fielders stood as unconcerned onlookers and you have the story of the defeat.

The one really good fielding stunt of the day was contributed by Hooper, who made one of his regulation pegs, and nailed a would-be base runner, who foolishly thought he could make third after Harry had smothered a fly. Bill Carrigan had his whip in trim, also, and cut down several pretentious purloiners with the utmost ease.

Clyde Milan turned in the setpiece of the visitors' fielding, gathering out almost to the flag pole and clutching a long high drive of Speaker's that most of the scorers present had chalked down as a homer as soon as it left the bat.

There was more or less bickering with the umpires all through the game, both teams taking part in the disputes, though the Griffiths were most inclined to fuss up. In the fourth, Arbitrator Connolly spied Joe Wood perched on the top of the rail in front of the players' cave, and forthwith ordered him to the lower darkness.

Joseph descended, but pointed out that several Senators were ensconced in similar positions across the way, whereat the game was held up a while till they too had retired. Which course of procedure so irritated Messrs Groom and McBride that for a time it looked as if they would be chased from the ramparts, but the storm finally blew over, though it gave rise to various mutterings and rumblings thereafter.

Speaker Scores in First.

Moeller uncorked the contest by punching an easy roller down the pitcher's alley. Foster fouled to Gardner, but Milan reached, when Yerkes lost track of his easy bounder. The champion base stealer tried to fatten up his record in this particular line, but Carrigan's throw was waiting for him.

Hooper won the first cheer of the afternoon when he rolled a slow one toward third, and apparently had it beaten a block. Foster, however, didn't think so and pegged in the general direction of first. His aim was very very bad, and when the ball had been returned to the infield the batter was on third. Yerkes rolled a slow one to Gandil, but Harry was afraid to take a chance and remained glued to third.

He broke for the plate, though, on Speaker's bump to Foster, but was chased out by Henry, after a somewhat diverting pursuit which allowed Speaker to take second, whence he registered when Lewis saluted Groom with a bullet-like biff to centre. Milan hurled the sphere to the plate, but Groom intercepted it, and tossed out Duffy trying to get to second.

The hostile second saw Speaker and Hooper chasing flies from Gandil and Laporte, both boosts being smothered easily. Then Moran slapped one that Krug took in his glove, but couldn't cling to. The batter started to steal on the next pitch, hesitated, turned back to first, and at last, with the ball in Carrigan's hands, made a break for the middle station, but was easily turned back.

The Sox side of the sheet was likewise a blank, Gardner and Krug dying on soft grounders, which Engle, who walloped out a one-baser, tried to steal, but vainly.

The Senators tied it up in the next. McBride opened with a lusty double that Lewis fell over the ropes trying to get. He took third while Yerkes was tossing out Henry, and after a dodging match, was finally run out following Groom's roller to third. Robert made second while this was in process, and counted when Speaker and Lewis let Moeller's lift fall between them. The right fielder promptly pinched second, but it didn't help any, as Foster rolled to the box.

Foster Breaks Up Game.

In this stanza the Stable managed to crowd the bases, but couldn't squeeze a man to the platter. Carrigan bumped one to Moeller for a starter, and Bedient after getting two in the hole, was walked. Hooper landed on Laporte's fizzle and the pair moved along while Gandil was tagging out Yerkes. Groom would not take a chance on Speaker and walked him along. Lewis whaled one on the nose, but McBride was in the way of it and Spoke was forced at second.

Another Senator run was chalked up in the fourth, a walk to Milan, and Bedient's and Carrigan's errors doing it. Gandil followed with a biff to centre, but was cut down stealing, after Carrigan had distinguished himself by two difficult catches of fouls from the bats of Laporte and Moran, respectively.

Gardner walked for a Sox starter, advanced a notch on Engle's death, but was caught dreaming and was tagged out. As Krug followed with his triple, the lapse cost one run and probably more, for the youngster might have been held at third, instead of being chased to a quick death at the rubber.

The fifth marked the final sand-bagging of the game. McBride led off with a walk following which Henry slapped a safety to left. Groom bunted, and Bedient might have tossed McBride out at third on the tap, but he watched the ball roll by him, and the corners were crowded. The gloom lightened somewhat when Moeller popped to Yerkes, but settled thicker than ever when little Mr. Foster propelled the ball far over Hooper's roof for a grass trip of three bases and a like number of tallies.

CHAMPION LAWRENCE TEAM IS DEFEATED

Loses to Fall River, 10 to 8, In Closing Contest of the Season.

LAWRENCE, Sept. 7.—The New England League season ended here today with a defeat for Lawrence, 13 to 10, the game being a hippodrome. Walsh ran wild on the bases.

Before the game he won the 100-yard dash. Merrill and Walsh were tied bunting the ball and getting to first. Accurate throwing resulted in a tie between Ulrich and Thackara. Walsh encircled the bases the fastest.

The players presented a bag to Manager Pieper and the newspaper men gave him a floral horseshoe. The score.

GRIFFITH PICKS SOX TO BEAT GIANTS, 4 IN 5

with the Red Sox. The Giants have one really classy infielder, Larry Doyle, while the rest are fair, but not real classy.

On the other hand, the Stahls inner men are all stars. Yerkes has been rather slow about coming along, but going at the pace he has been setting in the last couple of series he has worked against us, there are very few second sackers who have a thing on him.

Stahl is a star, not a flashy player, but a great asset at the bag, a dangerous hitter and a brainy leader.

Wagner and Gardner are stellar performers, entirely superior to the corresponding men on the National League leaders.

Giants Have Nothing in Catchers.

In the back-stopping department the Giants are thought by many to have the edge on all the country, in the possession of Meyers. But for my part I fail to see where the Red Sox are at all weak.

Either Carrigan or Cady will shape up all the way through with Meyers, and while Wilson, the other New York receiver, is a fair man, he cannot be compared with Nunamaker and Thomas.

Base-running, as I said earlier, cuts very little figure in championship contests, for the very simple reason that when a man gets on bases he is not willing to take any risks.

Single runs are too precious, and the chances of scoring them are not to be thrown away by foolish attempts to steal, under any and all conditions.

In batting, too, you have to hand the palm to the American Leaguers. Not a man on the team, pitchers included, but is likely to break up any game, at any time, against any kind of pitching.

And the beauty of the team is that when one starts something with a safe bang, the rest rally to his help with the most surprising regularity and keep up the good work.

Sox the Brainier Players.

The Giants have a few dangerous hitters, but not an entire team of fatality bangers, and as they will be up against superior pitching, it's mighty hard to see just how they can wiggle through to a victory.

The Red Sox, as a whole, are a more nervy bunch than the Giants and much less likely to be discouraged by a lead held against them in the first part of the game.

The team is made up of brainier players, who do not need to look to one man for their every plan of play.

The Giants depend upon McGraw, primarily, and all the way through. The Red Sox depend upon Stahl, more or less, but each man is for himself a board of strategy when time and place call for brilliant individual effort.

Wherefore, as I have said several times already, they ought to have no bother coming through, in easy style, and copping out in the first five days of the series.

mound and also were able to accumulate but two hits during the nine innings. Knetzer pitched a remarkably steady game and at no time was he in danger of being scored upon.

"Lefty" Tyler was also in good form and in all but one inning did he have the Dodgers eating out of his hand, although several time two hits were bunched. In the seventh inning Tyler met defeat when several hits were bunched, including a triple, that netted four large runs and enough to carry the game away.

PIRATES BEAT ST. LOUIS 8 TO 1 BY GOOD PITCHING

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 7.—Hank Robinson of the Pirates allowed only three hits today, two of them infield, winning his game, 8 to 1. He escaped damage for seven rounds, but weakened in the eighth and gave one run. Burke and Perritt were easy for Pittsburgh and Clarke's men piled up eight tallies. Robinson himself drove in two with a triple that would have been a homer had he cared to run.

WATERBURY GETS DOUBLE TRIMMING FROM HOLYOKE

HOLYOKE, Sept. 7.—Holyoke gave Waterbury a double trimming here this afternoon on the Berkshire street grounds taking the first game by a 2 to 1 score and copping off the program with a 4 to 0. Holyoke scored two runs in the first inning of the opening game, and remained in the lead, the visitors being unable to solve Harrell. Ehman's pitching was the only feature of the second game, holding his opponents to one hit, which came in the eighth inning.

NEW HAVEN AND HARTFORD PLAY 13 INNINGS TO TIE

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 7.—For thirteen innings the Connecticut League leaders, New Haven and Hartford, battled today to a tie, each scoring once in the most brilliant bout of the season. Pitching honors went to Powers of Hartford, the home run of Pepe of New Haven being the only effective hit off him. Little, the Bowdoin College player, twice saved the day for Hartford by one-handed running leaps and catches of seemingly impossible flies. Pop Foster's running catch of Kauff's hit in the sixth brought up the crowd.

ATHLETICS WINNERS IN SLUGGING MATCH

Humble Yankees in the First Game, 10 to 8; Second Game Is Called Off.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The Philadelphia Athletics won the first game of a double-header from the Yankees, by a score of 10 to 8, in eleven innings. The second game was called on account of darkness in the third, with the score 1 and 1.

The game was a slugging match, five pitchers being used up. Errors were numerous on both sides. Coombs and Ford started for the opposing teams, but after taking severe hammering, both had to retire. The score.

WHITE SOX USE 17 MEN IN NAPS GAME

SOUTH SIDE BASEBALL PARK, CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Manager Callahan sent 17 men into the game today, but his White Sox were licked by the Naps just the same. Score 3 to 2.

It was a redhot battle all the way, with errors by Lord and Kuhn helping out the Naps. Cicotte had one bad inning—the fourth—the Cleveland lads bunching four of their six hits. That was sufficient. The score.

TIGERS BEAT BROWNS IN WEIRD GAME BY 10-5

DETROIT, Sept. 7.—In a weird exhibition of baseball through kindness—the Tigers showed that they knew less to do to lose a game than the Browns, and so the 10 to 5 score was in their favor. The Tigers pounded Allison from the box in the fourth.

Williams and Compton of the Browns were forced to retire on account of injuries. Austin was chased for disputing a decision.

Joe Ferrin, the Lawrence High School boy, is going at a fast clip for the Fall River Club in the New England League. Ferrin has been hitting in great style in recent games and running bases like a blue streak. George Murray of Lawrence says Ferrin will be seen in the big show in another season.

LYNN WINS TWO GAMES FROM HAVERHILL TEAM

LYNN, Sept. 7.—The New England League season closed at Ocean Park this afternoon and Lynn captured a double-header from Haverhill. Britton allowed the visitors but one hit in the first game and Long was batted hard. Harrington had the better of Johnson in the second game, which ended at the end of the seventh. Orcutt's base running and the hitting of Wilson, Ryan and Weeden featured.

WORCESTER WINS GAME BY RALLY IN NINTH

WORCESTER, Sept. 7.—Worcester beat out Lowell today, 4 to 2. For eight innings Weaver of Lowell held Worcester to two scattered hits and no runs, while Lowell secured two runs in the fourth inning, after McGammell had hit a nice two-bagger, Miller, the next man up, puts a beauty over left field fence for a homer, scoring McGammell. Lowell failed to score during the rest of the game.

Worcester came to life in the ninth inning. Flaherty, first man up, sent a speedy grounder, which was too fast for Boltes to handle and recover in time to catch him. Wilson followed with a single, while Flaherty stole third, while Wilson ran to second. Haas then singled, scoring Flaherty, and Wilson came home then on a throw, catching Crum at second. Haas stole third, Weaver singled and went to second. With only one man out, Smith, next man up, sent the ball to left field fence, scoring Haas and Weaver.

GREATEST TRIBUTE EVER GIVEN TO A BASEBALL HERO—WHEN WOOD BEAT JOHNSON

Panorama of part of Fenway Park at the end of the great Boston American world's championship pitching duel between Joe Wood and Walter Johnson, which Wood won in the most remarkable battle, all things considered, that was ever fought. The picture shows part of the tremendous crowd of 35,000—the largest that ever saw a baseball game in Boston—swarming onto the field to congratulate Wood after the memorable struggle. No pitcher in all baseball history ever received such an ovation. Thousands clamored outside, unable to enter the park, for lack of room, or the crowd would have been by far the largest that ever saw a game in the history of baseball. There have been great crowds before and there have been great games before, but never so great a crowd at so great a game. And never such a triumph for a baseball pitcher.

GREER BEATS HAINS IN SCULLING RACE

Frank Greer, the ex-amateur national champion sculler, won the sculling championship of the United States in a match race with William Hains, the veteran English sculler, for a purse of $1,000, on the Charles River yesterday. Greer won by two lengths in the excellent time of 21 minutes 31 1/5 seconds.

It was Greer's first professional race. He rowed well, and showed up to [illegible] ing under the eagle eye of Jim Ten Eyck, the Syracuse University coach.

Although beaten, Hains showed remarkable gameness. Getting away with a very poor start, he let his opponent get a lead of fifteen lengths until out three-quarters of a mile from the finish. Here he picked up pluck, and kept coming stronger all the time, but could not overcome the handicap.

It was a remarkable race and the [illegible] odd persons who crowded the regatta course and cheered wildly.

The former amateur champion got away with a good start while the latter was still pulled a slow stroke. Greer was sitting [illegible] ing and he reached the turn [illegible] ahead of Hains, in 10 minutes and 3 seconds.

Here he held this lead for three-quarters of a mile after turning, when he began to weaken. Hains saw [illegible] and gained the admiration of the spectators when he began to pull a steady stroke.

Here he held the [illegible] opponent and many thought that he would win. [illegible] the handicap was too much for [illegible] he was two lengths in the rear at the finish.

"I had to row to win," said Greer at the finish, when a throng of friends and admirers gathered about him.

Hains admitted that he rowed the race he knew how, but that the [illegible] away with too much for him.

"Pretty is That Pretty Does" is a Fine Old Saying

The man who smokes isn't looking for a "pretty" tobacco.

Neither does he care whether his tobacco comes in a "pretty" can.

It's FLAVOR he wants.

And yet tobacco manufacturers appear to think that a "pretty" can with some kind of crinkled, cubed or granulated tobacco is "it".

Master Workman Plug Tobacco is put up in the old-fashioned "plug" form and it's good—those who smoke it say BEST.

Its moisture and flavor are preserved because the plug is made under tremendous pressure and every bit of the natural sweetness and goodness is SQUEEZED IN and KEPT in until you whittle off enough to fill your pipe and light up.

Then you get a cool, slow burning, fragrant smoke that the man who sticks to chopped-up tobacco can NEVER KNOW.

Give Master Workman a trial in your pipe and see if you don't find it the MOST DELICIOUS SMOKE you've ever had.

You won't regret the minute it takes to whittle off enough to fill your pipe.

Schaefer Drops $15 On Last Two Games

"Germany" Schaefer, the veteran utility infielder of the Washington Senators and comedian extraordinary is out fifteen good dollars in the currency of Uncle Samuel as a result of the last two days' play at Fenway Park. But it might have been worse. The popular fun maker stood a chance of losing $315 but old Dame Fortune treated him reasonably.

Schaefer bet $215 against $270 that the Senators would defeat the Red Sox on Friday. He therefore stood a chance of taking down $485. "Germany" was confident that Walter Johnson would make the coming champions look like a bunch of bush leaguers.

Schaefer, however, forgot to take "Smoky Joe" Wood, Tris Speaker and Duffy Lewis into consideration. As a result he was out his own $215 and the $270 which he stood a chance of winning.

The Washington player's love for placing a little wager on the outcome of baseball games was not in the least bit affected by his loss of Friday. He still favored the Senators. He bet $100 against $200 that Griffith's men would win yesterday and he won, thus making his total losses for Friday and Saturday but $15.

Records Go at N. E. Title Games
Few Stars Battle at Tech Field

The New England Championships, under the auspices of the New England Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, took place yesterday at Technology Field, Brookline, before a fair sized gathering of running enthusiasts. The day was ideal for sports, there being very little sun and just breeze enough to keep the runners cool and yet not retard them. The fair sex turned out in goodly numbers, fully half of the spectators being mothers, sisters or sweethearts of the contestants.

The games were run off splendidly and two New England A. A. A. U. records were broken. Though the different events were closely contested nothing developed to cause the gallery to enthuse. The entry list was very small and many of those entered failed to compete, with the result that five or six contestants was the average for each event.

The Boston Athletic Association not only won the meet, but practically made a field day of it. They furnished nearly all the athletes, a great many of the officials and received the greater number of prizes.

Halpin Breaks Record.

Boston A. A. athletes finished first in twelve of the fifteen events, and two of them made new records, namely T. J. Halpin who won the 880-yards run in 1m. 56 2-5s., breaking the old record of 1m. 57 3-5s., made by Oscar Hedlund and L. A. Whitney, who made a new record in the sixteen pound shot put of 46ft. 9in., breaking the former record of 46ft. 2in. made by William Coe.

The total number of points scored by the B. A. A. totaled eighty five, twenty one more than they made last year, and the Brookline Gymnasium A. A. squeezed in second, with a total of four points, all made in the field events and by one man, P. A. Sullivan. The unattached athletes scored a total of 37 points. Malden Y. M. C. A. and Powder Point School scored three apiece. North Dorchester A. A. and Dartmouth University one apiece. This is the second year the Back Bay club has won the Perpetual Championship Trophy.

The century dash was the first event on the program, and was won by P. H. Hardwick, B. A. A., winning in 10 2-5s. The 220 yards dash also had six starters and after a hard race was won by A. R. Robinson, the Mercersburg Academy flyer with Hardwick second and Teschner third all representing B. A. A.

The mile run had only three [illegible] this and was easily won by James A. Powers a few months ago of the St. Alphonsus A. A. but now running under the B. A. A. colors. There were also but three men in the pole vault which was won by M. S. Wright, B. A. A., holder of the world's record of 13 feet 2 inches with a leap of 10 feet 6 inches.

After winning this event [illegible] several ineffectual attempts to break the New England record of 11 feet 8¾ inches. The five mile run, the last event on the program, also had but three men facing the starter.

Silva Wins Five-Mile.

G. B. Kimball took the lead at the start with Maguire trailing at his heels and Silva about twenty yards behind. They ran this way for about eight laps, or two miles, in the fast time of 10.09. Maguire then took the lead and Silva passed Kimball and went into second place. Kimball ran about three laps further and, after being lapped by both the other men, dropped out.

At the beginning of the third mile Silva took the lead and opened up a gap of about a hundred yards on Maguire, which he maintained until the finish, winning the event in twenty six minutes seventeen and four-fifths seconds. The summary of the events follows:

The Summary.

TIE AT NEWTON G. C.

Sharp and Lockwood Both Have 4 Up on Bogey.

The Newton Golf Club held its usual Saturday tournament for members yesterday, in which W. B. Sharp and E. F. Lockwood tied with G. S. Sprague at 4 up on bogey. The handicap vs. bogey competition was attended by a large field, few of which, however, handed in cards.

The scores, W. B. Sharp, 12, 4 up; E. F. Lockwood, 12, 4 up; G. S. Sprague, 15, 4 up; E. G. Hapgood, 12, 3 up; H. I. Cook, 15, 2 up; L. Harwood, 15, 1 up; S. H. Ubler, 18, 6 down.

EVANS LOSES GOLF MATCH TO TRAVERS

Travers to play first. The hole was halved in four.

Travers Wins Sixth Hole.

The fifth hole, 333 yards, was halved in four.

The sixth hole, 566 yards, Travers won 5 to 6, when Evans missed a two foot putt. Evans one up.

The seventh hole, 348 yards, using an iron from the tee Travers was out driven 25 yards by Evans, who was using wood. The latter had much the better of approaches and won by downing his five-foot putt for a three. Evans two up.

The eighth hole, 306 yards, the Eastern golfer was almost off the course on his drive and on his low approach, the ball took a bad bound stopping short of the green. Travers hit the top of the pin and stopped short. His 24-foot putt did not go down, and Evans won 4 to 5. Evans was 3 up.

The ninth hole, 130 yards, Evans dropped his tee shot on the green 5 feet from the hole, while Travers was 30 feet away. The Metropolitan champion overran the hole on his first putt, but came right back for a 3, while Evans missed his easy chance for a 2, and the hole was halved. Evans 3 up.

The cards

Evans Out	5	3	4	4	4	6	3	4	3—36
Travers Out	5	4	4	4	4	5	4	5	3	39

Evans Loses Distance.

Tenth hole—Evans lost distance from the tee by his ball striking a hillock at the corner of the green, and it cost him the hole par four to three, for Travers was perfect. Evans 2 up.

Eleventh hole—Evans was bunkered on his second and got out short on the green. Travers played ideally and won in par five, for Evans could not get the half by a foot on his putt. Evans 1 up.

Twelfth hole—Travers was in the rough on his drive, but the hole was halved in par four.

Thirteenth hole—Each had a perfect drive. Travers ran down a 20-foot for a four to the regulation five, squaring the match amid great enthusiasm. Travers lost the fourteenth to par four by missing a putt of less than three feet. Evans was up again.

The fifteenth was halved in four. Evans had the best of it upon reaching the green but missed a 15-foot putt. Both were badly bunkered from the tee. Travers stymied Evans, who jumped Traver's ball wonderfully, holing out in par, 4 to 5. Evans 2 up.

The seventeenth hole was halved in a good four. Travers won the eighteenth hole in a 3 to par four by one of the greatest curved putts ever made in a trickle roll of 35 feet. The crowd particularly the Easterners yelled like Indians.

Evans In	4	6	4	5	4	4	4	4	4—39—75
Travers In	3	5	4	4	5	4	5	4	3—37	76

Many Women Spectators.

When the afternoon round of play began the number of women in proportion to men in the big crowd was larger than on any other previous day during the course of the tournament, and they were all ready to walk the eighteen holes in the hot sun.

The result of the morning play, which left Evans leading by one up, gave but little indication of the final outcome of the match, for the play was so uneven that there was little to choose between the two great golfers. The first hole of the afternoon round was halved in fours. Travers took the second hole 3 to 4 and the match was all square.

The battle for supremacy was very close until the end. The next few holes were hotly contested.

Travers took the twenty-seventh hole, 3 to 4, when Evans putted his ball into the water. Travers was then 5 up. The cards

Travers Out	4	3	4	4	4	5	3	4	3—34
Evans Out	4	4	5	4	4	6	4	5	5—41

Travers' good luck continued and he took the twenty-eight hole, 3 to 4, and was 6 up. He finally won out by a score of 7 to 6.

GIRL IN RACE CRASH.

HARTFORD, Ct., Sept. 7.—Four events run under dull weather and before an apathetic crowd of small proportions completed a rather uninteresting week of Grand Circuit racing here this afternoon. The spectators were suddenly roused to a near-panic at one juncture when Miss Pearl Barbour of Hartford was thrown and trampled in a running race.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 7.—The 36-hole handicap golf tournament for a gold medal, the winner to have his name inscribed on the cup, presented by the Count of Turin, to be played for annually, was started this afternoon and 18 holes played, the other 18 to be played Sunday afternoon, when the winner will be announced. The entries are Robert Goelet, Stanley Mortimer, J. Fred Pierson, Jr., George N. Hull, Jr., Grenville Kane, William Gammell, Henry R. Sedgwick, Augustus Jay, J. F. A. Clark, Royal P. Carroll, Richard Gambrill and T. Suffern Taler.

Manilla Boy Smashes Record But Loses Race

The record for pacers was smashed by Manila Boy, owned and driven by A. S. Gushee, who made the half mile in 1 minute flat cutting 1¼ second off the Franklin Field Speedway record, which was 1:01¼, held jointly by Manila Boy and the horse he was racing yesterday, Charley King. The races were under the auspices of the Dorchester Driving Club.

Although Manila Boy broke the record, Charley King, driven by A. T. Wheelock, sixteen years old, won the race, Manila Boy having to quit his pace in the third heat on account of losing a shoe.

Riley Crosby drove his Grace G. a fast race, beating out Sunshine, driven by Alden Briggs. Another new acquisition at the track, who had just returned from a barnstorming tour was Camello.

The summary.

Class A, fast pace—Charley King, blk. g. (A. T. Wheelock) first; Manila Boy, b. g. (A. S. Gushee) second. Time—1:00, 1:04¾, 1:0[illegible].

Class B, mixed—C. R. E., b. g. (E. F. Powers) first; Camello, b. g. (M. McDermott) second; Earl King, b. g. (H. P. Gallup) third. Time—1:08, 1:05¾, 1:08½.

Class C, pace—Grace G., b. m., (Riley Crosby) first; Sunshine, b. m. (Alden Briggs) second; Stella D., blk. m. (G. R. Stewart) distanced. Time—1:06¾, 1:06¾.

Class D, trot—Hollis Bingen, b. g. (H. P. Gallup) first; Ted, b. g., (A. G. Tileston) second. Time—1:10, 1:07½.

Class E, trot—Dot, b. m., (J. W. Burns) first; Quincy Adams Sawyer, b. s. (Dr. W. H. Sawyer) second; Hector, b. g. (O. C. Charles) third. Time 1:13½, 1:12¾, 1:14.

Class F, mixed—Carl S., b. s. (H. J. Minchler) first; John F., b. g. (William Donse) second; Harry Direct, b. g. (D. F. Doyle) third. Time—1:09¾, 1:06, 1:07¾.

"Bugs" Raymond Dies in a Chicago Hotel

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Arthur ("Bugs") Raymond, former pitcher for the New York Giants and widely known in the baseball world for his eccentricities, was found dead in bed today in the Hotel Veley here. Death was due to heart failure, superinduced by the heat and excessive alcoholism.

Arthur "Bugs" Raymond was one of the best known characters in the national game. Raymond first attracted attention as a pitcher with the Detroit club almost ten years ago. He possessed great speed and a wonderful assortment of curves, but no manager could control his actions.

When "Bugs" was in condition he was almost unbeatable, but the big fellow very rarely kept in shape. Detroit finally let him go and he drifted to the St. Louis Cardinals, where he developed into one of the winning pitchers of the National League.

The erratic twirler was a big favorite with the "fans." The New York Giants got Raymond from St. Louis as part of the trade by which Roger Bresnahan went to St. Louis as manager. Raymond failed to make good in New York and was suspended. He spent too much time along the Great White Way.

CROWD AT LYNN RACES.

LYNN, Sept. 7.—With twenty-one horses starting and furnishing a surfeit of racing thrills, the postponed Labor Day matinee card of the Lynn Driving Club was raced off at Rockdale Park this afternoon and held the crowd of over 1,000 till sunset. Kitty Mapes, a daughter of Jerome Napoleon, which could not pace better than a three-minute clip last season, was the speed queen of the afternoon with a heat paced in 1:10¼. Lady Russell, twenty-one years old, turned a neat trick in beating Crash, 2:18, one-half, a graduate from the Gillis stable at Narragansett Park, which is back with Mertie Page, who gave him his record two years ago. It was the first time Crash was ever started in a matinee race.

CLANCY BIG WINNER AT MUNICIPAL GAMES

Wins All-Around Senior Prize in Roxbury Meet; Morrison Big Winner.

The final meet of the playground games of the Roxbury section were held at the Columbus avenue playgrounds yesterday afternoon and a fine set of events were participated in by many youthful athletes. There were events for juniors, intermediates and seniors and good performances ruled the greatest portion of the many races.

Joseph Clancy, in the senior division, was a feature of the program, winning many prizes and also the all-around prize for the seniors. Credit is also due J. F. Morrison. The Mechanic Arts boy fared exceptionally well in the senior division, winning the century race and the 220-yard race. He also won third prize in the running broad jump, and was second in the 440-yard race.

In the junior events the honors drifted to B. Raymond, winning three first prizes and two second prizes. Honors in the intermediate division were divided between J. J. Pender and A. J. Gormley.

MANY ENTRIES FOR MOTOR BOAT RACES

American's Great Carnival in Basin Sure to Be Tremendous Success.

ENTRY BLANK
BOSTON AMERICAN MOTOR BOAT RACE.

Name of Boat..................
Owner's Name..................
Owner's Address..................
Class..................

Already sufficient entries have been made to insure the tremendous success of the big motor boat speed carnival to take place on the Charles River Basin next Saturday afternoon, under the direction of the AMERICAN. It behooves those who desire to participate in this delightful and thrilling aquatic event, and who have not as yet sent in their entries, to rush them to the AMERICAN office at once.

It should be remembered that all entries are free.

The judges for the contest have been selected. They are John B. Killeen of the Boston Yacht Club regatta committee; Rear Commodore Frank Fessenden Crane of the Quincy Yacht Club, and C. Frank Moore, treasurer of the New England Boat and Engine Association.

Many Feature Races.

The judges will be located to the starboard so that the numbers of the entries must be fastened to show to the starboard.

Hydroplane races and motor boat contests between T wharf fishermen will figure in the program.

The gun that signals for preparation for the contests will be fired promptly at 2:30 o'clock. Following are the classes and schedule time for starting:

1—Racers unlimited, handicap according to American Power Boat Association rules, distance ten miles. Start 2:35.

2—Open boats over twenty feet, stated speed handicap, distance five miles. Start 2:40.

3—Open boats under twenty feet, stated speed handicap, distance five miles. Start 2:45.

4—Cabin cruisers thirty to forty feet, stated speed handicap, distance five miles. Start 2:50.

5—Cabin cruisers under thirty feet, stated speed handicap, distance five miles. Start, 3:55.

6—Hydroplanes, handicap according to American Power Boat Association rules, distance five miles. Start, 3:00.

7—T Wharf dories, boat for boat. Entrance free to all. Dories owned or run by fishermen. Distance five miles. Start, 3:05.

8—Free-for-all, open to any boat in New England, no handicap, distance fifteen miles. Preparatory gun, 3:45; start, 3:50.

Contestants must be careful to make a statement of the speed of their boats, as provided in the following rules for the contest:

Rules for Contests.

Races 1 and 6 will be handicapped under the American Power Boat Association rules. Races 7 and 8 are free for all.

Owners of boats starting in other classes must make statement of speed of their boats in statute or nautical miles per hour. To ascertain this, run your boat both ways over a fairly long course, the exact length of which may be determined from the chart, or from measurements, and from this you may compute your speed.

This speed will be used by the race committee in assigning the handicap. If the actual speed of your boat is found to materially exceed the speed given, the committee will tax the boat accordingly, so be careful to ascertain your speed correctly.

Every boat must carry at least two persons throughout the race.

Boats must be propelled by internal combustion motors, using gasolene, kerosene or alcohol for fuel. Energine, picric acid, ether or any ingredient to increase the power of the fuel will not be allowed, and no gasolene lighter than commercial seventy-six degrees Beaume scale shall be used.

Each boat must fly a flag number throughout the race. These may be obtained of the AMERICAN. Secure flag before making entry.

All boats competing must run with muffled exhaust. All boats not thoroughly muffled will be disqualified.

Protests must be made in writing and received by the committee within forty-eight hours of the race.

Keep away from the starting line until your turn comes.

Send your entry in at once. Address them to the Motor Boat Editor, Boston AMERICAN.

Bryce Evans Turns in Best Gross Score

In a field of nearly seventy contestants Bryce S. Evans of the Belmont Country Club captured the best gross score at the Massachusetts Golf Association's open tournament, played on the Bellevue Golf club links at Melrose yesterday afternoon. Evans went out in 39 and returned in 37 for a total of 76, beating out two competitors by one point. His performance going out was equalled by George R. Clough of the Bellevue club and his return play was equalled by Rodney R. Gorton of Brae-Burn and J. E. Kedian of Belmont.

R. R. Gorton won second best gross score with seventy-seven. He also made the best play of the day on number five green returning, driving to within a few inches of the hole and making the green in two shots. For best net prizes G. R. Clough of Bellevue, who also equalled Gorton's gross score, and G. S. Dunham of Brockton won first and second places.

The two winners of the gross trophies showed equal playing throughout the game and it was not until the last hole was shot that Evans was proclaimed the winner.

The detailed scores of the winners are:

Evans

BOGEY AT WOODLAND.

A Bogey competition was held at the Woodland Golf Club at Auburndale yesterday, there being fifty who entered in the two classes. G. L. Swett and F. Smith tied for first honors in the first class, both defeating the "Colonel" 5 up. Six players in that division defeated the Bogey of 77 for the course.

In Class B, F. W. Sprague, who has just returned from golfing on the Cape, won, finishing with a lead of 2 up on Bogey. H. G. Kent and E. S. Benedict were second, tied at 1 up.

The summary:

Class A—G. L. Swett, 5 up; F. Smith, 5 up; W. E. Sibley, 4 up; J. W. Gagan, 4 up; C. P. Whorf, 2 up; H. L. Paine, 2 up; L. B. Folsom, even; T. A. Ashley, 2 down; S. R. Dunham, 2 down; C. H. Whittier, 2 down.

Purdy Tennis Winner.

Owing to a small attendance the golf scheduled yesterday at the Bear Hill Golf Club was postponed until next Saturday. Some fast tennis was played instead.

Clough defeated White 14-12; Mark defeated Stout 6-3; Purdy defeated Leuroyd 6-2; Eaton defeated Upham 6-4.

In the semi-finals Stout defeated Clough 6-4 and Purdy defeated Eaton 6-3, and in the finals Purdy was the victor, defeating Stout 10-8, 6-2.

FORAMINIFER LEADS IN BEVERLY Y. C. RACES

BUZZARDS BAY, Sept. 7.—There were twenty-one starters in the eleventh club race of the Beverly Yacht Club at their club house at Wings Neck this afternoon. The finishes in each race were close and exciting and all classes interesting as the season is drawing to a close.

In the twenty-one-foot class six boats started over course 11 to Bird Island and Bow Bells buoy, a distance of 11¾ miles. The Foraminifer took the lead at the start and at the first mark was well in the lead of the Saracen and the Skate, the new East's boat, and when she headed around Scraggy Neck for the run home the Whittemore craft could not be headed and finished over a minute ahead of the Windsor boat. There was some close windward work between the Selwonk and the Polly Wog, the latter being headed at the finish by the Minutes.

In the Sonder class the Peg again took off the honors easily, although on the last leg the Joyette drove the Stone sonder on the finish. This class had but three starters and was sailed over the same course as the twenty-one footers.

The Crane class brought forth some good racing, the boats were well bunched at the start and all over the course to Bird Island and returning, a distance of eight miles. The boats kept together until the last leg, when the Pioneer took the lead and won the race by two minutes from Joshua Crane, Jr., with the Charmion. It was a close race between Young Crane and his sister, Miss Priscilla Crane, who sailed the Lestris, but was beaten by her brother by thirty-two seconds.

Five Girl Skippers.

There were five girl "skippers" in the 15-foot Herreshoff class that was sent over the same course as the Crane boats. Miss Margaret Codman and Miss Esther Hosmer fought it out for honors, Miss Codman with the Yalu and Miss Hosmer with the Pranto. It was exciting on the beat down to Bird Island, and more so on the run home. Miss Codman, however, headed the Pranto on the last leg and beat Miss Hosmer by only 31 seconds. The scramble for third place was between Miss Fiske with the Endeavor, Miss Taylor with the Ardman, Miss Slocum with the Fly, Miss Fiske however finishing third. The summary:

RAYMOND HAS LOW CARD.

Jones and Taber Tie for Low Net at Chestnut Hill.

Golf in the Newtons was ripe yesterday and all the courses including the Chestnut Hill links were the recipients of large fields yesterday. A. F. Jones and H. Taber tied for first net honors with scores of 83-14 69 and 91-22-69 respectively.

Nelson Raymond turned in the low gross score of the day with a 78 which was five strokes better than his nearest competitor. There were twenty or more players entered in the tournament and but twelve handed in cards, for the Chestnut Hill course is so cleverly laid out that low scoring is most infrequent.

The summary:

A. F. Jones, 83, 14, 69; H. Taber, 91, 22, 69; G. Sherman, 84, 14, 70; B. Lamb, 85, 14, 71; Raymond, 78, 5, 73; T. Baldwin, 86, 10, 76; S. Permar, 84, 6, 78; B. Locke, 90, 11, 79; L. Boardman, 93, 14, 79; C. Wiggin, 95, 15, 80; L. Kent, 97, 16, 81; R. Wales, 103, 20, 83.

WAKEFIELD HUMBLED.

Wakefield's long string of victories was broken yesterday at Wakefield by the York Beach team, which rolled up five runs and held the town boys to no runs. Wakefield's inability to hit the ball at critical times accounted for their defeat.

ONE HUNDRED FREE TICKETS TO GAMES.

Thousands of "fans" have enjoyed the ball games at the American and National League parks this season as guests of the AMERICAN.

Coupons are now being distributed with the AMERICAN, by the newsboys and newsdealers. These coupons are valuable if saved.

The AMERICAN prints one hundred numbers on the sport pages each day—fifty in the early editions and fifty new ones in the afternoon editions—and one hundred numbers every Sunday.

These coupons are valueless unless a big red cross appears across the front of them.

CLOSING REGATTA OF QUINCY CLUB

The racing season of the Quincy Yacht Club was closed in thrilling style yesterday afternoon with an open regatta sailed off the clubhouse.

All the boats got started in pretty order and every class furnished close and interesting races.

A strong southwest breeze helped greatly and the events were proclaimed the best and most successful the club has had this season.

The races were sailed over a triangular course of ten miles.

The judges were Hon. John O. Hall of the Quincy Yacht Club, George S. Morse of the Quincy Yacht Club, William H. Huy and Howard Gannett of the Squantum Yacht Club, George H. Bean and William C. Cherrington. The summary:

CANADIANS LOSE.

United States Cricketers Beat Canadians by 8 Points.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—The Canadian cricketers lost their annual match with the United States today when the Philadelphians triumphed over them by eight wickets.

The wicket was much faster than yesterday and the bowling of the local stars was treated to a more severe playing than was the case yesterday. In the second inning the Canadians scored 172 runs while all they amassed yesterday was 43. Saunders, with 39 runs, and Henderson with a total of 3[illegible], were high men.

AMERICAN AVERAGED 30 MILES AN HOUR

Underslung Car Covered 313½ Miles on Country Roads in Eleven Hours.

Any motorist who, within a very few years back, should say that he could ever see nearly thirty miles an hour over country roads, would have been called insane. But Charles Boyden, chief engineer of the American Motors Company and Richard Cook, of Grand Haven, Michigan, did just that on August 20.

The men left Grand Haven at 6 o'clock in the morning of that day and at 8:30 o'clock the same evening were at the American factory in Indianapolis. Their elapsed time of 14½ hours and an actual running time of 11 hours for the 313½ miles, it is a record which doubtless will stand for some time to come.

"The map will probably stand unbroken for a long time, and I, for one, won't care to attempt it again," said Mr. Boyden on his arrival at Indianapolis. "The roads are simply awful for a greater part of the distance. It hardly seems possible that the big American Underslung Tourist we used could have made it now that we have arrived. But we came through with colors flying, never once raising the hood nor experiencing any tire trouble. We stepped a total of 3½ hours on the run."

HINGHAM DISCARDS ITS POLICE TRAPS

South Shore Citizens Place Motorists on Honor Not to Speed.

The town of Hingham, backed by the Hingham Motor Club, assisted by a citizens' committee, have abolished its motor car traps. The selectmen of that town acted unanimously to instruct the chief of police to discard them and in their stead place his officers in uniform on the streets to direct motor traffic.

Thus, it can be seen that the citizens of the South shore town are doing their utmost to encourage motoring through their beautiful town, rather than being opposed to it.

Chief of Police James is thoroughly in sympathy with the movement of the selectmen and the Hingham Motor Club. He has recently reorganized his traffic policemen, and their instructors are to treat motorists with the utmost courtesy and in this way place the motor car owner on his honor not to violate the traffic laws by speed or by other infringements.

The plan although only a few weeks in operation has worked well, there being few if any reports of speeding and thousands of motorists who go to Nantasket and other South Shore resorts via Hingham have showered their praise upon the uniform courtesy shown to them by the police of that town.

Milwaukee Assured of Big Auto Meet

Host of Crack Pilots to Start in Vanderbilt and Grand Prix Races.

With a host of crack drivers on the list for the big car races, a "whale" of a meet at Milwaukee is assured. Mulford, Bergdoll, Hughes, Wishart, Tetzlaff and several others are to be seen in both Vanderbilt and Grand Prix events, while in the international Grand Prix Bruce-Brown and Bragg will team with Tetzlaff on the Fiats, and Boillot, winner of the French Grand Prix, and two other foreign pilots will have Peugeot mounts. Whether or not Boillot will drive both big racers has not been decided.

Fresh from his double victory at Kgim, the intrepid Ralph De Palma is expected to enter both big races with Edward Scarcedale's sensational Fiat Mercedes.

Three more entries were made this week for Milwaukee's great meet which is to be staged within the next two weeks. These are a trio of Mason cars entered for the Wisconsin trophy race which takes place on September 20, three days after the Grand Prix event. This is a 174½-mile event for cars of from 161-230 cubic inches.

Abbott-Detroit to Show Seven Models

New Salesrooms on Huntington Avenue Will Open This Week.

Frederick A. Dutton, who has taken over the local agency of the Abbott-Detroit car, announces that he will show seven new models of this line at his salesrooms, No. 76 Huntington avenue, within a few days.

The 1913 models are carried on two chassis known as the 54-40 and 44-50, with wheel bases of 118 inches and 124 inches respectively. The smaller chassis is a mechanical duplicate of the larger, except that the cylinders of the 54-40 motor are cast en bloc instead of in pairs as in the larger model. The 54-40 carries a five-passenger touring car and a three passenger roadster, while the 44-50 comprises two limousines, a seven-passenger touring car, a demi-tonneau and bellyback roadster.

Perhaps the most interesting and striking thing to an expert in the new self-cranking electric self [illegible] with which all cars are equipped. After two years of indefatigable work and experiment the Abbott engineers have succeeded in constructing a starter

When the Motor Car Will Skid

American genius discovered that if sufficient effort is put upon a chain that the weight of a car itself automatically and effective stops a tendency to slide or skid on a muddy road, says the American Motorist. After making that discovery the next thing to be done was to make a chain in such form that it could easily be put on and taken off the tire. Getting took care of that and few devices have done more to increase the safety of the man in the car than has the chain.

It is an easy matter to be safeguarded against this form of accident by going prepared when one starts out for rain. Nothing gives a greater feeling of security than "chains on all fours"; for, of all skids, the front wheel variety is most to be dreaded, as it is the hardest to counteract by manipulation of the steering wheel. But in the direst weather the efforts of the street sprinkler may be encountered or a sudden shower may come up so short a distance from home or your next stop, that you would rather take the risk than get out in the rain to put on the chains. In such contingencies, the ability to do the right thing at the right time is a great help. This is the advice of a seasoned motorist:

First of all drive slowly over the wet stretch. Like the Irishman's fall, it isn't the speed that hurts; it's the sudden stop that does the damage. So, after all means avoid putting on the brakes, as that simple locks the rear wheels and makes it easier for them to slide by preventing their natural tendency to roll ahead. The moment the car starts to slide at the rear, turn the front wheels sharply in the same direct [illegible] the car [illegible]. Both pairs then present [illegible] to the line of slide [illegible] and the rear wheels will [illegible] and follow the front wheels [illegible] of sliding. Turning the front wheels in the other direction will accentuate the tendency to skid to a dangerous degree.

If, after all is said, the [illegible] seem to have a set of chains

Town of Nantucket Violates Auto Law

Rather a peculiar condition of affairs exists in the island of Nantucket. There is a State law which excludes the automobile from use on the island and yet, strange though it may seem, the town of Nantucket has an automobile fire truck, which is motoring around the island without any regard whatsoever to the State law prohibiting the use of motor vehicles in that territory.

The residents of Nantucket are looking forward to the next town meeting when they will take action upon the question of opening the island to automobiles.

Some three years ago a special legislation was enacted to keep motor vehicles from this island, following an invasion of the same by Frank J. Tyler and several other Boston men. At that time the town have prevented the use of motor vehicles but they were not effective, as the State law made no such provision. The following year a special enactment was passed by the Legislature which prohibited motors in Nantucket, and yet the town officials violate the law by having in constant use an automobile fire truck.

Engineers Visit Rambler Factory

Fifty members of the Western Society of Engineers, Chicago, visited the Rambler factory last week and made a close inspection of the unit gasoline and electric motor with which the 1913 Cross Country is equipped.

The engineers came to Kenosha as the guests of the Thomas B. Jeffery Company, having been told that the Thomas B. Jeffery Company makes 96 per cent. of all parts used in the Cross Country car, the engineers were prepared to see something big in the way of equipment. Their expectations, they declared, were more than realized.

The unit gasoline and electric motor attracted particular attention. The visitors, gathered about a 1913 Cross Country chassis, examined the motor from every angle. They saw how, in taking the place of the fly wheel, this equipment saves weight, bearings, chains, gears and complicated wiring, and they marveled at its silent operation. The engineers were closely attentive

HANDLEY COMPLETES MARION ORGANIZATION

Well-Known Motorists Join Indianapolis Concern and Enlarge Factory.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 7—Announcement was made here yesterday by President J. I. Handley of the Marion Motor Car Company of the completion of his new organization. Under his direction an executive staff composed of men of national prominence in the industry have come to this city and have reorganized the Marion Company.

Some four months ago Mr. Handley, who also remains president of the American Motors Company, turned his attention to the Marion factory, increased the capitalization and made big plans for enlarged production and distribution. On August 1 he assumed entire charge of the plant, the largest in the city, and stated that he would have a corps of prominent assistants who would organize a manufacturing and distributing campaign to make the Marion Company one of the most prominent factors in the trade.

The list of men who will work with Mr. Handley in carrying out the new and extensive policies which he has inaugurated includes J. B. Myers, vice-president in charge of production, J. M. Edsall, treasurer; F. G. W. Sudrow, sales manager; M. B. Morgan, chief engineer; W. McK. White, advertising manager.

MAKES NEW RECORD.

Locomobile Big Six Driven from Denver to Chicago in 39 Hours.

Lowering by several hours the record for an automobile trip from Denver to Chicago, a distance of over 1,200 miles, Leo Gallitzke in a Locomobile Six with three passengers arrived in the latter city on Saturday last.

Although Mr. Gallitzke left Denver on Wednesday, his actual running time was only 39 hours and 25 minutes, which taking into consideration the extremely poor condition of the roads for some miles east of Denver, was a particularly creditable performance. As a result of the very rough roads encountered he was thoroughly exhausted on Friday and therefore drove only about half a day.

HAINES STRUGGLE READS LIKE ROMANCE

General Manager of Regal Motor Car Co. Is Only 32 Years Old.

The story of Fred W. Haines, vice-president and general manager of the Regal Motor Company of Detroit, at the age of thirty-two the operating head of one of the most prosperous automobile companies in the country, reads like a romance. It is a story of struggle and victory over adversity.

The growth of the Regal Motor Car Company is an indication of his tremendous strides in the automobile industry. The Regal concern produced 375 cars in 1907, and their output for 1911 will be approximately 10,000 cars.

As a youth Mr. Haines aspired to become an electrical engineer and spent all of his spare time experimenting and delving into the science of electricity. At this time automobiles were in their infancy, but Mr. Haines determined to own one. Unable to afford a machine, he built one himself—a crude vehicle compared to the motor cars of today.

Mr. Haines determined to excel, and he constructed another car which was so good that capital was speedily interested and eventually the Regal Motor Car Company was founded in the Fall of 1907. Mr. Haines threw his energy and individuality into the venture, and it was his wisdom and ability that gave the world the moderately priced 30-horse power touring car.

Mr. Haines is a practical engineer himself—was convinced of the utility and safety of the "underslung" principle as applied to the automobile—a conviction that resulted in the construction and marketing on a tremendous scale of the Regal Underslung.

Drive 4,000 Miles.

"A new record for automobile pleasure touring has been set by W. B. Palliser and wife, of Rochester, New York," says H. E. Ehland, assistant general manager and director of sales of the Havers Motor Car Company. "From Rochester to San Francisco, Cal., in less than forty-five days by motor car, over unfamiliar roads is some going." Mr. Ehland went on to say. "Mr. and Mrs. Palliser left their home in Rochester July 9, driving a 44-horsepower Havers six-cylinder car, which they had just purchased."

Standing in World Series Race

Contest to Close September 29

With today's vote standing the Contest Editor makes an important announcement.

The Red Sox are coming down the stretch in the hottest race in baseball history. Nothing like the present baseball excitement has ever been known. The country is [illegible]. With all the interest in the great World's Series Contest is on the increase and the competition for the twenty prizes is keen.

In view of the tremendous excitement and interest and in response to a general demand that the contest be fought out simultaneously with the Red Sox battle for the championship the Contest Editor has extended the period for the closing of the contest to Sunday, September 29. The last vote coupon will appear on that date.

Here is the vote standing, compiled up to Tuesday, September 3, at 11 P. M., of all candidates who had over 5,000 votes to their credit at that time:

CADILLAC SALES FORCE.

Manager Measure Has a Strong Organization.

The most recent addition to the sales department of the Cadillac company of Boston is Fred H. Lucas, for a long time prominent in the fine carriage trade in Boston, and in recent years associated with well-known local automobile establishments. He joins the Cadillac company in a general representative.

Mr. Lucas is well remembered by hundreds of high-class carriage, as he was identified with that business before the rise of the motor car. Leaving the carriage trade, he became associated with the Hart square automobile station, then the agency for Studard-Dayton and also cars in his was later connected with the Stoddard Dayton branch and recently has been sales manager of the Whitney Barney company, agent for the Selden and other cars.

Other members of the sales staff are Theodore A. Earle, formerly with the Studebaker; Edward Becker, who last year was connected with the Imperial agency; C. J. Bailey, well known from his association with the Franklin sales in Boston, and C. W. Cole, who was formerly a member of the Studebaker company's organization in California.

The sales department is in charge of G. M. Leghorn as sales manager, who has been with the company for a long time and is recognized as the right man in the right position.

NEW OAKLAND BRANCH.

Edward K. Leach, Widely Known to Trade, to Be Manager

Following their policy of establishing branch houses in leading distribution centres so as to improve the service and of their business and to facilitate the selling end, the Oakland Motor Car Company of Pontiac, Mich., will, on September 1, establish a branch in Philadelphia, to be conducted by the Oakland company of Pennsylvania, which has handled this car, as an agency for the past three years. The branch will be in charge of Edward K. Leach, than whom no automobile man is perhaps better known in the United States.

Mr. Leach has for the past eighteen months been general manager of the Commercial Car Journal, which he started and has conducted to a successful business in that period. His exceptionally large acquaintance among all of the leading men in the automobile business as well as his fair and honest business method, stood him in good stead in his magazine work. He is also popular in club circles, being an active member of the Union League of Philadelphia, the Art Craft Club of Detroit and other organizations.

Ready for you NOW

—Ready with the best that automobile science can put into a car.

Ready now to prove to you that a Studebaker is not only a great car—its wonderful record has proved this—but that it is TODAY more than ever the up-to-the-minute car.

Every improvement in today's Studebaker is a thoroughly tested improvement. We neither hurry nor hold back an improvement on account of season or time of year. When an improvement is proved we use it as soon as practicable.

NOW, on the brink of the delightful Fall season, you find the Studebaker finished to date in all its perfection—a car of real beauty, a car that says comfort the moment you look at it, a car that down to the smallest nut, and bearing is absolutely perfect in workmanship—that had to be perfect before it could be permitted to carry the name Studebaker.

The enormous modern equipment of the Studebaker organization—the greatest in the world—and the unprecedented sales of Studebaker cars have made their low price possible. The integrity of their construction and the thoroughly good character of the workmanship make their low up-keep possible.

With a Studebaker car you are sure. When you step into it today you know that the big Studebaker organization with sixty years successful business experience behind it, has put into that car every ounce of knowledge and skill that could be put there—and that its national reputation for business integrity is under your hand on that steering wheel.

Every part of a Studebaker car is a Studebaker part—all are made by us—all are supplied by us through the nationalized Studebaker Service that is near to you everywhere through 36 factory branches and 2500 equipped dealers.

Every Studebaker car, whoever may own it, wherever it may be, holds our interest because it holds our reputation. The satisfaction of $1,000 owners is our biggest asset.

THE FALL MOTOR TOURING SEASON NOW AT HAND

The Seashore Resorts Are Now Being Deserted for the Country and Mountains Regions Where Color Will Shortly Run Riot with the Foliage

By J. C. KERRISON.

The seashore season is waning the cry of the mountain and country is heard. The motorists who tour for pleasure are now hearking to the call of Nature and speeding into the countries and mountains, to gain a glimpse of the Autumnal foliage which is just coming into fashion.

The months of September and October have always proven two of the most successful touring months of the year and the indications at the present time are that these two months will surpass all records in that direction.

Summer touring differs considerable from Fall touring. One cannot very well start on a Fall tour without making preparations for cool mornings and evenings, so heavy take the place of light garments, and the cool bracing atmosphere causes one to exchange the lightweight duster for the heavier motor coat.

The Berkshires, the White Mountains and the country at large are proving magnets that cannot be resisted by those who have once tasted the joys and pleasures of Fall touring.

This year has been the greatest touring year in the history of New England, visitors coming in from every section of the country, even as far away as the Pacific coast, and they have invariably returned home with a more positive opinion and idea of their own great country than they had previously possessed.

From the seashore resorts, from the mountain regions and from the country reports of a successful motoring season have been received. While the hotels have enjoyed greater revenue than ever, the tribunals have lost a measure, lost but little of their former patronage, in the influx of motor visitors has to a degree been mostly of new people who in these days of motor vehicles seldom resort to railroads.

It is obvious that the Fall season has been selected by most motorists as the time for long-distance tours. From every section of the country comes reports of long-distance touring records being established by enthusiastic motorists whose only object is to secure the full enjoyment of touring. In striking comparison to these tourists who predominate comes the call of others who desire to establish long-distance touring records.

The great classic is to be held next month, when the Glidden tour, which is known as the A. A. A. National Reliability Run, will start from Detroit and wend its way toward New Orleans.

Most of the touring has been in New England the past few months, and it is conservatively estimated that over 25,000 cars from other States have come into New England. Of course, during this month there will be quite a number come in for the purpose of climbing up the mountains and enjoying the foliage.

Noted Race Pilot Will Build Autos

Louis Chevrolet Will Manufacture a Car "Six" Bearing His Name.

"Few industries are so interwoven with romance, few provide the thrills for and attract the public like the business of making and selling automobiles," says H. G. Deupree, assistant sales manager of the Remy Electric Company, Anderson, Ind. "The dream of the inventor is the car of tomorrow. The smoke and dust begrimed race track klog of yesterday surprises the world as a man of commerce and the builder of a motor car today.

"Two decades ago the public laughed at the man who had the fortitude to drive one of the experiments. Today it pays the homage to the captains of industry that control the automobile building of factories. Truly the motor car has come into its own.

"A prosperous appearing business man sat in one of the boxes during the 500-mile race at Indianapolis. He watched the cars go round with more than a cursory glance. This man had in the days of yore driven on this same track. He had heard the plaudits of the throng as his name was called and he had driven his cars to victory to the cheers of thousands. Let out few of the 80,000 spectators at the Indianapolis event knew that Louis Chevrolet watched the race from the stands.

"Louis Chevrolet will soon offer to the automobile buying public a car bearing his own name. When he places his new "six" on the market, Chevrolet will be able to offer one of the most silent motors ever produced—and silence is one big asset of all engineers. Chevrolet, after the most rigid tests, has named the Remy magneto to fire these six-cylinder wonders. The great driver had seen many races with Remy ignition, and when such a silent machine was shown him he did not hesitate to adopt it."

FORD AVOIDS SENATORS

Has Not Pitched a Game in Washington This Season.

Washington critics have called attention to the fact that Russell Ford, the Highlands' star, has not pitched in a single game in that city this year. In the first series played by the Highlanders in Washington, Quinn and Vaughn each pitched one game, while Caldwell and Hoff participated in the other. In the July series Warhop Fisher, McConnell and Quinn each officiated in the game, Fisher and Warhop dividing honors. Fisher, Davis and Caldwell occupied the box in the last series.

Havana Golfers' Mecca.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Havana bids fair to command some attention next Winter when the golfers go South to escape the rigors of the northern climate. Some time ago certain New York enthusiasts started to interest themselves in a country club house, which they decided to build on the outskirts of the Cuban capital on about 125 acres of rolling ground. Operations were begun only last October, but so readily adaptable has the property proved that nine of the holes are now in commission, and the promoters of the venture are hopeful that before long a full 18-hole course will be available.

BOSTON MOTOR TRAPS

Traps are being worked continuously in the city of Boston, especially in the Back Bay section, on Beacon street, Commonwealth avenue, Huntington avenue Columbus avenue and Massachusetts avenue. These traps are charged frequently. At times on Beacon street they are worked between Charles street and the State House; at other times between Charles street and Massachusetts avenue, and frequently between Massachusetts avenue and the Hotel Somerset. On Commonwealth avenue the traps are usually worked between the Hotel Buckminster and College Farm Station. On Columbus avenue they are usually worked between Berkeley street and Northway Crossing. On Huntington avenue they are usually worked in the vicinity of Copley square, but frequently the traps are worked further out.

The business of the Municipal Court of the city of Boston usually has a person guilty of driving faster than is reasonable and proper, that is faster than eighteen miles an hour in the thickly settled sections of Boston.

Many motorists are also being summoned into court for not slowing down and giving a signal at intersecting streets where the operator's view is obstructed. To simply blow the horn without slowing down is not in comply with the law, which requires that the operator must both slow down and give a timely signal, at intersecting streets where the view is obstructed.

NEW R-C-H MODEL.

Manager Wheeler Gets a New Two-Passenger.

Another model, a two-passenger roadster on a 110-inch wheelbase chassis has been added to the R-C-H line. The new car is built along lines to incorporate the features which have had much to do with the remarkable growth of the R-C-H since its advent, less than a year ago. The English roadster body inaugurated in the first R-C-H cars has been retained, but with much lower seats and extra deep cushions Mounted on the rear deck of the car is a gasoline tank of twenty-six gallons capacity and a trunk large enough to carry two suitcases. The chassis of the new model is exactly like that of the touring car, with the same efficient motor that has been incorporated in all R-C-H models, assuring the owner plenty of power to overcome the worst of road and conditions.

Nova Scotia Will Boom Good Roads

Bostonian Addresses Union of Its Municipalities on Touring Trade.

Thomas F. Anderson, secretary of the New England Shoe and Leather Association, recently addressed the Union of Nova Scotian Municipalities at its annual convention in Antigonish, N. S., on the subject of tourist trade development. In the course of his address he devoted considerable attention to the need of better roads and more up-to-date sign posting in Nova Scotia and other parts of eastern Canada, and also called attention to the importance of encouraging the visits of automobile touring parties, as a factor in building up a profitable tourist business.

Although some of the counties in Nova Scotia have closed their highways to automobiles during certain days in the week, this greatly hampering visiting automobilists, the number of automobile tourists visiting the province from New England and other parts of the United States is annually increasing.

The favorite automobile trip in Nova Scotia is the one between Yarmouth and Halifax, taking in the famous Annapolis Valley, where a million barrels of apples will be harvested this Fall. The roads through this route are for the most part in very fair condition, but there is a great demand for a through "hard" highway between these two important tourist points.

The purchase of motor cars on the part of natives of Nova Scotia is constantly on the increase, and in time the Land of Evangeline will undoubtedly beyond a veritable automobilists' paradise, its scenery being exceedingly attractive and its Summer climate ideal.

Ford in Boston.

Henry Ford, head of the Ford Motor Company of Detroit, who has been spending the Summer abroad, was a visitor in Boston for a short time Thursday. He came from New York, stopping off at Providence, and after seeing Manager Charles E. Fay of the New England branch departed for Detroit. He will make several stops en route. Manager Fay is at his desk again after being away from Boston during the month of August.

BIG INCREASE IN MOTOR REGISTRATION

The Greatest Number of Motor Vehicles Ever Registered Owned in This State.

It is interesting to know that during the first three-quarters of the current year the receipts of the automobile department of [illegible] somewhat in excess of the entire receipts from the same source during the year 1911. There has up to date been an increase of 31 per cent. in the registration of cars, and there has already been collected $118,181.25 more from the motorists than was received during the first eight months of the previous year; the total receipts for that period being $772,201.50.

There have been licensed to operate automobiles since the first of January a total of more than 86,000 people against less than 46,000 for last year. Of the 86,000 licenses issued 29,180 were renewals of private operators' licenses, 11,025 were chauffeurs' renewals and 4,182 original chauffeurs' licenses.

SPEEDY AND SAFE

Milwaukee Course Has Long Straightaways.

The Milwaukee race course over which will be run the contests for the Vanderbilt Grand Prize, Wisconsin and Fabet trophies, September 17 to 21, has been improved at a cost of more than $25,000 and it is judged by experts to be the speediest of any road course in America.

E. G. Williams, an expert road builder, who was sent to Milwaukee to inspect the construction of the work for William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., chairman of Contest Committee of the Automobile Club of America, and donor of the Vanderbilt Cup, when asked his opinion of the course said: "New records are almost certain to be made on it. The course is both speedy and safe, with long straightaways and just enough rail to provide a thrilling time. Wide curves will permit a great speed without adding to the danger materially."

Teddy Tetzlaff, the fast known of Weak-ees drivers, who averaged 76.5 miles per hour in the Santa Monica road race, had this to say of the course. "Race enthusiasts who visit the Milwaukee events will see the greatest speed events ever run. The long straightaways, with wide, fast turns, permit of record-breaking speed. I will make some new records myself, or provide the spectators with broken carriers in the attempt."

The course has been built with the utmost regard for safety, and spectators will not be permitted to be within three hundred feet of the course. The course will be ready for practice the first part of this week, when the drivers will begin work in earnest. Bruce-Brown, Tetzlaff, Hughes, Bragg, Mulford, Wishart and other drivers who competed at the Elgin races will locate their camps along the course and begin tuning up their cars for the big events.

TEXAS FOR BROWNS.

St. Louis Squad Will Train Near Waco Next Spring.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7. The [illegible] Browns will not try to train next Spring at home as they did last Spring. Owner Ed Von Weise, because the White Sox will go to Hedges and George Stovall think well of Texas. They will have a chance to go west to go there again.

CRIPPLE HANGS UP NEW AUTO RECORD

With One Hand He Drives Cadillac 619 Miles in 33 Hours.

Using one hand only Harry von Stein drove [illegible] from Detroit to St. Louis recently and made a record, covering the distance of 619 miles in 33 hours and 36 minutes. The best previous record, even when the driving was done in normal fashion with two hands was in the neighborhood of 38 hours.

Mr. Grover's extraordinary trip was prompted by a recent [illegible] discussion over the merits of the Cadillac car, with special reference to the simplicity of its operation. Mr. Grover waxed enthusiastic, describing at length the ease with which the Cadillac is driven, its various appliances and devices, its remarkably efficient Delco electric self-cranking attachment. Recently he suffered a fracture of the right arm in an accident. In the enthusiasm of his argument he allowed that, crippled as he was, he could drive a Cadillac on a considerable road tour, confining himself to one hand.

The sporting blood of Mr. Grover's friends was aroused. W. F. Siegmund, a prominent business man of St. Louis, wanted to make a wager, and the result was that $250 was put up that Mr. Grover could not drive from Detroit to St. Louis, using only one hand.

Mr. Grover was accompanied to Detroit by Mr. Siegmund and Guy Millen, president of the Fisher Jewelry Company of St. Louis, as these two gentlemen wanted to get ocular observers and also partake of the fun. Mr. Grover secured a brand new 1913 car, right from the factory.

FIAT INCORPORATES.

E. R. Hollander at Head of New Organization.

Announcement is made of the incorporating of the Fiat Motor Sales Company to succeed the Fiat Automobile Sales Company at Broadway and 57th street, New York, in the distribution of Fiat cars. The officers of the new company are: President, E. R. Hollander of New York; vice-president, Henry M. Sage of Albany; treasurer, Chas. L. A. Whitney of Albany; secretary, R. D. Willard of New York.

In the formation of the new company J. S. Josephs and Benjamin Richberg, who have for years been connected with the sale of Fiat cars in New York, retire to devote their entire time to the development of the F. I. A. T. factory at Poughkeepsie, New York. Their action is in line with the plans of the parent factory at Turin, Italy, to greatly increase the output of its American Branch.

The new company will control the New York, Albany, Boston, Providence, and New England territory.

Returns to Loco.

Mr. Frank B. Crockett, one of the best known local salesmen in the motor industry, has returned to his old love at the Locomobile Company of America, he taking charge of his old desk at the Commonwealth Avenue establishment on Tuesday morning next. Mr. Crockett is one of the best salesmen in point of service in this city, and his familiarity with the high-priced trade is generally admitted. Mr. Crockett has been identified with the local industry for the last ten years, during in that period been connected with houses of the highest standing.

He left the Locomobile company about a year ago to accept the position he is now leaving to take up his old duties with the Locomobile company.

Purchaser Should Consider Service

Premier Manager Tells About Value of Well Equipped Station.

"It is service, as much as anything else that a buyer should consider nowadays before making his purchase," said H. L. Ladd, manager of the New England branch of the Premier Motor Car Company. "Cars, as a general rule, are today well built, and give satisfactory service; yet, in spite of everything that can be done, there is likely to come a time when they will need some slight adjustment or the replacing of some small part.

"Unless the branch at which the car was sold has a well-equipped service station, with a complete stock of parts and good mechanics to do the work, the car is likely to be out of commission several days, while the parts are being shipped on from the factory. The delay is nowadays unnecessary, and is hardly fair to the owner.

"In order that this will never be the case with a Premier owner, the company has established in many of the large cities throughout the country excellent service stations with everything in stock and the very best possible mechanics. Enough, in fact, to assemble a new car in a few days if necessary. Right here in Boston there is just such a service station in connection with the Premier branch, our sales and salesrooms occupying six floors with enough machinery to start a small factory if necessary.

"In appearance, quality and all round proficiency this car is the equal of any car on the market and the demand for it to date from dealers throughout the country who find ready buyers for it has been nothing short of remarkable."

The first of these 1913 Little Six models will be in Boston early this week for demonstration purposes though deliveries have already begun, several having been sold to date in Boston from photographs and specification sheets to former Premier owners.

Mail Wagons in London.

Seventy new motor mail wagons are about to be employed in London to convey letters and parcels between the central and district postoffices and railway stations. The wagons can carry a ton each and will bring up the motor fleet of the London general postoffice to about one hundred vehicles. In the judgment of the postoffice officials this postal motor fleet would prove of great advantage during a railway strike, as many of the wagons could be used for collection and distribution of letters and parcels in places even at a considerable distance from London.

Garford Opens New Quarters in Boston

R. & L. Co. to Handle This Line in New England.

The home of the Boston branch of the R. & L. Company will be established on Tuesday morning next in the Thomas Building, No. 821 Boylston street. This company, distributors of Garford pleasure cars and motor trucks, has taken over the entire building so that it can give to its patrons in New England the very best of service and satisfaction.

In opening up its Boston branch the company has sent here in charge of the same, F. C. Chrysler as general manager. Mr. Chrysler is one of the pioneers in the motor industry, having paid particular attention during the past ten years to the production, sales end and the study of motor trucks from an owner's standpoint. He is recognized as one of the best posted truck men in the country. As his chief assistant he will have his son, F. C. Chrysler, who is as familiar with pleasure cars as his general manager is with motor trucks. Young Mr. Chrysler will have entire charge of the pleasure end and act as assistant to his peter.

The Garford cars and trucks are by no means unknown to New England, they having gained a reputation for itself in this district during the past eight or ten years.

The company is bringing a full line of fours and sixes, there being two models of the six-cylinders and two sizes of the four-cylinders with various bodies such as runabout, touring and limousine. In the truck line the Garford models range from 1½ to 7-ton capacity and are turned out by masters of the art of truck building.

The company will be open for business on Tuesday morning and will then have an exhibition a full line of cars, both pleasure and commercial.

Whisk Broom Lasts.

Jim Johnstone, the umpire, bought a new whisk broom the other day, the same article being for the purpose of brushing off the plate. This item is interesting only to show the length of life of a whisk broom. Johnstone had used his old one for twelve years. It was worn down until the straws were only an inch long and had long since ceased to be too short for clothes brushing purposes. But for umpiring a whisk broom will last twelve years, unless it should happen to be stolen.

Actual sales last fiscal year over preceding year—Gain 183 per cent.
Actual sales first month this year over same last year—Gain 200 per cent.

SIXTEEN HUNDRED MILE CONTEST

Glidden Tour Route Is Mapped and Calls for Daily Average Run of 135 Miles.

The contestants in the forthcoming Glidden tour, which is officially known as the National Reliability Tour of the American Automobile Association, is to cover a period of thirteen days and a total distance of a little over 1,600 miles, the average daily run being about 1 [illegible]

The tour this year will start at Detroit on Monday morning, October 7 and finish in New Orleans on the evening of Saturday, October 19. The route selected is one replete with historic interest and natural wonders, and the tour from the Lakes to the Gulf will be fraught with interest as well as hardships to those who contest.

The cities which have been favored by being placed on the route of this year's tour have, in many cases, had to show more than good roads to obtain the honor. In other words, they were called upon to render financial support to the proposition, the New Orleans committee, which has charge of the Southern part of the route, having agreed to raise $4,500 to meet sundry and various expenses connected with the event and in order to do so they have called upon many cities and towns to aid them.

In the work of the pathfinder car which has laid out the tour from Detroit, the Flanders pathfinder covered a distance of 1,717 miles, and yet the car shows no traces of the wear and tear incident to the strenuous trip. It climbed hills and plowed through mud and mud and over roads that might have balked a powerful gas car, but it had never even the slightest trouble. The pathfinding trip did not prove one continuous round of pleasure because of unusual rain weather encountered with a 200 miles of New Orleans.

The mapping of a National highway from Detroit to New Orleans was very much worth while. Exactly twenty-eight days from the time of leaving Detroit the pathfinding car completed the long grind; actual running time was 211¼ days. However, Mr. Westcard, in his usual thorough and painstaking way, made a good job of the road mapping and the party laid off a day at each important point on the route. He expressed the opinion that if the expected dryer weather should prevail in October the big tour will be easily negotiated by the hundred or more cars that compete for the Glidden and other trophies. The coming of the Flanders pathfinding car spurred every community passed through with the determination to improve the roads in its vicinity, especially was this true in the South. Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, are States that will be benefited by the tour.

The New York to Jacksonville tour last year was a fine one, according to Mr. Westgard, but the Detroit to New Orleans run will be far greater. Indianapolis, Louisville, Memphis, Jackson and Baton Rouge are some of the interesting points and citizens of these cities are keenly alive to what the visits of the tourists will mean. It remained for New Orleans to cap the climax in the way of lavish reception. The local committee, composed of I. B. Rennyson, Joseph O. Schwartz and L. K. Nicholson, had arranged a banner welcome.

Though the entry blanks have only been issued during the past week, entries have been coming in daily. Charles J. Glidden, donor of the famous trophy, may drive a car himself in the non-contesting division. The first entries to be filed were those of three Flanders six-cylinder cars which have been allotted numbers 1, 2 and 3. The Lion Motor Car Company of Adrian, Mich., will have numbers 4, 5 and 6 for three Lion cars. The Krit Motor Car Company of Detroit with two entries have been awarded numbers 7 and 8. The following firms or individuals have also signified their intention of entering the tour, which will without doubt have a larger number of entrants than any former National Tour: H. H. Goodrich, Hudson, Mich.; P. M. Fredericks Brothers, Adrian, Mich.; Overland, Charles W. Gordon, Pasadena, Cal.; Marion Motor Car Company, Indianapolis, Ind.; Marion, I. K. Nicholson, New Orleans, La.; The Eisenhay Company, Chicago, Ill.; Boaz Auto Import Company, New York, N. Y.; Stein, The Brietson Manufacturing Company, Brookings, S. D.; Pierce; D. M. W. Kalnell, Pass Christian, Miss.; Robert R. Reynolds, Ashville, N. C.; Mitchell; J. E. Miller, M. D., Rogersville, Tenn.; Metz Company, Waltham, Mass.; Metz.

Loxier Expert Points Out Its Mechanical Advantages.

With the majority of 1913 cars on view in the various salesrooms and a discriminating public carefully examining the merits of each, the question of "right or left hand drive" is being discussed in all parts of the country.

Many surprises were brought out in this connection in the announcements of last season's models. Not the least among these is the number of high-priced cars which have adopted the left-hand drive and centre control features. J. G. Perrin, chief engineer of the Loxier Motor Company, says the mechanical advantages are also important.

"Left-side drive with centre control enables the change-speed levers to be mounted directly on the gearbox forming one unit," says Mr. Perrin. "This eliminates the usual right-side drive troubles where two telescoping shafts run from the gearbox to the frame, on the end of which the control levers are mounted. This construction requires very careful fitting to avoid too much rattle on the one hand, or cramping on the change-speed lever on the other, due to the fact that each connects two different members of the chassis, namely—the frame and the gearbox—and these two units are not immovably connected to each other."

STUTZ SIX IS COMING.

First of 1913 Line Reached Boston Yesterday.

Several enthusiastic owners of the Stutz car, who anticipate driving a Stutz "Six" this season, made the trip to New York during the past week to look over this new car, which thus far has not arrived in Boston, although Manager Chase expects it here during the coming week.

The first of the 1913 line arrived in Boston yesterday and is a Model S, four-cylinder roadster, finished in a rich blue color, and certainly is a snappy looking car. It is equipped with electric lights, inside control, and has a number of other interesting features.

Manager Chase expects to have a six-cylinder touring car and roadster to demonstrate within a few days.

CHARMING CENTURY RUN TO FITCHBURG

Tour Today Takes Motorist Through the Interior of the State and Includes the Historic Town of Concord.

Today's route in the Boston AMERICAN series of runs is from Boston to Fitchburg, approximately a distance of 100 miles. A portion of this route, from Boston to historic Concord, has been covered in previous routes, so that while the run itself starts in Boston, the description of the route will be started at Concord square.

At flagpole in square turn left keeping right at library, where trolley bears left at fork beyond bear right on Elm street, leaving trolley. At reformatory, bear right and at next fork bear left, shortly crossing railroad. Continue on straight through West Acton to fork, where bear left. Follow to end of road and turn right straight on to Harvard. At four corners turn left and keep on to Still River. Turn right at three corners, crossing over railroad and Nashua River. At Leominster turn right and follow trolley to Fitchburg.

DEMAND ACCESSIBILITY.

Working Parts Easy to Get at in Buicks.

F. W. A. Vesper, assistant general sales manager of the Buick Motor Company, of Flint, recently discussed in an illuminating manner the problem of accessibility, with special reference to what the Buick is doing to make inspection of working parts easy. Mr. Vesper said:

"One of the demands made by the user of the modern motor car is accessibility, or the ability to inspect working parts readily. In the Buick Model 40, accessibility has been carried to as great a degree as is practicable; that is, everything has been made accessible except where such accessibility would mean an additional part or reduction of efficiency, which would cause the accessibility to be of less value to the user than the ordinary construction."

"The Car Complete"

F. O. B. DETROIT

The man who is in the market for a car at near the R-C-H price; and who does not buy an R-C-H, will not get equal value for his money, either in construction or equipment, anywhere else

IN the first place, the R-C-H is built complete in our own great plants. The profits which makers of assembled cars pay to parts-makers are put to additional car-value in the R-C-H. The R-C-H introduced the left-side drive with center control and hand-brake in moderate-priced cars built in quantity. This increases the safety and convenience of automobile operation.

The R-C-H is exceptionally simple and easy for the beginner to learn.

The R-C-H has gained the nickname of "The Gum-Shoe Car" because it is so quiet.

Owners of R-C-H cars do not offend the public with clouds of smoke.

R-C-H cars are provided with large and small electric head lights. The strong lights, offensive to others, can be turned off on crowded thoroughfares.

They have soft toned "Tally-ho" horns that do not offend pedestrians like other shrieking signals. R-C-H Cars do not have muffler cut-outs, which are exceedingly offensive to owners of horses, pedestrians and other automobilists.

The R-C-H does not leak oil on the roadway when left standing.

The car is easy to start—easy to steer. The clutch throws out easily. Slight pressure on the brakes holds the car on steepest hills. The foot hand accelerator is flexible, enabling or the car to travel from three to forty miles per hour and taking easily the roughest roads and steepest hills.

The R-C-H is famous everywhere as the easiest riding car.

The R-C-H smooth body surfaces and clean cut chassis design make it the easiest car to wash and keep spick and span. R-C-H accessibility makes the car the easiest to repair, and repair bills the smallest.

R-C-H prices on repair parts are the lowest quoted by any automobile manufacturer in the world.

The R-C-H is a most economical car in gasoline and oil consumption and gets great mileage from tires.

The R-C-H body is most comfortable and affords greatest protection from wind, rain and dust. The doors are wide and front seats have dash ventilators. There is ample room for three adults in the tonneau, and plenty of room lengthwise so that there is no cramping of the limbs.

The R-C-H introduced the long stroke four cylinder motor in popular priced cars built in quantity. It has done much to demonstrate that a long stroke four has all the desirable qualities of a six-cylinder motor, without the complicated mechanism, extra weight and lack of economy.

The R-C-H introduced non-skid tires all around as regular equipment on automobiles, thereby making motoring safer, reducing chance of puncture and prolonging the life of the tires.

The R-C-H introduced the first high-grade speedometer ever used as regular equipment on moderate priced motor cars.

The R-C-H introduced the rich and durable red and black color combination as standard in quality production of automobiles.

The R-C-H introduced the rear view mirror as regular equipment on automobiles, greatly aiding in the safety of automobile operation.

The R-C-H introduced the one-piece windshield, doing away with the useless lower glass and improving the vision.

The R-C-H introduced demountable and quick-detachable rims for moderate priced cars built in quantities.

The R-C-H is the chief exponent of high grade magnetos. More than 5000 Bosch magnetos now in use on R-C-H cars are giving perfect service.

The R-C-H introduced the straight-side-no-rim-cut tires—noiseless transmission gears—vibrationless motor.

The R-C-H has brought the moulding of gray iron to its greatest perfection. Over 5000 cars now in use have not produced one defective casting.

The R-C-H worked out the use of drop forgings to the greatest degree, adding greatly to the strength and durability of the car.

In over 5000 cars now in use in which are assembled one million drop forgings, there has not been one single case of defect.

FROM "STANDARD OIL AND THE JUDICIARY," IN HEARST'S MAGAZINE FOR SEPTEMBER

Elkins, When Candidate for Judge, Wrote Archbold for Aid

Oil Paymaster Picked Men for the Pennsylvania Bench

We have seen orders sent by Archbold to Quay, Penrose and Sibley. We have seen those orders executed. We have seen large sums of money given to all three of these gentlemen, and now we have seen money given to Attorney-General Elkin, who was about to be placed upon the Supreme Court bench.

Certainly there was no doubt in the mind of Mr. Elkin as to whom he should look for political support, not only for himself but for others. Four days before the election which placed him upon the bench he wrote the following letter to Mr. Archbold, vice-president of the Standard Oil and political purchasing agent for that company:

October 31, 1904.

To Mr. John Archbold, New York:

My Dear Sir—In the county of Lancaster, Pa., the regular Republican ticket is being opposed by an independent movement.

Hon. W. W. Greist, Secretary of the Commonwealth under the Stone administration, is the leader of the regular Republicans and our particular friend. Your people have some interests in Lancaster County, and if you could get them to take an interest for the straight Republican ticket you would confer a favor.

Very cordially yours,

JOHN P. ELKIN.

This letter from a candidate for the Supreme Court of the State of Pennsylvania was written to the executive head of the Oil Trust at his office in New York.

Of course, Mr. Elkin was elected. The nomination by the Oil Trust machine earlier in the year was a sufficient guarantee of that result.

Gets His Reward.

Attorney-General Elkin had given eminent satisfaction and was rewarded. He has since given superior satisfaction to the Oil Trust and is in line for further preferment. He was even seriously suggested for appointment to the Supreme Court of the United States when President Taft recently was considering which particular trust candidate he should name for one of the vacant places.

Going back as far as the year 1898, we find that Mr. Archbold was conspiring for the appointment of John J. Henderson to the bench. He wrote this to Governor Hastings:

June 28, 1898.

Daniel H. Hastings, Governor, Harrisburg, Pa.

My Dear Sir—If it is consistent for you to appoint Judge Henderson, of Crawford County, to fill the vacancy in the Superior Court caused by the death of Judge Wickham, of Beaver County, I will appreciate it greatly.

It is not necessary for me to dwell on Judge Henderson's capabilities. They are undoubtedly well known to you.

Very truly yours,

JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

The letter to Governor Hastings was merely a matter of form. The real man to obtain Henderson's appointment was Quay, and so on the same day that Archbold wrote to the Governor he also wrote to the man who would really make the appointment, "Mat" Quay:

June 28, 1898.

My Dear Senator:

If it is possible for you to favor Judge Henderson, of Crawford County, to fill the vacancy in the Superior Court caused by the death of Judge Wickham I will appreciate it greatly. Of course you know all about the matter.

Very truly yours,

JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

Hon. M. S. Quay,
Senate Chamber,
Washington, D. C.

Henderson, of course, ultimately got the appointment. Much wire-pulling was required to bring it about. It is himself has admitted that Mortimer F. Elliott, general counsel for the Standard Oil Company, had helped him. Penrose also helped him; so did Quay. Even "Bull" Andrews, Quay's understudy, who has since gone to New Mexico and tried to do there what Quay did in Pennsylvania, lent a hand.

All the Oil Trust captains had to help, for there was opposition among Henderson's associates on the Superior Bench.

Two years later Archbold was writing again in Henderson's behalf, this time for his appointment to the Supreme Bench by way of promotion for faithful service:

September 5, 1900.

Hon. William A. Stone,
Harrisburg, Pa.

My Dear Governor:

Will you permit me to say that if it seems consistent for you to appoint Judge John Henderson, of Meadville, Pa., to the vacancy on the Supreme Bench caused by the death of Justice Green, it will be a matter of intense personal satisfaction to me. I am sure I need not occupy your time with any argument as to Judge Henderson's fitness, either as to character or legal qualifications.

With high regard, I am,

Very truly yours,

JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

The naivete of Mr. Archbold in the above letter is interesting and amusing. As Mr. Archbold wrote to General Elkin dragging him to become interested in "a measure pending" before the Legislature of Pennsylvania "for reasons which seem to us potent," without deigning to let General Elkin know what the reasons were that seemed so potent to the Standard Oil Company, so Mr. Archbold writes to the Governor of Pennsylvania, the Honorable William A. Stone. He says:

"I am sure I need not occupy your time with any argument as to Judge Henderson's fitness either as to character or legal qualifications."

Mr. Archbold seems to think that there is sufficient reason for Judge Henderson's appointment in the statement that "it will be a matter of intense personal satisfaction to me."

His "Fitness" Not Discussed.

The question of Judge Henderson's "fitness" is not discussed; the question of Judge Henderson's "character" is not discussed; the question of Judge Henderson's "legal qualifications" is not discussed.

The only point that is made, and that it is considered necessary to make, is that the appointment of Judge Henderson would be "of intense personal satisfaction" to John D. Archbold and the Standard Oil Company.

Is it possible Judge Henderson had no fitness of character or legal qualifications other than the fact that his appointment would be of "intense personal satisfaction" to the Standard Oil Company?

At any rate, Judge Henderson was appointed, Mr. Archbold was satisfied, and the Standard Oil Trust was gratified.

No small part of Archbold's time was occupied in seeing that the Pennsylvania bench was filled with lawyers whose "familiarity with all that pertains to the great industry of oil and gas" qualified them for the judiciary.

Some of the friends of Theodore Cuyler Patterson, that public-spirited citizen, reformer and society man of Philadelphia, may be surprised to know to what an extent the Oil Trust interested itself in getting him a place on the bench.

Mr. Archbold took the matter up first, naturally, with Quay and Penrose. He telegraphed Quay:

(TELEGRAM)

September 15, 1900.

Hon. M. S. Quay,
Beaver, Pa.

The nomination of Cuyler Patterson, of Philadelphia, for the vacant judgeship would be a matter of great personal gratification to me.

J. D. ARCHBOLD.

From Penrose Mr. Archbold received the following letter:

UNITED STATES SENATE
Committee on Immigration,
Washington, D. C.
1417 Locust St., Philadelphia, Pa.
October 8, 1900.

Hon. Jno. D. Archbold,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Archbold—Yours of the 6th instant was found by me in Philadelphia upon my return from New York yesterday. I would be very glad to help Mr. Theodore Cuyler Patterson at any proper opportunity, but do not believe I will be able to do much for him in connection with the position of Prothonotary of the Supreme Court to which you refer. The place is involved in many complications, and there are several candidates, and the situation is not altogether, or even very much, within my influence or control. I will explain the matter more fully to you when I see you.

Yours sincerely,

BOIES PENROSE.

Some of Mr. Patterson's society friends took the matter up with Archbold.

And here comes one of the amazing proofs of Archbold's insolent although justifiable confidence in the importance of his influence to control the appointments to the bench in Pennsylvania and the extent to which this influence was constantly employed.

This head of an illegal trust, whose office is at No. 26 Broadway, New York, writes to a private citizen in Pennsylvania regarding the appointment of a Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, and says, "I REGRET TO SAY THAT I AM ALREADY COMMITTED" and "IT WOULD BE IMPOSSIBLE FOR ME TO CHANGE FROM THIS COMMITMENT."

December 9, 1912.

My Dear Biss.:

I have your favor of yesterday and will be only too glad to do anything I can to aid Mr. Patterson in the matter of the Judgeship. I would like to know, however, just what the vacancy is to be. You speak of it as the Philadelphia bench. I do not know of any such vacancy, although there may be one. If, however, as I fear it may be, it is the vacancy which is about to be filled in the Supreme Court bench of the State, I regret to say that I am already committed, and if it proves to be that, it would be impossible for me to change from this committal.

If you can get this advice for me, and it does not conflict with the position referred to, I will, as I say, be only too happy to respond in any way that I can.

Sincerely yours,

JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

To Mr. R. H. Bissell.

Mr. Archbold seems to have had a finger in every judicial pie and to have exercised, on behalf of his company, almost a determining influence in every judicial nomination or appointment.

The above letters relate mainly to the Judiciary of Pennsylvania, but the Standard Oil Company did not confine its activities to Pennsylvania. There were judges in Ohio whose "familiarity with Oil and Gas" fitted them for service in the most sacred chamber of popular government.

The Standard Oil Company took the same interest in those judges that it took in the judges of Pennsylvania. It wrote to its servants from Ohio in the United States Senate as it wrote to its servants from Pennsylvania in the United States Senate, and the letters written are very much in the same style. The following letter will serve as an example:

New York, December 18, 1902.

My Dear Senator—You, of course, know of Judge Burket's candidacy for re-election to the Supreme Court bench in Ohio. We understand that his re-election to the position would be in line of usage as followed in such cases in Ohio, and we feel very strongly that his eminent qualifications and great integrity entitle him to this further recognition.

We most earnestly hope that you agree with this view, and will favor and aid his re-election. Mr. Rogers joins me most heartily in this expression to you.

With kind regards, I am,

Very sincerely yours,

JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

To Senator Foraker.

Here again Mr. Archbold dwells but briefly upon the qualifications of the candidate, but he mentions conspicuously the fact that "Mr. Rogers joins me most heartily in this expression to you."

No wonder then that the courts are filled with agents of the trusts who consider the desires of trust magnates of more importance than the needs and the advantage of the people. No wonder that laws are construed in the interests of the trusts, and that laws which are distasteful to the trust magnates and hampering to trust activities are declared unconstitutional.

"Two years later Archbold was writing again in Henderson's behalf, this time for his appointment to the Supreme bench by the way of promotion for faithful service."

BRANDEIS PREDICTS ELECTION OF WILSON

"A True Progressive and Would Make a Great President," Says Boston Lawyer.

Louis D. Brandeis the noted Boston lawyer, declares that at this time in the history of our country when momentous problems are being faced such a man as Governor Wilson of New Jersey is needed at the head of our government.

"He has the character, mind and strength of purpose," says Mr. Brandeis, "that will make a great President."

Mr. Brandeis declared that Governor Wilson is a true Progressive and says that progressives of all parties should support him for President this Fall. He predicts the election of Wilson if the people of the country get to know the kind of man he is.

The Roosevelt or Bull Moose party stands for absolutism, asserts Mr. Brandeis, "and is trying to make evil good—a thing that cannot be done."

In the course of a frank discussion of the political situation from a national standpoint and particularly of Governor Wilson, Mr. Brandeis said:

"A True Progressive."

"Woodrow Wilson is a true progressive and every progressive should support him. He will win if the voters know the sort of a progressive he is.

"It is time for action and no loyal Democrat or Progressive can afford to take it for granted that Wilson will win. Every man interested in real progress and the better things in our political and industrial life ought to do his share toward Wilson's election.

"After my visit at the home of Governor Wilson at Seagirt, N. J., I am thoroughly convinced that in him the Democratic party has a man who is in every way qualified for the great office to which he aspires. I was deeply impressed by him.

"At the present time when we are facing big problems such a man as Wilson is needed. He has the character, mind and strength of purpose that will make a great President.

"We have passed the period of agitation. It has perhaps done good because it has aided the people in ascertaining what was wrong and has awakened the people to a realization of existing evils. The third step is to provide a remedy to meet these conditions. It requires a strong, but patient and able man to do this. I think Wilson is just the man.

Has Fought "Interests."

"The people have certainly had an opportunity of testing the progressive qualities of Governor Wilson. When he was president of Princeton he had a hard fight against the same interests that are fighting so hard to retain power in our national life. Governor Wilson won that fight. His record as Governor of New Jersey is such that no man can question his ability or sincerity.

"If Mr. Wilson could talk to all the voters there would be no question about his winning. He is a vote getter because he is so simple. His simplicity is one of his sterling qualities. The American people like that, too. Naturally it would be impossible for a man to talk to all of the hundred million people in this country. If he attempted to do so he would be a physical wreck. But I am using the case to fit the duty of the newspapers and Democrats to do everything possible to aid his candidacy. It is for the newspapers it is their duty to draw a distinction between a man of substance and a man of noise.

"The new party must fall in all of the important things which it seeks to accomplish, because it rests upon a fundamental basis of regulated monopoly. Our whole people have revolted at the idea of monopoly, and made monopoly illegal, yet the new party proposes to make legal what is illegal.

"Regulated Monopoly."

"The new party, according to its program, stands like a house divided against itself. I am very sorry to see so many men, who I know are good and honest, be misled as they have been. They have such a good opportunity of supporting a man like Wilson, who stands for everything good in the line of progress.

"Wilson is not misled by phrases. That is the wonderful part of his personality about him. He has the trained mind and the vision to look into the future. This will enable him to consider all possible phases of proposed legislation. He will have at his call all situations and can be trusted to do as the people would have him do.

"I have no hesitancy in stating that it is an opportunity such as we have never had before in this country.

"The important thing today, so far as the preservation of our liberty goes, is the industrial question. The new party stands out and says that that relation shall be one of absolutism. The party is trying to make evil good—a thing that cannot be done. The only practicable thing is to eliminate the evil and introduce good as a substitute.

"There can be no progress for the workingman under absolutism, and those who are working for the uplifting of the common man regardless of color or race, have got to build on the solid foundation of liberty, on which all our government rests.

"We must regulate competition instead of monopoly, for our industrial freedom and civic freedom go hand in hand and there is no such thing as civil freedom in state of industrial serfdom.

"Governor Wilson has a wonderful knowledge of all the big questions confronting the American people. He has the mind and the courage to determine the straight course and will not be influenced by men with selfish motives. But he has a mind is always open and, like the student that he is, always seeks to know the inside of every subject."

WINSTON CHURCHILL, PROGRESSIVE, WHO IS TO FIGHT MACHINE

CHURCHILL ACCEPTS AS MOOSE CANDIDATE

Author to Run as Progressive for Governorship of New Hampshire.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 7.—Winston Churchill of Cornish celebrated in the literary world as the author of "Richard Carvel," "The Crisis," and other stories, but known in New Hampshire as the Granite State's first almost pure Progressive, has accepted the Progressive nomination for Governor.

Churchill announced his decision tonight in a letter to Robert L. Manning of this city, chairman of the new party's executive committee.

The author makes his announcement serve the purpose of an opening campaign address. He says the Progressive laws written into the New Hampshire statutes in the past six years were placed there by Progressive Democrats and Progressive Republicans. He says this combination for the good of the people and the State, was fought at every turn by corporation Democrats and corporation Republicans.

Paraphrasing Lincoln on slavery, Colonel Churchill declares that this nation cannot survive "half corporation and half free."

Churchill's announcement is a severe blow to the old line Republicans. It appeared to mean, for one thing, that former Governor Henry B. Quimby of Lakeport and Colonel Roscoe W. Pillsbury of Londonderry may as well stop quibbling over the United States Senatorship, because there isn't going to be any United States Senatorship—at least for an old-line Republican.

In the election of two years ago Governor Robert P. Bass, Progressive Republican—having been nominated after a bitter fight with the Old Guard in the primaries—was elected by 44,808 votes to the 17,737 cast for the Democrat. Governor Bass' plurality was 7,271, but there were four candidates in the field, including Socialist and Prohibitionist—and the Bass majority was only 2,824.

Churchill is immensely popular with the plain people of New Hampshire and defeated by the professional politicians of both camps. He is likely to make a fast race of it.

Dental Announcement

Having removed into our new offices directly opposite Filene's new store on Washington St., we shall be pleased, after today, to welcome old patients and new. As hitherto, we ask for your patronage solely on the basis of our ability to perform satisfactory Dental Service at a moderate cost. We have been long enough in the business to know exactly what the public expect and require in having dental work done; they want the services of a dentist who is experienced and skilful and conscientious; one who uses the latest and most approved methods for extracting pain; one who is satisfied with a reasonable fee. We have never claimed to do better dental work than other professional dentists in Boston. What we have claimed for many years is, that our work compares favorably with that done by the best dentists at prices that people in moderate circumstances can afford to pay. Our location is the most central in Boston and you are cordially invited to call and see us. Short and positive engagements for busy people—no waiting. BRANDEIS TELLS WHAT HE MEANT BY HIS "REGULATION OF COMPETITION" PHRASE

In his speech at Buffalo Governor Wilson said he did not approve "Regulation of Monopolies," but he did approve "Regulation of Competition." This phrase and the industrial evolution it stands for originated with the able Boston lawyer, Louis D. Brandeis, who has won many hard-fought battles in the people's interest.

To obtain a clear definition of what Mr. Brandeis (and probably also Governor Wilson) meant by the phrase, the Boston AMERICAN asked Mr. Brandeis, the apostle of scientific management, to state it briefly. Mr. Brandeis wrote for the Sunday AMERICAN the following compact statement of his own position:

By LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

George W. Perkins, chairman of the executive committee of three parties, and other advocates of trust and monopoly are always talking of unrestrained and destructive competition as if the alternative before the country were regulated monopoly or unregulated competition.

Such not the fact. The choice is between regulated monopoly and regulated competition.

Competition in business corresponds to liberty in political and civil life.

No believer in true liberty will ask for unregulated liberty. We have found the regulation of liberty to be essential to its preservation, and to its development.

To preserve the liberty of the many we find it necessary to restrict the liberty of the few, for unlimited liberty leads to oligarchy and despotism.

We curb the liberty of the strong man in order to protect the liberty of the physically weaker man. That is a regulation of the civil liberty of the individual.

We also curb industrial liberty to the individual business, in order that the weak may be protected against the strong.

We restricted the theoretical freedom of contract between employer and employe by enacting factory laws governing the conditions under which work may be performed, and, to some extent, the hours of labor.

We did this because we recognized the unfairness of position of the employee and the employers under ordinary circumstances.

Liberty of Employe in Danger.

The liberty of the individual employe was in danger of being stamped out unless the inequality of his position was protected, and the workingman given contentment and health, and some opportunity for that leisure which the Greeks held to be the essence of liberty.

Similarly the right of competition must be of a necessity be limited in order to preserve it.

Excesses of competition lead to monopoly just as excesses of liberty lead to absolutism.

The Standard Oil Company, practicing its right to unrestricted competition, frequently destroyed a competitor through a local price-cutting campaign. The trust was able to conduct such a campaign because of its infinitely greater resources.

The Tobacco Trust resorted to exactly the same tactics. It crushed many a competitor through slashing prices locally.

This so-called competition really was business murder. It was resorted to with the deliberate purpose of killing the competitor, and as a step to monopoly, in other words, industrial despotism.

Such excesses of competition in business must be curbed in order to preserve to others their liberty to do business, just as we restrain the freedom of the physically strong man to do as he pleases regardless of the rights of others.

Price-cutting merely is one of the many methods of unfair competition which the law must regulate in order to preserve competition.

Oppressive Competition.

Another very common instance of unfair and oppressive competition is the refusal to sell some dealers unless the purchaser agrees to deal exclusively with the seller in purchasing all other articles in which the seller deals.

That again is simply a haunage of the seller's unwholesome rigal. In controlling trade is indispensable a right to destroy competition in all other articles in that particular business.

This is a form of unfair competition being resorted to by the Shoe Machinery Trust, which, by its system of leasing machines, it compels the shoe manufacturer to refrain from dealing with its competitors in other machines, substantially result in competition in other lines.

Our experience with trusts during the last twenty-two years, since the enactment of the Sherman law, has furnished an abundant material from which to determine in what respect excesses of competition must be curbed in order to maintain competition.

All that experience must be utilized in providing for that regulation of competition, through which alone industrial liberty can be preserved

To Legalize Monopoly.

The new party, instead of preserving competition, proposes to legalize it and to end it. It proposes to legalize monopoly, right then try to control it—to prevent its doing harm.

This new party assumes an impossible task. Industrial monopoly always has always will do harm.

Regulation may mitigate the evils of monopoly. But, if through a perfection of governmental machinery, a perfection greater than has ever existed in any country at any time, it were possible to prevent special wrong doing, the extortion and oppression incident to monopoly, the great evils of industrial absolutism would be merely reduced, not avoided.

The greatest of all evils of monopoly is the deadening effect. It kills incentive; it kills progress.

The true solution of the trust problem lies in the regulation of competition, the platform upon which Governor Wilson stands.

FULL COUNTY TICKET.

Rockingham Progressives Decide on This Action.

EXETER, N. H., Sept. 7.—The stage for a real political fight in southern New Hampshire was sounded by the Rockingham County Roosevelt Club here when about fifty delegates resolved to put a full county ticket in the field this Fall. The Roosevelt supporters took no active part in the primaries last Tuesday and today's action, following the statement of Governor Robert P. Bass renouncing allegiance to the Republican party in considered as drawing a definite line of policy between the old party and the Progressives which will extend State-wide.

Names of independent candidates can only be placed upon the official ballot by petition and the new primary law, untried in this particular in New Hampshire, will probably raise many interesting questions.

Political Notes

The Republicans of the Brighton district are likely to bring forward this year a young candidate for the House of Representatives in the person of Charles J. Holland. Mr. Holland is in the real estate and insurance line. His candidacy was launched by his friends Holland took this suggestion seriously and has made a thorough canvass, though he is not a politician

Down in Ward 9 Charles H. Mesley, candidate for the House in the Democratic primaries, has made a pit with a little advertising and everything himself as "everybody's friend every day in the year."

Edward J. Hughes, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the House of Representatives from Ward 18, gave a reception at his home on Holden street last evening to his cousin "Tom" Hughes, the well known physical director of the Boston Y. M. C. A. Other "Senators" present were Walter Johnson, Jimmy McBride and Chick Gandil. "Tom" Hughes regrets that the schedule takes him from Boston this week. He had intended "putting a few overs" for cousin "Ed" at the open-air rallies which will be held throughout the ward.

Mayor Fitzgerald's Factotum of Malden says: "I have done so well by the city during my first year that I have decided to again seek the office. If I am successful I will go after bigger things next year."

FOSS TO GOVERNORS: 'TALK WATERWAYS'

Executive Urges River Development to Cheapen Living Cost in Letter.

In a letter written by Governor Foss to Governor McGovern of Wisconsin, the Massachusetts chief executive suggests that the question of improving the national waterways for the purpose of affording cheaper transportation, and thus effecting a reduction in the cost of living be taken up for discussion at the coming conference of the Governors of the country.

Governor Foss is deeply interested in the project of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association which proposes the building of a sheltered channel the length of the Atlantic coast, and has called upon Eastern States should take up the question of improving the rivers and canals as feeders for the proposed inland waterway.

The Governor in his letter says:

What Governor Foss Says.

I have received from your office the programme for the forthcoming Governors' Conference, and am glad to see so many important subjects scheduled for discussion.

May I add a suggestion to the list as it stands? While the Governors' conference cannot perhaps, discuss a subject which is distinctively, has a partisan aspect, like the tariff, there is an equally important factor in the cost of living, which I think the conference ought to take up, namely, transportation, and the distribution of manufactured stuffs and the necessities of life.

The railroads have accomplished a great deal, and the development of the country is in a large measure due to their enterprise, but the same time, they have too largely monopolized the business of distributing our products and raising the cost of living.

How to Solve Problem.

It seems to me that the way to overcome this difficulty will be through concerted action for the development of our inland waterways.

The distribution of merchandise by water is so much cheaper than by rail, that I think we ought to have larger facilities for shipping such commodities as lumber, coal, grain, cotton and in fact, all the great staples, by river and canal.

I attended the conference of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association in New London, Ct., and was greatly impressed by the fact that this project, if accomplished, will give us a sheltered channel throughout the greater part of our Atlantic seaboard, from Florida to the mouth of Maine.

With that waterway as a basis, I thing the conference might well advocate the systematic development of our principal rivers as feeders to the coastwise channel which the Atlantic Deeper Waterways' Association hopes to secure.

With this systematic development of our rivers, we need to increase greatly our existing canal systems

Massachusetts Projects.

In Massachusetts we now have several important inland waterway projects, in anticipation of similar action in other sections

We are planning to restore navigation to the Connecticut River from the Sound to Springfield or Holyoke (ten hundred years ago the Connecticut was navigable for what was then the standard type of freight vessel We must make it navigable today for vessels of modern type. By this means we can give to the agricultural products of western Massachusetts, for cheaper and more satisfactory freight service than ever before

Similarly the Merrimac River is being studied for the same sort of development.

KELIHER PREDICTS PELLETIER WILL WIN IN 25 BOSTON WARDS

Ex-Congressman John A. Keliher, in a characteristic Keliher way, denies that he is to sidetrack himself or be sidetracked in the campaign of District-Attorney Pelletier for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

"I'll make this prediction," said the ex-Congressman last night. "Pelletier will carry twenty-five of the twenty-six wards in Boston on September 24

"If there could be a fair vote and an honest count in each of the whole twenty-six wards."

"What's the odd ward?" he was asked

"Easy," he answered: "it's Ward Eight, down where Martin rules."

O'HARE RALLIES.

Congressional Candidate Speaks in the Dorchester District.

Ex-Alderman J. Frank O'Hare, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the new twelfth district, addressed open air rallies at Andrews square, Glover's Corner and Dorchester avenue and Adams street last night. O'Hare assailed Congressman Currey for his public relations upon South Boston citizens, and charged that he was not in favor of a one word in behalf of Woodrow Wilson Democratic candidate for President

Moses Page Better.

A telegram received by the relatives of Moses M. Page, president of the Merchants' Savings Bank, disposes of the rumors that he is seriously ill in Kansas, where he went a few weeks ago for his health. The telegram stated: "I am up and dressed and shall be home in about ten days"

PLAISTED PREDICTS RE-ELECTION IN MAINE

Democrats Close Hard Campaign for Governor, Senator and Congressman.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 7.—In the opinion of unprejudiced observers of Maine politics, the State election of Monday will be close Some say Governor Frederick W. Plaisted, Democrat, elected two years ago by 3,600 votes, will be returned to office by an even smaller plurality No Maine Democrat has ever been elected to the governorship for two successive terms.

Governor Plaisted pares the figure at 12,000. His Republican rival, William T. Haines of Waterville, expects to be elected by 10,000 votes.

Haines is an immensely wealthy man. Plaisted the publisher of a weekly newspaper. This situation is repeated in the United States Senator contest, where Edwin C. Burleigh, 70 years old, Stand Pat Republican, opposes the re-election of Senator Obadiah Gardiner a former Burleigh is a millionaire

The new Legislature will have to send Gardiner or Burleigh to the Senate, for Gardiner and Burleigh were the selections of the primaries. The general opinion is that the farmers of the State will attend to Gardner's election. For ten years he was master of their State grange. The Burleigh campaign to get a Republican Legislature in six months old, however, and the farmers have spent a small fortune circularizing the State

Standpat Men on Stump.

Everybody concedes the re-election of Congressman Daniel J. McGillicuddy, Democrat, in the Second District, where McGillicuddy ran in 1910 by 47,000 votes. The three other districts are in doubt, with a feeling that the Democrats may carry one of them. The congressional candidates are Michael T. O'Brien against Congressman Asher C. Hinds, in the Portland district; Congressman McGillicuddy against Bank Examiner Milton B. Ireland; Coogressman "Sam" Gould of Skowhegan against Forrest Goodwin, Republican and Mayor Charles W. Mullen of Bangor against Congressman Frank E. Guernsey of Dover

There is no parallel here with the election in Vermont. There is no Bull Moose ticket in Maine. Led around by their "leaders," the Roosevelt people were induced to agree that 'left and Roosevelt would be "left out" of the State ticket, and that all hands should stick together for one grand effort to take the State Jobs from the Democrats

No sooner had Roosevelt left for the West, however, than the Republican State Committee began the importation of Stand Pat orators from the Vermont hustings among them are former Governor Utter of Illinois, Congressman Utter of Rhode Island and Congressman E. J. Hill of Connecticut, all of whom talked tariff in Maine, and especially the woolen tariff

Expose Wool Check.

Within a few days the discovery has been made that a former labor "leader," from Lawrence, Mass., has been in and about the McGillicuddy Congressional district taking the virtues of "Roosevelt K" to mill operatives. The labor leader has been identified as Joseph Lofthouse

He visited mills at Kennebunk Falls The check was from the American Woolen Company. McGillicuddy has had it photographed and published. He has also used it on the stump. President Wood of the American Woolen Company says Lofthouse is no longer in their employ

Monday's election is in the hands of the Roosevelt men of Maine. If the Bull Moose show the slightest resentment for the ironclad orders who ran one week ago were saying bitter things of Roosevelt in Vermont and for the activity of the American Woolen Company, Governor Plaisted will be handsomely re-elected and the return of a Democratic Legislature will keep Obadiah Gardner, Progressive Democrat, in the Senate at Washington.

Rodents Most Plentiful in Fall and Winter

In the fall and winter months field mice and the cotton tail rabbit are the greatest pests of the farmer. In the spring and summer months the weather being mild they can get enough to eat and are not so hard to feed on. But in the fall and winter when grass seeds begin to get scarce, and all the fruit is gone, you will observe a marked increase in the number in the house and barn. Nothing will drive them away while there is anything to eat, and they start in search for food outside, and they start in at the first sign of cold weather and destroy everything in their way. Nothing will keep them away from grain, grass or corn sweetened they destroy more than they eat.

The property loss from rodents mounts into the millions every year. Rats, mice and rabbits are the worst pests, and no more serious danger to life is threatened by them in any country than from the awful bubonic plague, which they spread through the medium of fleas and filth.

While the rat is more common in Europe than in America, and was the cause of the bubonic plague, but it does its share of damage in this country. Rats have been known to kill several hundred chickens in a single night, and in New York as various times, mostly on payment on their part, of the property, sometimes the disease from rodents in the house

The surest way to keep them away from your premises is to keep them from getting into the country by all means in your power.

It is just as well to use a little precaution now and then. Dr. Haffkine, of the Medical Department of the Punjab, has proved that the rat is the principal agent for spreading the plague in India, and it is now known that the disease is carried by rats in New England and it seems probable that the rat is the principal agent in spreading the disease everywhere for the rat flea, the insect which carries the germs, lives on rats as well as on people.

Rats and mice have developed a great resistance to many poisons during the past few years, and therefore it is necessary to use different powders for different rats.

B. F. ROLLER, M. D., Foundor of "ROLLERISM"

Famous Physician, Surgeon, Athlete and Teacher, Graduate of Two Universities, Holds Six Diplomas. His Wonderful Discoveries in Medicine and Surgery and Marvelous Feats of Physical Strength, Skill and Endurance Are Known To Millions

By DR. B. F. ROLLER, Chicago

Millions of newspaper readers throughout the world, who are familiar with the writings of Eugene Sandow, Athlete and Instructor of Famous Athletes, will read with delight the announcement of my purpose to open to all the secrets of "ROLLERISM," the new science of life, humanity's truest benefaction. And it is fact that the public will be interested to learn that I have retired from all connection with professional athletics and shall devote the remainder of my life to promoting "ROLLERISM," nature's scientific means for attaining perfect health.

I am perhaps the most powerful, perfectly developed, best poised specimen of manhood on earth today! I can justly claim this, not in any spirit of personal egotism but because it is necessary for it to be the simple truth. I am physically perfect, absolutely free from a diseased touch of disease in any form. My mind is balanced, quick and active. I am prosperous, successful in all my undertakings, and enjoy the best things in life with the keenest relish, and yet I left home a few years ago with but $5 cash capital. What brought me these inestimable blessings? Well, briefly, the answer is simple. Just living the life of "ROLLERISM." That and that alone is what did it!

Now, I want you to live and be prosperous! "ROLLERISM" I speak from the fullness of my heart when I assert that "ROLLERISM" has accomplished, what it can accomplish, what it will accomplish. I know that what it has done for me it can do well and has done for others. It can and will bring health, happiness, prosperity and success to all who embrace its wonderful teachings.

My preparation for launching "ROLLERISM," the crowning achievement of my life's work, was extensive and thorough and efficient, embracing as it does a remarkable blending of practical experience as Physician, Surgeon, Athlete and Teacher with some of the world's most famous wrestlers and boxers. I hold six diplomas from various institutions of learning. I am a graduate of Dr. Dewey's College of Physical Science, and received my degree as Doctor of Medicine from the University of Pennsylvania, recognized among Physicians and Surgeons everywhere as one of the world's oldest and greatest Medical Schools. I won the Sandow Prize of $100.00 in gold, and was for two years assistant to the famous authority, Prof. B. C. Hirst. The section on Anesthesia and Anesthetics was written by me for Prof. Hirst's standard text book on Gynecology. As chief of his clinic, I personally examined and treated 8,000 women, giving me an invaluable experience and private personal knowledge of every form of female troubles. I held Diploma authority me to practice from the states of Illinois, Washington and Oregon. For two years I was a member of the Faculty of the Washington State University, and at Seattle, Wash., I built up a practice amounting to many thousands of dollars per year in volume. I was never excelled by any Physician and Surgeon on the Pacific Coast, and by but few in the entire country.

In all these busy years of study and practice I was constantly developing and applying the principles of "ROLLERISM," both for the upbuilding of mankind on earth today! I can justly claim in the course of my professional career as well as for the development of my own personal health, strength and skill, I have personally put to the test in thousands upon thousands of cases what "ROLLERISM" is a true science that will meet every need and solve every problem. I purposely selected this branch of athletics, because no other science so completely every possible demand for physical perfection. The slightest defect in the health or bodily condition of a wrestler is a bar to success. Every organ must be absolutely sound and perfect. The flesh must be firm and hard, yet the muscles powerful, yet flexible. The brain must be active and the eye clear and keen.

My experience proved conclusively that "ROLLERISM" had indeed developed me into a marvelous specimen of health, strength and powerful manhood. I met famous wrestlers like Gotch, Beal, Ordeman, Zybisco, Pedersen and others known the world over, defeating many of them, and always demonstrating my superior condition, due to the constant principles of "ROLLERISM." I also trained and developed such renowned Champions as Gotch, Hackenschmidt, Jeffries and others, never losing sight for a moment of the wonderful upbuilding power of "ROLLERISM" to produce perfect health, strength and physical skill of the highest order.

So by this strenuous experience in athletics, I fully proved to myself that "ROLLERISM" would stand any test that it might be called upon to do. And having thus proved its true science in both theory and practice, I have now withdrawn from all connection with professional athletics and, as above stated, will devote all my remaining years in promoting "ROLLERISM," so that the world at large may share in its marvelous benefits.

What is "ROLLERISM?" I cannot fully answer you in a few words. The subject is too vastly important—too gloriously significant—to be treated in less limited space. To realize its limitless scope and true attitude you must have my treatise on "ROLLERISM"—a scientific course by power that has come on over twenty-five years of study, preparation and practical tests to perfect in order to bring to mankind what is justly to be termed with this marvelous science of "ROLLERISM." I am going to mail to all absolutely without cost—a copy of my Treatise. All you need do is to say in a letter or postal—"Dr. Roller, 1918A Michigan Ave., Chicago. Send me your Treatise on ROLLERISM FREE." Your simple request will bring my great Treatise without the slightest obligation to your part.

Every feature of "ROLLERISM" has been proven, worked out, tested, hundreds of times and found absolutely perfect in its wonderful ability to prevent and overcome disease and weakness, to produce health, strength, power, prosperity and happiness for all.

"ROLLERISM" is not Medicine or Drugs. There is nothing to take. It is more than a million times greater than any system of medication. It is not Osteopathy. It is more rational and logical than any system of drugless manipulation. It is not Physical Culture. It is greater than Physical Culture. No apparatus whatever. No appliances—nothing to wear. "ROLLERISM" is greater than any of these. It is the greatest of all science and natural laws and principles, because it is founded on the immutable laws of life—science and laws alone have wrested from nature during my twenty-five years of study, experiment and practice as physician, surgeon, athlete and Specialist in Physical Development.

"ROLLERISM" acts quickly. From the very first hour you begin to use "ROLLERISM" you will experience its wonderful beneficial effects, and as you continue with its easy and delightful exercises, day by day you will find yourself growing swiftly and surely into health and happiness. Every exercise corrects adverse conditions of mind and body, and builds manhood in their place The results of "ROLLERISM" appear in many ways, but always achieved strength and vitality, freedom from pain, increased vigor, and the mind quickly and clearly—to indulge more fully and without injury to the legitimate opportunities that nature intended for your enjoyment.

"ROLLERISM" removes the poisons from your system, gives you a steady nerves, a clear eye, fresh and strong, flexible muscles! It sweeps from your body the clogging refuse, and the burning red blood which this marvelous science makes feed every tissue of flesh and artery with the virile strength of perfect health.

Fat vanishes. Then people are built up. Unevenness of development and scrawniness. Complexions are cleared. Bodies of men, women and children become supple and graceful under the beneficial process of "ROLLERISM." By removing the cause, it banishes insomnia, nervousness, neuralgia, dizziness, bloat, fatigue, morbidity, headache and all other aches and pains, and gives you in their place the virile strength of perfect health.

"ROLLERISM" is endorsed by people of national reputation—Judges, Bankers, Clergymen, Physicians, Educators, Business Men, Journalists, etc.—who have investigated this science and know what marvelous results it is producing. I have letters of strong indorsement from representative men and women. A few of these I am glad to refer to that you what these writers think of "ROLLERISM." Read carefully the reward my personal character, integrity and professional ability. Please read these letters carefully. I will be glad to send you many more in addition by my Free Treatise. Remember, all that is necessary is a letter or postal saying, "Dr. B. F. Roller, 1918A Michigan Ave., Chicago." Please send me your Treatise on ROLLERISM FREE." That is all; not even a return stamp is necessary.

Chicago Chief of Police

Chicago, Ill., July 30, 1912.

Health and efficiency are certainly of very great assistance in business success and human happiness. I would be glad to see all men and women in the United States study and adopt the principles of "ROLLERISM."

John McWeeny,
General Supt. of Police.

What President Bartzen Says

Chicago, August 2, 1912.

It is my extreme pleasure to be personally acquainted with Dr. B. F. Roller and to have followed his career as a man, as a physician and as an athlete. For instances there are where such individual combines the sterling qualities of a moral man, an expert physician and an athlete of pre-eminence.

Bartzen Bartzen, President,
Board of Commissioners of Cook Co., Ill.

Nebraska Banker Endorses Dr. Roller

Omaha, Neb., August 1, 1912.

I have known Dr. B. F. Roller for the past seven years and he always found him to be a thorough gentlemen, honest in all his dealings and a man of the very best of ability as a doctor of medicine and an athlete. His system of living known as "ROLLERISM" in my estimation will prove a great public benefaction. C. C. Hatfield,
Cashier, Farmers & Merchants Bank.

Famous Sporting Editor

Chicago, Ill., August 5, 1912.

There is no doubt in my mind that Dr. B. F. Roller has proved himself one of the world's greatest all-round athletes in addition to this, he is recognized as a gentleman of scholarly attainments. Possessed of all athletic excellences and the thorough preparation he underwent as a physician and surgeon, coupled with several years of practice in that great profession, he unquestionably is the best man in the world today to teach the principles of "ROLLERISM." And it gives me the greatest pleasure to recommend Dr. B. F. Roller to one and to endorse "ROLLERISM" as a real public benefaction.

Ed. W. Smith,
Sporting Editor, The Chicago American.

Supreme Council Royal League

Chicago, August 8, 1912.

Dear Sir and Brother:—

On behalf of The Royal League I want to congratulate you on the proposed establishment of "ROLLERISM." Our organization stands for correct living and for all that is best in humanity. We have done much to encourage just such work as you have undertaken, and I am fortunate that a man of your marked ability, acquirements and high attainments as a physician, should turn his mind to the study of such an admirable institution as you now plan.

Charles E. Piper,
Supreme Scribe.

From Alderman Harding, Chicago

Chicago, August 5, 1912.

I know Dr. B. F. Roller to be one of the most estimable men. His reputation as a successful physician and surgeon is well known to me, and I think he is probably the best man to teach you, your readers and the world at large how to live right. Very few people seem to know how to live right, and I think that Dr. Roller's experience as an athlete and his excellent knowledge of human nature eminently qualifies him to be the world's greatest teacher in this line.

George F. Harding,
Alderman, 2nd Ward, Chicago, Ill.

Noted Educational Author

Chicago, August 8, 1912.

Physical defects are largely responsible for many organ troubles in children in their grades at school. Many of these children's eyes are not normal children. Proper development of muscle and nerve are of fundamental value if humanity is general. It should begin with the child. I am very much in favor of the raising of the human standard, physically and mentally. Dr. B. F. Roller is indorsing Dr. B. F. Roller as a man who is well qualified to spread the light of knowledge to attain these ideals.

Dr. Wm. Bentley Owen,
National League of Compulsory Education.

From Ex-Mayor Crittenden

Kansas City, Mo., August 9, 1912.

It has been my pleasure to have the acquaintance of Dr. B. F. Roller, formerly of Seattle and now of Chicago, having had the opportunity in my city to view him not only from a private standpoint, but from an intellectual and character standpoint. I can very readily his entrance into the field of "ROLLERISM" will be fortunate for the many who will seek his aid and advice.

Thos. T. Crittenden, Jr.,
Ex-Mayor of Kansas City.

RECORD NIGHT CROWD AT REVERE CARNIVAL

Final Night of the Mardi Gras Festival Ends in Blaze of Glory.

The final night of the Mardi Gras, which has been in progress at Revere Beach during the past week, brought out one of the largest night crowds that has attended that famous Summer resort in years.

The crowds came from all parts, and displayed enthusiasm at the splendid marching of the several camps of United Spanish War veterans, the many beautiful floats, and other attractions that have marked the big carnival which, largely through the efforts of the Boston AMERICAN, proved the biggest success of its kind in years.

Last night was dedicated to the Spanish-American War Veterans. The King of the Carnival was Louis Bopp, chairman of the carnival committee. Mrs. Bopp was Queen. Mr. Bopp was elected King in the AMERICAN contest.

The parade was reviewed by the following judges in front of the Nautical Gardens: George Rawins, Ernest Acker, James H Douglass and Neil F. McDonald.

Roger Wolcott Camp of Boston, Bartholomew J. Bailey, commander, was awarded first prize. Colonel Fred H Bourne Camp of Charlestown James T Caffrey commander, was awarded second prize.

Other camps U. S. W. V. taking part in the parade were: John A Chisholm Camp of Revere, Colonel Moses H Lakeman Camp of Malden, Walter I Lind bourne Camp of Chelsea, George G Whitney Camp of Revere, and Sergeant Frank E. Draper Camp of Somerville.

ELDERLY COUSINS MARRY.

Charles S. Buffum, 77 Weds Mrs. Ellen Moore, 51.

Ellen Maria Moore, fifty-one, and Charles S Buffum, seventy-seven, cousins, were married last night at the home of Fred H. Moore one of the sons of the bride, at No 18 Meredith street Newton. The bride's attendants were Miss Moore a ten-year-old granddaughter and Laura Thompson, also ten years old. Rev George E. Tuppe, a retired Congregational minister officiated. Mr Buffum is a wealthy retired shoe dealer and lives in Salem, where after a honeymoon in Vermont the couple will reside. Mr Buffum's first wife died three years ago. Mrs Moore has been a widow twelve years and has three sons, Fred H Wilham A and J. (

Woburn Woman Gives Reception on Birthday.

Mrs. Mary A. Buxton observed the ninetieth anniversary of her birthday in Woburn yesterday, holding an informal reception in the afternoon at the home of her son Don Carlos Pope, with whom she lives at No. 45 Hart place. She was born at Norwich, Vt., and was married to Albert G. Page at Newbury, Vt., in 1844. Her husband died in 1901 at the age of 88.

G. A. R. VETERANS GUESTS.

Pittsfield Honors Regiments on 50th Anniversary.

PITTSFIELD, Sept. 7.—Seventy-five autos this afternoon carried the veterans of the Thirty-seventh and Forty-ninth Volunteer Regiments to the site of Camp Briggs, from which the Thirty-seventh marched away to war fifty years ago today. Pittsfield entertained both regiments in a fitting reunion celebration.

ECZEMA
Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk-Crust, Weeping Skin, etc.
ECZEMA CAN BE CURED TO STAY, and when I say cured, I mean just what I say—CURED and not merely relieved up for awhile, to return, worse than before. Remember I make this broad statement after having given for a time on this one disease my undivided attention, and have cured more cases of this dreadful disease, some of them of long standing, than you have ever met, or how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured and I am just as sure to cure you as I know what I say. Don't delay, but write me at once and I will send you a FREE TRIAL of my mild, soothing, guaranteed cure, which will relieve you in a day and cure you in a few days. I am so anxious to show you how easily and promptly I can cure you, that I will pay the expressage on a trial package to any sufferer who writes me. Don't suffer another day with this terrible disease when you can get a cure by return mail. Don't hesitate for fear it is a fake, but write me and prove to your own satisfaction what this world holds for you. Just try it and you will see I am telling you the truth.

Roxbury Shade Spot Like Dump Heap, Now

Residents Demand Removal of Old Shanties Used With Condemned Swimming Pool.

Remove the old dilapidated wooden bathhouse shanties in Orchard Park, Roxbury. That is the cry of the residents of that section of the city. The old shanties are considered disease breeding places.

The shanties were formerly old vetted booths, and when the city appropriated a sum of money for a swimming pool in the park they were put in position there as locked coverings. Lately the swimming pool was condemned and ordered closed.

For years Orchard Park was considered a beauty spot. Its green foliage and splendid lawns attracted attention from far and near. The place now resembles a dump.

BROWN TO CONTEST RICH FATHER'S WILL

When Mrs. Charlotte Thompson Bradford Brown, widow and chief beneficiary in the will of her husband, Samuel Newman Brown, vice-president of the Fairbank Scales Company, offers his will for probate within a few days, it will be contested by her step-son, Harold H. Brown, who was cut off in the will with $1,000.

The contest promises to be sensational in the extreme. It is said that the son of the multi-millionaire will set up the claim that his step-mother used undue influence to procure the enormous fortune left by his father.

When Samuel N Brown married his second wife in the later part of 1910 he was eighty four years old. His wife was a middle-aged widow of prepossessing appearance. She is well known in club and society circles in this city.

It is announced the wedding himself at the Ocean House in Swampscott, a few weeks after meeting Mrs. Charlotte Thompson Bradford, who was then the widow of a Brockton business man.

Miss Bradford is the daughter of the late Franklin Ames of Brockton and a member of the noted Ames family of North Easton.

Secret Wedding to Tech Man Revealed

Lavenas Admits Marrying Brockton Girl Last Winter—Going to Buenos Ayres to Live.

Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Lavenas attended at the home of the bride's parents No. 186 Norfolk street, Winthrop, and they were married secretly last February only a few persons knowing of the ceremony. It was desired to keep the romance, which had its inception at a fish pond ball, quiet until the bridegroom, then a student, was graduated. He established his course last Spring.

The bride was Miss Margaret Sidney daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Sullivan, formerly of Brockton, now living at Wollaston. She was graduated from the high school in 1907 and from Smith College in 1911.

Lavenas has visited the Sullivan family several times since the ceremony but there never was a hint of the marriage. He is a native of Buenos Ayres, Argentina. The couple will go to Buenos Ayres in October, where Mr Lavenas is engaged in business with his father.

MEETING IN MEMORY OF DR. BLAUSTEIN

A memorial meeting in memory of Dr David Blaustein, the social worker and lecturer on philanthropy at New York City College, will be held this evening at Temple Mishan Tefila, Moreland and Copeland streets, Roxbury.

Dr Blaustein was a Zionist leader and the meeting tonight is held by the Zionist Council, Boston Council of Jewish Women, New Century Club and Civic Service House.

Rabbi H Shonker, Rabbi Solomon Schindler, Mar Mitchell, Mrs. Julius Andrews, president of the Council of Jewish Women and Rabbi H H Rabinowitz, president of the Zionist Council of Boston, will deliver memorial addresses.

Cantors H Gersberg and E Wolkowich will give the musical numbers of the service. The meeting will be in charge of the following committee: J J Silverman, Philip Davis, Dr. S. Schindler and Julius Meyer.

Steps have already been taken to erect a permanent memorial to Dr. Blaustein and a temporary committee has been organized with Julius Meyer as chairman and Max Mirbel treasurer.

Cooking Classes to Serve School Lunch

Domestic Science Teacher Will Care for 1,300 Pupils in Brockton High.

BROCKTON, Sept. 7.—Saving Stomachs would be an appropriate name for a new course at the Brockton High School.

Pies, cakes, coffee rolls and cookies supplied by the bakers are discards now, and the pupils in the domestic science classes are to prepare and serve warm meat and vegetables right from the stoves and ovens at the school.

The 1,300 students are rejoicing over the announcement that Miss Jessie Barber, a teacher in the domestic science department, will have charge of the lunch room. She has promised all sorts of surprises. It is quite a proposition to feed over 1,300 hungry boys and girls in fifteen minutes, but Miss Barber can do it.

Every student will have his or her fill at a minimum cost. Instead of paying high prices for prepared foods, Miss Barber conceived the scheme to prepare lunches in the school.

The provisions will be purchased at wholesale, and in this way can be sold for a very small cost.

CHINESE SOLDIERS MUTINY AND SLAY

PEKIN, Sept. 7.—Thousands of Republican soldiers are in mutiny throughout the empire today and President Yuan Shih-Kai is hard pressed for funds to pay the balance of the army and thus keep the soldiers loyal to the Republican flag.

Although the government refuses to give out any information, it is learned that fully 15,000 troops have deserted the ranks of the regular army and are murdering, pillaging and burning.

Garrisons of nearly a score of towns have deserted in the southwestern part of the Province of Yu-Nan. Hundreds of peaceful villagers and families of farmers have been slain. There is danger of a recrudescence of the Boxer outrages.

Monday the Store will be somewhat in Autumn attire. A first view of the new goods. The skill of two continents and the British Islands is in the display. Briton, Yankee, Teuton, Celt, Gaul, Swiss speak in a common tongue the language of beauty—the beauty of fibre, figure and color. You are welcome to come and see.

Shepard Norwell Company

TREMONT STREET WINTER STREET TEMPLE PLACE

Of all American markets Boston is made by the culture and intelligence of its retail buyers the hardest. We are glad it is so. Our purpose is to give Boston the best Retail Store. The public takes us at our word and then adds a stimulus by demanding better goods and quicker service. We never stop responding.

OPENING OF FALL AND WINTER GOODS

NOW IS THE TIME FOR YOU TO SEE THEM

THE NEW DRESS GOODS

Fall and Winter Dress Goods have been rolling and tumbling over each other. They came from beyond the sea; from this side of the sea; from wherever the best are made. The light, airy Summer fabrics have been pushed aside by a color-crested wave of wool in scores of weaves. There are Smooth Cloths with the beauty of solid worth in every one of them. Feel of them. Finger tips will tell you the story. You need use your eyes for nothing save color. A grace for every taste, a richness for every fancy, a magical cent's worth of goodness for every cent you put into any one of them

The sober faces of some of the Smooth Suitings and Whipcords are lighted up with gay silken specks and flecks. They would be reliable, stand-by-you stuffs if silk had never been heard of, but they wouldn't be so pretty.

Heaps and heaps of rough-bright novelties. Take the first to hand—Camels'-hair. That's what they call it. No matter if there isn't a camel's hair in it. Body of fine wool, well-spun; honestly woven; the surface scattered with glistening "hairs." Seems thicker, warmer for the sprinkling. Nothing prim about Camels'-hair. For everybody's wear.

Zibelines, at their zenith, are blood kin to Camels'-hair. They zig-zag, head high, along the aisle.

Look! The whole brood of Rough and Roughish Dress Goods—a suggestion of gnarls and knots, knobby twirls and curls of tuft. Eponge, Boucle, Foule, and other fuzzy effects have drifted in with the season, mellow-ripe from Fashion's Fairy Tree.

Poplins, Reps, Bedfords, Bengalines, Ottomans are the cord variants that strike popular favor

$2.50 Silk-and-Wool Poplins, deep geometrical borders, in beautiful old blue and new catawba; 48 in. wide.

$3.00 Changeable Corded Dress Goods, enriched with exquisite silk borders, ruby-and-green, brown-and-blue; 45 inches wide.

$3.00 Fine Silk-and-Worsted Whipcords, black and-silver, chestnut-and gold, black and blue; 54-in. wide

Stop by the new Broadcloths—softer, daintier, drapier than ever. And the colors! Pastel tints—pink from the shrimp so pale that you'd think it had faded in the sea to the brick-dust red; blue, every shade from the Himmel-blau of a Fraulein's eyes to the ultra-marine of a cloud-capped wave; greens, grays, fawns, or rather their refractions. A medley of darker colors, every dye that grips Fashion, 54 inches wide, $2.00 and $2.50. Every piece has been thoroughly sponged and shrunk.

Ulsterings, Coatings, Cloakings, the heavy wind-turning cold-proof weaves; sprightly, dashing Diagonals, Melanges, thick and soft, handsome and warmthful, beavery, astrakhany effects, the kind that need no lining.

BEAUTIFUL SILKS

The signs are that Silks are coming fully into prominence again. On back seats for a time but nearer and nearer to the front, until they promise, the coming Autumn, to resume their old foremost position as material for street, evening, dinner and reception wear.

Charmeuse Crepe, all the newest colors, $2.00 and $2.95.

Crepe Meteor, as equisite and lustrous as ever; colors, $1.50 and $2.00; black, up to $4.00.

Printed Warp Ombre Taffetas, ideal for combining with Chiffon Cloth or Marquisette, $2.00.

Bordered Chiffon Cloths, exclusive lace effects, rose patterns and other novelties, $2.50 to $7.00.

Satin Messalines, all colors, various widths, 85c to $1.50.

Faille Mousseline, beautiful colorings for suits and dresses, 32 inches wide, $1.65.

THE VELVET FAMILY

Never since the cities of Italy—Genoa, Florence and Venice—gave the soft, pile-warp fabric to the artistic uses of the world—ecclesiastical vestments, royal robes and sumptuous hangings—have they been so popular as now.

Yes, this year will go down to posterity as the great Velvet year. It will be largely used for street dresses and suits, and hats made of velvet will be seen everywhere.

Unusual care has been taken to gather in our stock black and the proper colors for combinations with plain and fancy silks.

Black Velvet with a blush, or violet bloom, is the richest and safest. We have it

Chiffon and Paon Velvets have a brilliant rival this season in All-silk Philo Velvet, a wondrous Velvet with a plush finish.

We have no metaphors for its lightness, softness and delicacy. The old adjectives are too effete to describe this new favorite, 44 inches wide, $8.00 a yard.

Velveteens, too. We have them in the colors you want—Black, white, brown, navy, delft, gray, taupe. The quality that sold last season at $1.50; now $1.15.

The Imported Corduroys are hard by. Don't overlook them. Scarcely any danger of that. Fashion is too insistent.

SILK PETTICOAT SPECIALS

$2.95 for $4.50 Silk Messaline Petticoats, deep accordion pleated flounce, finished with silk drop and dust ruffle—black and colors.

$3.95 for $5.00 Silk Messaline Petticoats, sectional accordion pleated flounce with silk drop and dust ruffle—others with silk jersey top and pleated skeleton flounce—black and colors.

CONCERNING FURS

The coy maiden, the mature matron, the severely practical and brilliantly gay, all come to the Shepard Fur Store. We are in shape to serve each with skill and economy.

If you wish Furs for slam-bang motoring wear—or the exquisite and delicate Alaska White Fox, Blue Fox, Royal Ermine and French Mole for evening dress—we'll be pleased to show you.

Here is a little list of a big—a very big interest:

Women's Hudson Seal Coat, 54 inches long, cuffs and deep shawl collar of Canadian Lynx.... $325.00

Women's Hudson Seal Coat, 54 inches long, trimmed with black marten, draped skirt, original Laxton model $400.00

Women's French Mole Coat, 54 inches long, long shawl collar. Exact copy of an imported model.. $400.00

Women's French Mole Evening Coat, 54 inches long. An original and dashing Max model..... $475.00

Ready to repair or remodel your old Furs. Satisfaction guaranteed. Call, write or telephone. Estimates promptly submitted.

DRESS TRIMMINGS

The new things are in. Days of bustle and stir at the Trimming counters getting them into shape.

Another Bead season. There never were so many Beads; never such varied patterns. Marvelous brilliancy and delicacy in some of the colored effects. Contrasting studies like jewels of alternating tints.

Edgings, Bandings, Collarettes, Yokes and Garnitures—a jangle of angles and spangles and dangles—iridescent indescribables, but always artistic and beautiful.

The eye may grasp the Tunics. They bring paralysis to the advertising pen. Yet, it seems as if each twinkling flower, each shining involution of silk, each garland and scroll pattern, each undreamed-of form of beauty had conspired to mock us with the ringing lampoon: "You may describe all else but us."

Come see the Tunics.

WOMEN'S NECKWEAR

Fashion doesn't whisper "Neckwear" this season. She shouts it. Yes, Neckwear is one of the great big interests of the year. Manufacturers and importers are even now at their wits' end to supply the demand.

The whole swing and sweep of Neckwear beauty may be seen in our recently-enlarged store for the sale of such things. There isn't a weak spot or a vacancy in the display. An all-the-time flood of freshness and brightness.

Light and dainty laces and fluffy, cloud-like lawns, giving charming semblance of form with the least possible of substance.

A multitude of catchy, captivating kinks in Neck Fixings. You get a notion from these:

Irish Crochet, Venise and Bohemian Lace Collars, Yokes and Coat Sets; Shadow Lace; Jabots and Fichus; Robespierre, Medici and Elizabethan Collars, Marabout Stoles, Capes and Muffs.

Variety enough to bewilder, and our prices are, well—below most stores for similar qualities.

Three specimens:

$1.00 for $1.50 Venise Lace Coat Collars, shawl shape, Also Collar-and-Cuff Sets.

$1.49 for $2.00 Irish Crochet Lace Collars, appropriate for coat or dress.

$2.75 for $4.00 Irish Crochet Lace Collars, desirable Dutch model.

DOROTHY DODD SHOES

Everything that skill, capital and science can do to keep "Dorothy Dodd" in the lead has been done. A broad-gauged manufacturing organization is resolved on producing the best styles and the biggest values for a given sum of money.

A Shoe that doesn't fit just right is more than half of a nuisance.

Because a Shoe doesn't hurt you is no sign that it fits. Being too roomy may be as great a fault as pinching.

"Dorothy Dodd" Shoes come in so many models that it is scarcely conceivable that we haven't the one that conforms to your feet precisely as it should.

Take the time to let us fit you accurately. Dorothy Dodd Staples and Novelties for Autumn are ready.

Have you seen the new receding toe—and the high round toe? Latest effects. Gun Metal Button Boots with taupe ooze top; Patent Leather Boots, with white kangaroo tops, are two attractive combinations.

Be sure to see our "Dorothy Dodd" No. 5335. Tan Box Calf Button Boots, modeled on mannish last, rope-stitched extra weight welted soles. They are at the top nick of style.

The perfect artist shows in every pair of Dorothy Dodd Shoes from..... $3.50 TO $5.00

$1.50 NEGLIGEE SHIRTS $1.05

Examine the material first. A highly mercerized cloth. Looks thin enough. But it's full of substance and will wear like the toughest woven madras. Dainty helio, blue, pink, tan and black stripes on light grounds. Ideal for Fall. Worth $1.50; special at $1.05.

THE NEW WAISTS

Such a range of styles! Such a range of materials and colors! There isn't a raw edge in the stock. Complete throughout. Every woman knows what a large multiplier to an Autumn wardrobe a Silk Waist is. Come here Monday and get a first view of the latest Paris models.

The colors are primary, of course, but not supreme in importance. Black chiffon made over amber, taupe over cerise—directoire sleeves finished with frills.

You need to know our Waists—from the delicate sorts for evening wear to the jaunty ones that add grace and comeliness to athletic or outing rig. We are ahead of all our past in Waists.

INTRODUCING "METEOR" CORSETS

The great style-setters insist this season that women's figures must be entirely free from any trace of Corset restraint. That's a Dress essential. It is fundamental. Therefore, our new Corset—the "Meteor"— is designed on natural lines. It permits you to wear the latest Gowns with classic freedom and grace—plus comfort. The "Meteor" Corset comes in many models, each made of beautiful material enhanced with dainty trimming meant to appeal to the preference of the most fastidious and exacting buyers.

Don't wear the Autumn Dress without, at least, testing the merits of our "Meteor" Corset. Our expert fitters will be glad to give you advice and help you to make the proper selection.

A2 Girdle top, long hip, straight skirt. Model for slender figures, in Mercerized Batiste. Lightly boned with side bones. Extension to fit easily over hip. Trimmed with lace medallions. Per pair..... $5.00

C1 Medium low bust. French gore corset with ribbon gore over abdomen. Very long skirt. French Coutil handsomely trimmed with Point d'Esprit and Cluny lace and ribbon. For medium slender figures. Per pair $8.00

D1 Medium bust, long skirt. French gore with extra rubber gore on hip. Long back. Skirt hooks. Fine imported Coutil trimmed with wide Oriental lace and Satin Ribbon. Flossing. For stout figures. Per pair.... $10.00

E1 Medium bust, long hip. French model with rubber gore over abdomen. Made of handsome Silk Batiste and exquisitely trimmed with French Val. lace and Pompadour ribbon. Flossed. For slender figures. Per pair $12.00

SENSATIONS IN MILLINERY

AUTUMN'S FIRST DISPLAY

The very principle of our Millinery business is a sensation. Every facility created by great personal endeavor and by complete organization is placed at your disposal.

Not the percent of profit, but the Volume—Amount—of aggregate sales brings the returns for capital invested, labor bestowed, expense incurred. Hence, the ordinary is the sensational here. That's a hint of the premise in the Millinery brief. The conclusion is that we are selling Hats to more and more women of the community.

Perfect taste is the motive power, originality, independence and economy the governors that control our Millinery progress.

MATERIALS—Velvet, French Felt, Plush, Velour and Beaver.

TRIMMINGS—Plain, Fancy and Two-toned Ostrich Feathers, Ribbons, Velvet, Plush.

SHAPES—Wide brims and low crowns, the brims having a decided tendency to extend backward. Straight lines are noted. The medium and small shapes are trimmed rather high.

COLORS—Black, black-and-white, white-and-black, iris, parrot green, amber, taupe, prune and pastel tints combined with black and other contrasts.

PRICES—$5.00 TO $75.00

LACES

The touch of Lace upon Autumn Fashion is strong and broad.

Of course, certain styles are in greater demand than others. It's a high kind of art—a prescient quality—that can look forward and tell the Laces that will bask in Fashion's warmest smile. Here they are:

Shadow Laces, solid mesh patterns outlined with silk threads—very sheer and delicate.

Bohemian Laces—vermicelli designs. Flat Venise Laces are used a great deal. Fillet Laces are in great vogue. Irish and Cluny Laces have not been supplanted.

Tinsel—Gold Laces—give a rich Oriental effect to everything they grace.

RIBBONS

Come here and see all the Ribbon newnesses. Ribbons for every use—for trimming dresses and hats, for girdles and sashes, for fancy work and decorations. Among them are Velour Ribbons in rich designs and colorings. Gold and Silver Bands, Gilt Bands with picot edges and Taffetas with picot edges. The glowing novelties haven't crowded the needs of school children from our minds. Here are two specials:

Moire Hair Bow Ribbon, 5½ inches wide, beautiful quality, complete range of colors..... 19c for 29c High-grade Taffeta Ribbon, 6 inches wide, all colors. Ideal for hair bows.

ARE YOU going to be one of the 4,000 new men the United States Navy wants this year? Or are you going to "turn down" the Navy without looking into it? Multitudes of men fail in life by refusing to investigate opportunities. The Navy is one big opportunity, an opportunity to see the world, to step out of [illegible] life into a life of changing scenes, variety; an opportunity to educate yourself by study and travel, an opportunity to learn a trade or work at one you now know (the Navy employs 50 trades), an opportunity to become a CHIEF PETTY OFFICER $50 to $100 per month, then WARRANT OFFICER $1,600 to $2,500 per year. Only young men 17 to 25 years of age can enlist, except men knowing trades. They can enlist over 25 and at higher pay. Call at the Navy Recruiting Station, 146 Tremont st., Boston, Mass., and hear the complete story of the navy from officers there. Or send for "The Making of a Man O'Warsman," a free book. Tells in pictures and simple language everything you want to know about navy life, work, food, pay, play, promotion, travel, etc. Have your parents read it! Send today and you won't forget. Dorchester—For Home and Investment

Dorchester has the best housed people in the world.

Dorchester has more population than any city in the Commonwealth except Worcester, and yet has no slums.

For play and recreation grounds no city in the world can excel Dorchester, example Franklin Park and Franklin Field, Gibson playground and Gibson Field, Ashmont playground and Ashmont Park, Savin Hill Park and the beautiful Mt. Ida playground of 10 acres with a view of the ocean for miles; a city playground without a rival in America. Then there is Carson Beach, Savin Hill Beach and Tenean Beach with boating and bathing.

Best transportation service—The Boston Elevated operated over their entire system about 6,600 round trips daily into the city, while 3,200 round trips daily run from the car barns of Dorchester.

Steam railroads—Dorchester has three lines giving service from 22 stations; it is a question if there is a city in the world with anything like it.

Subways—The first section of the Dorchester tunnel is now completed. About 2 years will find trains operating through Boston's greatest crosstown subway, connecting at Park St. with through service to the Cambridge tube without change of cars. One ride from Andrew Sq. to Harvard Sq. in Cambridge in about 20 minutes.

CURLEY DEFENDS HIS RECORD IN CONGRESS

In Statement Tells How He Has Voted for Labor and the People.

James M. Curley, Representative from the Twelfth District, has given out a statement defending his record in Congress. He enumerated the various measures for which he worked and tells of his stand on many matters of importance. His statement follows:

By JAMES M. CURLEY.

At no time in the history of the republic, with the possible exception of the period between '61 and '65, have the people been confronted with greater problems, the proper solution of which means much to every man, woman and child. As a member of the Sixty-second Congress I have endeavored to represent the district in such a manner as would prove creditable to the electorate and myself, and it is with much pleasure that I submit for criticism or approval a brief summary of work performed.

I stood squarely in behalf of a bill providing an eight-hour day on all government work, a bill providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt, a bill creating a Department of Labor and giving labor a seat in the President's cabinet, a bill increasing the scope of the Bureau of Mines and giving additional relief to those employed in the mining of coal and to better develop methods to prevent accidents in mines, a bill creating a Child Labor Bureau, a bill taxing out of existence the white phosphorus match production, a bill abolishing involuntary servitude of seamen, a bill creating a commission to settle labor disputes, a bill to pay injured employes, a bill investigating the "Taylor system" of scientific shop management in order that workmen may be protected against speeding up beyond their normal power.

Also a bill carrying an eight-hour provision for postoffice clerks and carriers; a bill removing the "gag" rule from postoffice employes, so that they may bring their grievances to Congress without fear of being discharged for so doing; a bill increasing the wages of railway postoffice clerks and of carriers, both city and rural; a bill giving second class mail privileges to official papers of trade unions and fraternal organizations, a provision in the Naval appropriation bill that all coal used for the navy must be mined in an eight-hour day; a bill for the direct election of United States Senators; the Sherwood dollar-a-day pension bill for the veterans of the Civil War; a bill for the revocation of our treaty with Russia for failing to recognize our passports and discriminating against our citizens of Jewish faith, a bill to provide for the restriction of power of Federal judges in issuing injunctions.

I was also in favor of the bill placing sugar upon the free list, that would save $100,000,000 annually to the people; a bill making a substantial reduction in the wool schedule so as to lighten the people's burden in purchasing warm clothing; the farmers, and laborers' free list bill, removing the tariff tax upon farmers' implements, meat, flour and other necessaries of living and bills for the substantial reduction of duties upon cotton, steel and chemicals.

I voted against my party organization upon the question of national defence in favor of an adequate navy as a matter of patriotism and against a seven-year tenure bill for Federal employes at Washington as a protest against the spoils system.

LABOR UNION NEWS OF GREATER BOSTON

State Branch of A. F. of L. to Hold Annual Session at Fitchburg.

Organized labor's paramount issue during the Fall elections will be decided upon at the annual convention of the Massachusetts State Branch of the A. F. of L. at Fitchburg a week from tomorrow.

The fact that Lieutenant-Governor Luce already has been condemned by the Boston Central Labor Union for his refusal to permit the Elevated employes to enter the State House during their recent strike insures some action along political lines.

That the convention also will make definite demand for some specific legislation and place on record the different candidates for Governor before election is taken for granted in local labor circles.

In addition to these matters there promises to be a lively contest waged for the office of president of the Federation, President Wall of Worcester having declined to seek re-election. All of which adds to the interest being taken in the coming convention this year.

Practically all the large firms concerned have agreed to pay the new wage-scale of the Milk Wagon Drivers' Union, and there is no immediate danger of a general strike of the men following that calling locally.

An increase of 35 per cent in the number of positions filled by the State Free Employment Bureau, as contrasted with August of last year, is shown by the report covering the last thirty days' business done at that institution.

Coal Teamsters' Union No. 68, John J. Fenton business agent, elects two delegates to the State Federation of Labor convention at the union meeting at Wells Memorial building today. Agent Fenton attends the convention as delegate from the Boston C. L. U.

Dock Freight Handlers Union No. 809 A. F. of L., is out with a challenge to any tug-of-war team in the State, in or out the ranks of organized labor. This local has passed the 500-membership mark.

* * *

Cooks' Union No. 328, chartered under the A. F. of L. laws, has given its unqualified indorsement to the movement being conducted in this city by the International Hotel Workers' Union for higher wages. The new union is not affiliated with the A. F. of L. or the I. W. W.

* * *

William F. Scott of Boston was elected international president of the Electrotypers' Union at the Chicago convention of that organization. The convention provided for an arbitration plan to prevent strikes.

* * *

A six-day work-week at all local breweries, instead of the seven-day week, now worked, is demanded by Engineers' Union No. 16 in its new working condition scale for this city.

Longshoremen's Trade Council takes up as a special order of business several questions left unsettled during its ten-week strike, at a meeting to be held at Lyceum Hall, East Boston, tonight.

* * *

There will be a special meeting of the Salem Division of the Brotherhood of Railroad Station Employes at K. of P. Hall in that city this afternoon. E. A. Barnes, secretary-treasurer, will be the principal speaker.

General Teamsters' Union No. 379, Harry P. Jennings business agent, reports six additional firms having signed the union's new wage scale during the last seven days.

Newspaper Writers' Union No. 1 holds a special meeting to elect a delegate to the State Federation of Labor convention at the Old South Building 5 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon. Every member is requested to attend.

* * *

Thomas F. Keough has been elected president of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' Union for the twenty-seventh term. Charles L. Evans was re-elected business agent and Edward N. Kelly financial secretary.

* * *

The State Council of Electrical Workers' Unions, A. F. of L., meets at Wells Memorial Building today. There will be a mass meeting of electrical workers, for organizing purposes, at Faneuil Hall, September 26.

* * *

After a special investigation, through a committee appointed for that purpose, Bricklayers' Union No. 3 has voted not to affiliate with the Boston Allied Building Trades Union for the present.

With the organization of the girl ticket collectors and the porters employed on the "L," the Boston Street Carmen's Union today has 6,200 good standing members among the 8,000 employes of that company.

* * *

Plumbers' Union No. 12, which won the championship of the East in a baseball game with the New York Plumbers' Union team on Labor Day, plays its last game of the season at Peddocks' Island today.

* * *

Boston Barbers' Union, J. J. Dwyer secretary-agent, reports the unionization of nine additional shops in the Greater Boston district during the last two weeks, largely through assistance rendered by the recently organized street carmen.

Steamfitters' Union No. 26 has a call out for a special meeting Tuesday, September 17, to consider an important communication forwarded from the headquarters of the international union.

* * *

The Boston Central Labor Union, through its executive committee, is conducting a searching investigation into alleged violations of the eight hour law by several semi-public-service corporations in this city.

MARKET STAYS DULL IN THE FACE OF BETTER TRADE AND BIG CROPS

By W. H. ROSS.

W. H. ROSS

STATE STREET, Sept. 7.—Neither the speculative nor the business situation has changed in essentials, and if there is any new development materially affecting either it is politics. The Vermont election is over and after attempts at analyzing the result the average trader in stocks is not altogether sure as to what it portends. But the vital financial, manufacturing and commercial interests of the country are now in a position where they are not likely to suffer in case either of the three presidential candidates win.

The campaign which is being waged has been shaped by events prior to any political convention. Since candidates have been nominated there have been more revelations regarding the monetary connections between great vested interests and politicians which will retire some of the latter to private life as soon as present terms of office expire, and which will permanently eliminate Wall Street as a contributing territory.

The big interests today want to know where they stand, what they can do without violating the law and then to be permitted to peacefully conduct their business as long as they do not infract statutes. The radical spirit of the country, so called, has worked some great reforms without any action by Congress. Public opinion, as a matter of fact, is a greater power than any legislative body. It is felt first. It has caused a change which will work to the advantage in the end of not only the public, but to that of the great corporations which are viewed with suspicion.

STOCK MARKET HAS LAGGED.

The stock market has lagged along without any definite change during the week. Those who expected that speculation would revive after Labor Day were disappointed. The week, as a whole, has been a disappointment to bears. Few people outside of those who make stock transactions a business or engage in them as a habit have paid any attention to the trend of prices.

The whole country is expecting a great revival of business. Some trades have felt its impulse already, and every sign of the hour points to all others soon experiencing its benefits. The demand for labor is so great that all capable and industrious Americans are on payrolls, and toilers in the mass never more contented. When trade gets a little brisker and profits a little larger their employers will be equally benefited.

Crop news gets better all the time. The danger period is practically past for almost all agricultural products, and in a few weeks the country will be busy in reaping, transporting and collecting. Not only will the cereal harvests be enormous, but the cotton crop is sure to be big. It may total 14,000,000 bales. People are going to be so busy—or it would seem so—that it is hard to see how they are going to have much time to pay any attention to politics.

Europe Is Prosperous.

Every observing citizen who is returning from Europe tells of prosperity on the other side of the Atlantic in the face of labor troubles, fear of war and many economic problems, due to large populations upon small territories, of which this country has little realization. With its vastly great resources and wealth the United States should have indefinitely better times in comparison. They would be here now without doubt but for the fact that capital wants to learn before it lends money and energy to expansion what the governmental policy is to be like for the next four years. The great moving interests are prepared to adjust themselves to the coming conditions just as soon as it is definitely known what they are to be.

At least that may be offered as a possible reason why eminent financiers have been content to devote any attention they may have given to the market to accumulating standard or surely remunerative stocks on every recession, or to indulging in the "milking" process. The way prices have been sustained in the face of the fact that professional traders have persistently been bearish indicates, if anything, that the most powerful influences have steadily lent buying support when it was needed. If they have been committed to any such policy it signifies they are looking forward to a period of higher values, and if they did not have foresight they would never have had the money.

Railroads Doing Better.

Recent statements of railroad earnings have been encouraging and in a measure is an offset to further suspension of transcontinental freight rates by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Great as the buying of steel products has been it looks as if the output of that material would be even greater in 1913. With the great industries of the country working overtime at a profit, and transportation demands so great that roads can make money at even low rates, the outlook is certainly not of a nature to inspire much dread.

The monetary situation is something calculated to retard stock market activity for the present. Money rates are advancing and banks are not possessed of as large a surplus as might be wished for on the eve of the greatest crop movement the country has ever known. It is thought that the call rate may go as high as 6 per cent. before the impending flurry is over. The most powerful financial interests prefer a quiet stock market until the monetary strain has been removed.

While they are declining to take any initiative and speculative spirit on the part of the public is apparently dormant, if not absolutely so, it appears as if dealings in securities would continue for awhile longer in the restricted and uneventful manner which has characterized such transactions for weeks.

Next Events of Importance.

The next event of political importance will be the State election in Maine on Monday, but that it will have any market effect, after the indifference shown over Vermont returns, is doubtful. Interest in the voting there is centred more upon the question of whether Maine stays Democratic or goes Republican than upon what kind of a vote the Bull Moose party will poll. The Maine election is not being anticipated as being of as much national as local significance. Anyhow it will take more than a State election to stir up a market which has received with apathy all kinds of news which in the past would have started some kind of a feverish movement.

Much more interest is felt at present in the forthcoming government report than in politics and it has been whetted by private estimates to what the harvest will yield. Some authorities think it is reasonable to expect a record corn crop. It has been estimated at 2,925,000,000 bushels, or even higher, while that of wheat is set at 730,000,000 and oats at 1,441,000,000. It is said corn is several weeks late in maturing, but that it is making an astounding showing in the fields regardless of that.

Government estimates are proverbially conservative and if the report on September 9 is good it should set all doubts at rest. How big the crops are likely to be is demonstrated by railroad tonnage figures from distributing points in the West for four recent days. The total was 18,555,000 bushels of grain. The increase over the crop movement of a year ago was 6,300,000 bushels.

NEW YORK GETS MILLIONS ABROAD

Borrowing In Europe Amounts to $150,000,000 and More Is Needed.

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Pressure for money thus early in the harvest season has been so great that already New York has borrowed from Europe not less than $150,000,000 and is daily swelling the total through the sale of "finance bills," which must be paid off by shipments of cotton and grain before the year ends.

In all important centres, abroad as well as at home, the cost of accommodation has risen. London is having to meet calls from New York, from Berlin, from Egypt, from Turkey and elsewhere. If the defensive action recently taken, an advance of a full 1 per cent. in the Bank of England rate—proves inadequate more severe measures will be instituted.

Bonds Go on Market

Money being now worth more than the income received from gilt-edged bonds, the latter are being thrown on the market and the proceeds placed on loan at 5 per cent. or better for four months or longer maturities, an expediency rendered necessary by our iniquitous inelastic currency system. New York city 4¼ per cent. bonds floated at 100¾ have broken below par and other municipal issues have declined correspondingly.

New capital cannot be obtained on reasonable terms. The repeated blows aimed at the railroads by the Interstate Commission have ruined the market for railroad loans while the output of industrial stocks was so expensive earlier in the year that a breathing space is necessary. Then heavy maturities of short-term notes confront the market.

The wages problem is still unsettled. The arbitrators appointed to consider the Eastern locomotive engineers' demands will resume their deliberations this week, and they may not arrive at a verdict for several weeks. Herein lies another cause of uncertainty, for if even a moderate advance be conceded the railroads will suffer unless the Interstate Commission changes its attitude and permits a pretty general readjustment of freight schedules.

Campaign Can't Be Ignored.

Finally, we are within two months of a Presidential election unique in American history. True, all three candidates, though proclaiming burning hatred of "privilege," are careful to emphasize that they will safeguard legitimate business; that they will not run amuck; that they will do nothing unnecessarily harsh to throw the wheels of industry out of gear. But the campaign, with all its heat, cannot be entirely ignored.

In big financial circles interesting events have occurred politically. Mr. Roosevelt has been thrown over; capitalists complain that he cannot be trusted to keep his word; that he is an unconscionable opportunist, and that he is altogether too erratic to be intrusted with a new lease of the untrammeled power he insists upon arrogating to himself.

But President Taft is now to receive support from certain financiers of the very foremost rank, notwithstanding that during his administration he has done much to offend these same interests. J. P. Morgan, I have it from an associate, has decided to accept Taft as the least objectionable of a trio that possess little attraction for him. The veteran banker's lead will be followed by many in Wall Street especially those of the old school.

Woodrow Wilson, however, is now the favorite with the younger generation of capitalists despite the admitted objection that he is entirely unacquainted with business and financial affairs. Since the Vermont election the prospects of Democratic victory have been interpreted as pretty convincing.

COPPER CONSUMPTION.

How Much Red Metal Is Used Per Capita in U. S.

"It is interesting," says Thompson, & Towle & Co., "to compare the population of the United States to copper consumption and the number of pounds of copper consumed per capita. Below we give the results in tabulated form:

Year	Popu.	Lbs. Copper Consum.	Lbs. Con. Pr Capita	Percent In.
1900	76,303,387	366,172,560	4.8	5.
1910	92,174,515	[illegible]	8.40	67.

"From the above figures the enormous increase in copper consumption during the past twenty years will be evident. While the population has increased 50 per cent. in this period, copper consumption has increased 288 per cent.

From a production standpoint the vigorous exploitations of copper mines which has been actively going on during the past twenty-five years has probably resulted in the discovery of the greatest copper camps and largest producers in this country and although new mines will be found, we do not believe that the production of copper will increase in the future as in the past. Since 1850, or over a period of sixty-two years, production in the United States has increased from 1,300,000 pounds per annum to 1,100,000,000 pounds.

"From an analysis of the above figures, one cannot help but wonder whence will come the red metal to supply future requirements. Fast as the population of the country is increasing, far greater is the ratio of copper consumption per capita."

HARD COAL OUTLOOK.

Poor Prospect for Making Up the Great Fuel Shortage.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The prospect of making up the shortage in anthracite is not of the best. On August 1 it was 7,700,000 tons and on September 1 it was estimated tons and on September 1 it was October it is hoped to reduce it to 5,500,000, but that is about the best that is expected.

From October on to March 31 anthracite mines last year produced coal nearly to their maximum limit. The monthly average for that period exceeded 6,000,000 tons. It will be next to impossible to make any gain in those months over last year.

Fiscal Year Crop.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 7.—The cotton crop for the year ending August 31, 1912, according to Secretary Hester of the New WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The population previous year by 4,018,331 bales. Its money value was $107,074,825 less.

TOBACCO CONDITIONS.

President Hill Says Competition in the Trade Is Very Keen

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—In discussing conditions in the tobacco trade President Hill of the American Tobacco Company said:

"The most impressive fact is the serious effort being made by all manufacturers to advance their own brands. Merchants and dealers say that there never have been before competitive conditions such as now exist."

Mr. Hill declared that it had not yet been established that profits in the tobacco trade have been increased by dissolution of the trust. The volume of business is greater, and there is more opportunity for larger profits, but companies are spending more on advertising.

More Building Going On.

New construction projects during August showed a gain of 13 per cent. compared with the corresponding period of last year in the principal cities of the United States, according to Bradstreet's. In seventy-eight cities the total amount involved aggregated $44,148,789.

Population and Money.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The population of the United States on this continent on September 3 last is estimated at 95,936,000 and the total amount of money was $3,206,280,000, which makes the circulation $34.36 per capita.

Spot Copper Supply Short.

September copper metal supply is now at a minimum, as producers have sold out. The result is that premiums are being paid for delivery this month. There is very little October copper left, while a good part of the November supply is already sold. There is demand for December copper already. Some copper consumers are short of the metal they need this month.

Banks Prepare for Crops.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—National banks in this city are preparing for the crop movement. The feature of the reports of fourteen made in response to a call for condition at the close of September 4 is a drop in loans of $12,500,000 and an increase of nearly $11,300,000 in cash resources since the last report made under date of June 14.

TRADING IN WHEAT IS MORE BEARISH

Hedging Begins in the Northwest and Advances Not Looked for.

By JOSEPH F. PRITCHARD.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Conditions and circumstances surrounding the wheat market could hardly be more bearish than they are at the moment. By this declaration the writer does not wish to convey to the reader the claim that wheat will sell a great deal lower than at the present time but that advances are almost out of the question unless something unforeseen transpires to help the market out of its present rut.

The Northwest has commenced to hedge its wheat at Minneapolis, but, owing to the great difference in the price between the smaller market of the Northwest and the Chicago market, large quantities of that grain will necessarily be hedged at Chicago.

Hedging Has Been Liberal.

During a part of yesterday the hedging transactions at Minneapolis were quite liberal and there was an increased amount of sales here on Northwestern account.

Word comes from many of the [illegible] houses in the Spring wheat country that the receipts are to increase materially and that a great deal of this grain will find its way into warehouses, as there is no outlet for any great quantity at the moment.

While it is true that vessel room has been engaged for 1,000,000 bushels of wheat for shipment to Buffalo, it may be said that this wheat was sold some time ago and that it will not be moved owing to a lack of tonnage.

A noticeable feature during the last few days was the buying of wheat by some of the best concerns in the trade while the selling was led by professional traders or room traders.

An exceedingly bearish set of statistics are slated for Monday which will include increases in the domestic visible supply as well as in the world's shipments and the amount on ocean passage.

Corn Situation Strange.

The corn situation is an abnormal one. The crop prospect is for a year of 3,000,000,000 bushels, but the bins of this country are almost depleted. Every pound of this corn to come forward has been grabbed up by shorts and delivered on September contracts. Some of the corn is being delivered on old sales and is being shipped to the East as rapidly as it can be loaded into vessels.

Oats have sold largely to exporters and with the load drawn out rests in the Old World and the rotting of the [illegible] on the ground of many countries [illegible] will find heavy takers during the [illegible] crop year.

The [illegible] market is in the hands of the larger packers and they will not allow [illegible] to roll up the January futures in order to not increase the cash products now held at Chicago and elsewhere.

PARCELS POST.

Summary of New Law Which Will Be Effective January 1.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Senator Bourne has made the following summary of provisions of the new parcels post law effective January 1, 1913:

Any article is mailable if not over eleven pounds in weight nor more than seventy-two inches in length and girth combined, not likely to injure the mails or postal equipment or employes.

Flat rate of one cent per ounce up to four ounces, regardless of distance.

Above four ounces rates are by the pound or fraction thereof, and varying with distance as follows:

	First lbs.	Each add. lbs.	11 lbs.
Rural & city delivery	$0.05	$0.01	$0.15
50-mile zone	.05	.03	.35
150-mile zone	.06	.04	.46
300-mile zone	.07	.05	.57
600-mile zone	.08	.06	.68
1,000 mile zone	.09	.07	.79
1,400 mile zone	.10	.09	1.00
1,800 mile zone	.11	.10	1.11
Over 1,800 miles	.12	.12	1.32

The Postmaster-General may make provision for indemnity insurance, and collection on delivery, with additional charges for such service, and may, with consent of the Commerce Commission, after investigation, modify rates, weights and zone distances, when experience has demonstrated the need thereof.

Yankee Settlers in Canada.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7.—The Canadian government announces that since April 1 last, about the time snow began to melt in the Dominion, 70,000 Americans have settled in the Northwest. This is a 22 per cent. increase in American immigration. If the Yankees are going to introduce into Canada the Granger antipathy to railroads, the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk may eventually find the new comers an inimical element. Opposition to the proposed Canadian Pacific stock increase is believed to be largely due to the American element already in Canada.

GERMAN WAY OF CAPTURING TRADE

Rich Berliner's Son Becomes a Waiter to Learn Restaurant Business.

By BOERSAINER.

BOERSAINER.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The young waiter in the Paris cafe spoke French gutterally. He pronounced his B's like "P's" and his "P's" like "B's." "Voulez vous" was always "folloay-foo," but his grammar was correct and his vocabulary fairly extensive. His blue eyes and blonde hair emphasized the suspicion that he was German. For the [illegible] of the service it is [illegible] to ask [illegible] restaurant [illegible] is a German. The chances are many he will deny it—if he is from the Fatherland, or he will claim Alsatian or Swiss-Austrian nativity. In [illegible] he will pose as a Bavarian. But the [illegible] excellent wine embodied [illegible] your humble servant to question [illegible] on about his [illegible] formulated the query in [illegible].

The admission was prompt and [illegible] Yes—not only from Germany [illegible] Prussia. A Berliner born and proud of it.

Germans Learn a Business.

What was he doing here? Perfecting himself in French and getting [illegible] in the management of a first class [illegible]. His father was a rich restaurateur in Berlin. There were four sons. All had been sent abroad to study the [illegible] business in a practical manner. [illegible] had been instructed to make a [illegible] of western [illegible] to acquire the [illegible] to get [illegible] experiences in [illegible] to [illegible] with the cooks as well as with [illegible].

Our young fellow had [illegible] been in [illegible] and [illegible]. He purposed going to Vienna [illegible] to Italy and [illegible] After [illegible] hoped to return [illegible] with [illegible] knowledge of catering [illegible] stomachs. His [illegible] were [illegible] making the foreign [illegible] is Germany [illegible] ground [illegible] thoroughness. [illegible] Germany [illegible] risen in forty years [illegible] a wholly [illegible] position [illegible] to the front ranks in the foreign [illegible] it has distanced England [illegible] had [illegible] using the [illegible] of her business men and [illegible] teaching [illegible] to study the needs of foreign countries [illegible] the needs and methods of those nations. She has [illegible] of her consuls [illegible] spies but commercial agents for Germany, and has made her consulate service not a refuge for [illegible] but a place for her alert and energetic [illegible].

Americans Will Not Prepare.

A contrasting picture is presented by F. [illegible] Donaldson who edits the periodicals issued by the Department of Commerce and Labor, in Washington. Mr. Donaldson [illegible] of an important firm in New York whose partners had [illegible] to [illegible] some South American trade. The opening was in Brazil. The position of manager of the branch house to be opened in Rio Janeiro was submitted to [illegible] of the [illegible] most efficient employes with the provision that the man accept the post [illegible] a preparatory course of one year [illegible] quiring the Portuguese tongue and [illegible] miliarising himself with Brazilian [illegible].

All balked at the stipulation. The salary was inviting. The percentage [illegible] more so. There was no doubt that [illegible] in Rio de Janeiro [illegible] a year's drilling in the Portuguese language and getting a line of the Brazilians so they would not do this. A [illegible] was not to be had among [illegible] mercial staff. The project was abandoned.

And yet we expect to "capture" South American trade; to take it away from Germany, England and [illegible], whose agents know the vernacular of the people with whom they trade, who [illegible] adapt themselves to La[illegible] customs, who see their principals informed of what South America's wants are, how they want it and when they want it and who do not attempt to sell Arctic shoes in a torrid climate.

However, we are great people. Perhaps we can make South Americans [illegible] what we [illegible] force them to speak English, compel them to drink [illegible] in a temperature of 120 [illegible] and wear tweed suits under [illegible].

COTTON TRADING HAS BEEN ACTIVE

Present Prices Have Induced Short Covering and Speculative Buying.

By EDWARD LOW RANLETT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Trading in cotton contracts has been very active during the week under review. A decline in market values of nearly $2.50 per bale has been recorded following the highest prices reached after the July condition report. January contracts sold as low as 10.71 just previous to the September report, and these prices seemed to attract not only tremendous short covering but considerable speculative and investment buying. At first, little attention was paid to the upturn, because the report of 74.8 was taken to mean a better condition of the crop than usually prevails during August, and the active trade houses sold freely on the rise which followed.

Meantime very high temperatures with dry weather were reported over nearly all sections of the cotton belt. The crop was apparently being rushed to maturity by [illegible] influences in a way to greatly [illegible] its ultimate yielding capacity. This applied particularly to Texas, over which State moisture has been greatly deficient and no relief of a substantial character has been had for many weeks past. Late during the week under review reports of high temperatures were also coming in from Georgia and the eastern belt, where the plant having had abundant moisture is sapping and not in condition to stand high temperatures. The market responded to these influences and on Friday January [illegible] well in advance of 89 points as compared with the low quotation recorded on Friday of the week previous.

[illegible] complaint of lack of freight [illegible] Gulf ports, and fears of congestion [illegible] at the ports, but in the [illegible] delay the marketing of [illegible] otherwise would find its way [illegible]. This argument has been used against [illegible] has also the fact that the [illegible] have not taken freely of the [illegible] up to this time, though [illegible] spinners' report would [illegible] this suggestion. Meantime [illegible] short interest has been [illegible] the prospects of heavy [illegible] and the market cannot be [illegible] sided affair. That rapid deterioration is going on in the crop may be now admitted [illegible] that it will exceed former years is not yet assured.

It is difficult to understand why, with [illegible] and feed crops, and the [illegible] volume of commercial [illegible] demand for American cotton [illegible] in some proportion to [illegible] during the past year. If [illegible] the world's transportation [illegible] taxed to their utmost, it must [illegible] trade conditions have assumed an [illegible] volume the world over, and this volume cannot help out contain a [illegible] percentage of textile fabrics.

Coal Car Surplus.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—In the two weeks ending August 29 the surplus of coal cars decreased from [illegible] to 5,295, while the box car surplus decreased from 27,[illegible] to 14,180. [illegible] surplus showed a small decrease.

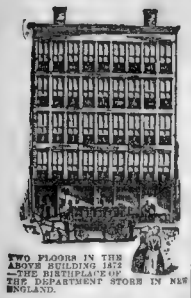
The Wonderful Growth of a Wonderful Store



TWO FLOORS IN THE ABOVE BUILDING 1872 —THE BIRTHPLACE OF THE DEPARTMENT STORE IN NEW ENGLAND.

Pictorial Stepping Stones and Interesting Comment That Mark the Phenomenal Progress of the First Department Store in New England, and Today the Greatest Strictly Cash Store in this Section of the Country.

The Completion, in Early Spring, of a New, Magnificent and Modern Structure by Houghton & Dutton Co. Will Bring to a Fitting Climax Boston's Grand Retail Advancement, Which Will Go Down in History as One of the Greatest Retail Business Evolution Movements This Country Has Ever Known.

THE WHOLE OF THE PAVILION BUILDING OCCUPIED IN 1868. THE ALBION BUILDING ERECTED IN 1883.

The Houghton & Dutton Company has for some time been planning a new building, which will be completed, in part at least, in time for the Christmas holiday trade, and in entirety by early Spring.

This building is to be constructed at the corner of Beacon and Tremont streets, thereby completing the present group of six buildings which now accommodate the firm at the corner of Tremont and Beacon streets. The site is one that was owned by the late E. S. Houghton in 1872, just 40 years ago, and the site is now valued more than ever as being located but one block from the Park street subway and one from Scollay square, and within easy access of the North and West Ends and Beacon Hill, as well as the Washington street tunnel at Mile and State streets.

The new store will occupy the ground space of the present store, but will rise to the full limit allowed by the building laws. The interior of the six stores now occupied will also be largely remodeled.

First in New England.

"Few people realize," says Mr. F. E. Hatch, the advertiser of Houghton & Dutton Company, "that the Houghton & Dutton Company was the first department store in all New England, and, barring Macy's in New York, the first in all America.

"It was, moreover, the first to introduce the practice of employing women as clerks; the first to use 'odd prices'; the first to run automobile delivery wagons; the first to have Friday sales; the first to initiate a deposit account system, and the first to take such a popular and progressive step as advertising in the daily newspapers.

"The firm, whose history is most interesting, is unique among department stores of New England in that it is to-day an importer of china and glass and one of the largest retailers of drugs, of Gold Medal flour, and of 'Educator' shoes, the largest handler of bed-rock necessities, the only department store to lend its delivery service within the building instead of on its public highway, and the only store now conducting a milk station.

"As Houghton & Dutton's was the first department store in New England, this type of store, being primarily an institution—where popular prices might be had together with quality—it was also the first department store in New England to employ newspaper advertising as a means of letting the public know what it had to sell.

"Quite in keeping with the whole progressive policy of the retail simplicity was the institution of the Friday sales, whereby a day has been made regularly one of the heaviest shopping days of the whole week, every week throughout the year.

"It is also with the Houghton & Dutton Company that the first auto, free-hour sales originated, and have been maintained with but a break for now 10 solid years. These sales have proved so well known, not only by the shopping public of New England, but with buyers and commercial travellers throughout the country, that similar sales have been established in hundreds of cities all over the United States. The three hours' sales advertisement of the Houghton & Dutton Company has also remained the same in typographical effect throughout the whole 10 years, it having become a signal watched for by a fairly constant patronage.

"Odd Prices."

"Apart the 'odd prices' now in vogue from coast to coast, the belief of many is that the penny change was introduced by way of making goods a trifle cheaper. Such, however, was not the case. The original idea of the firm was to establish a system whereby all temptation to misappropriate by the selling force might be obviated, the necessity of sending the dollar bill or the 50-cent piece to be changed making it quite impossible for the customer to ding his money on the counter, 'even change,' and walk away. As a principle of general application, it is quite in accord with the theories of scientific management.

"The firm has at all times maintained the reputation of being distinctly a department store in every sense of the word. More actual departments and greater variety of merchandise and food products are carried then in any other one store in the State.

Cash Basis.

"The store has always maintained a strictly cash basis throughout its phenomenal growth, not only in its consistent policy of charging both customers and even the members of the firm spot cash, but in paying cash for merchandise and produce. The reason for this policy is obvious to one familiar with Houghton & Dutton's prices. Spot cash 'looking as good' to the wholesaler as to anyone else, the company is thereby enabled to secure large bonuses and extra prompt attention, and in consequence the store is enabled to sell at a far closer margin then it otherwise would. For whenever an allotment of goods is secured at a special inducement, the profit is shared with the public, it being the policy of the store to shift the stock as rapidly as possible, thus keeping constantly up to date.

Grocery Department

"The grocery department is the largest of its kind under the roof of any department store in New England. It carries everything from fish to fruit, including bakery and delicatessen supplies, milk and dairy products, groceries, both dry and green, meats, etc.

"A large cut-flower department forms one rather unusual feature of the service of the store.

"One of the largest moderate-priced restaurants in the city is conducted on

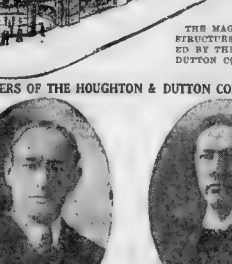
PRESENT MEMBERS AND SOLE OWNERS OF THE HOUGHTON & DUTTON COMPANY

BENJAMIN F. DUTTON, Founder of Houghton & Dutton, and senior member and President of the Houghton & Dutton Company.

HARRY DUTTON, Son of Benjamin F. Dutton, First vice-president of the Houghton & Dutton Company.



GEORGE C. DUTTON, Son of Benjamin F. Dutton, Second vice president of the Houghton & Dutton Company.

ALEXANDER McGREGOR, (Semi-retired) Treasurer of the Houghton & Dutton Company.

women into a field of industry previously closed to them.

"Not long ago the Houghton & Dutton Company was awarding a series of gold medals for having had the greatest number of sales in New England of such standard products as shoes and rubbers, collars and cuffs and shirts, chairs, blankets, hosiery, toilet articles, paper patterns, flour and canned goods, kitchen utensils, spool cotton, and National bed springs respectively. In keeping with the foregoing it is interesting to note that the Houghton & Dutton Company was awarded first prize by the city of Boston for the magnificence of its electrical illumination in honor of Old Home Week.

"A handsome loving cup was also awarded the Houghton & Dutton Baseball Association as champions of the Drygoods League by a local newspaper.

"The store deserves credit inasmuch as, specializing in the actual necessities of life, at times when prices are prohibitive, it reduces prices almost to actual cost. On Saturday, Aug. 31, for instance, when the day's quotations on beef were extra high, it reduced not only roasts, but every article of food that would go to make up the Sunday dinner to the lowest possible price, in order that the customers might not suffer for the higher meats. As an instance of the appreciative trade which this store enjoys, the business resulting from the foregoing restriction exceeded that of any one day in the store's history in this department.

Founded in 1874.

"Mr. S. S. Houghton and Mr. B. F. Dutton founded the store of Houghton & Dutton Company away back in the year 1874, when the idea of combining a number of special shops under one roof was as yet new to the buying public. It was a real venture, for never before had the scheme been tried save by Mr. Houghton's brother-in-law, R. H. Macy, of New York. Together, the two men had founded the store which today bears the name of R. H. Macy Company, the first department store in America.

"Later Mr. Houghton came to Boston and established a store called 'The Ladies' Pavilion,' at 59 Tremont street. This was in 1872. Two years later he expanded the idea into that of a department store, in partnership with B. F. Dutton, who is now the senior member and president of the Houghton & Dutton Corporation.

"The original store occupied two floors of an old hotel building on this same spot —the Pavilion Hotel—the floor space of the store being just 17,800 feet—less than one-third of an acre. This house was the first general store in Boston to buy and sell strictly for cash, a method to which the proprietors have constantly adhered for 40 years, and which has given to similar stores all over the country the inspiration to call themselves 'Boston Cash Stores.'

"The store, under the joint management of Houghton and Dutton, was a success from the start, and has grown and flourished without a setback throughout the four decades.

First Expansion.

"The firm was hardly out of its swaddling clothes before it was confronted by the problem of expansion. The first important step in this direction was made by taking the whole of the Pavilion building. This was in 1877 or 1878. But important as the step seemed at the time, the very material increase served to meet only partially the increasing demands of the business.

"Surrounded as the building was at that time, it was almost impossible to find room in any direction, but expansion had to be met. So, gradually, the firm began to burrow back among the old residences that fronted on Pemberton square and on Beacon street. All were annexed that could be secured—and still the cry was 'We must have more room.'

"In 1883 the Albion building was built on the corner of Tremont and Beacon streets, and the Houghton & Dutton Company became the lessees, using at first but the three lower floors. The firm thought then that the question of space was disposed of. But like Jack's beanstalk, the business grew and grew and grew.

"Early in the '90s the firm purchased the old Congregational building at the corner of Beacon and Somerset streets, remodelled it to store purposes and thereby located the grocery, meat and other more popular departments.

Unprecedented Work.

"Finally, in 1896, the firm began the work of demolishing the old Pavilion building preparatory to the erection of the building of the same name now at 55 Tremont street. The house then entered upon an undertaking which, up to that time, had probably no precedent in store building. The old structure was removed and the new built over and under and around it, so that the house might transact its regular business on the premises during the entire process.

"The latter occupied three years, the new structure being completed in November, 1896, and, from start to finish, the store was never closed during one single business day.

"The feat was attained by tearing down the old building and constructing the new in sections, a process that necessitated the moving of at least one of the departments exactly 17 times. The undertaking was phenomenally difficult, and its entire success complete.

"A few years after the completion of the new Pavilion building, the demolition of the old Congregational building was begun, and the present Annex building erected on the site. The latter was completed in 1907, and the smaller Beacon street structure just below the 'Dutton' building, was erected three years later.

"Thus far only the main buildings that go to make up the present group have been mentioned. Incidentally, several smaller structures have been included, so that the concern now occupies six buildings with a floor space of about eight acres.

"The present store has a seating capacity of 1500 people, and during the Christmas season many hundreds more. The volume of business has, of course, grown proportionately with the increase in floor area and the number of departments. Incidentally, a brief review of the vast and manifold additions always made the occasion of extensive advertising, which, season 45 years and again the company has the right of way straight from Scollay to Tremont street, will now culminate in the most sweeping and impressive addition of all, and one which will serve to complete one of the most representative commercial plants in the country.

New Building's Site.

"About two years ago, the Lowell building in Beacon street was purchased. This clears the way for the erection of a structure of uniform height, which will extend from the present 'Dutton' building to the corner of Beacon and Tremont streets. This naturally involves the demolition of the present Albion building at the corner, and when the work is completed, the result will be one of the largest, handsomest, most commodious and best appointed stores to be found in the city. Work on the new enterprise will begin about Oct. 1, and with the space then required the company will have at its command over 375,000 square feet of floor space. And the erection of this vast enterprise on the small floors in an old structure at 55 Tremont street is less than one-third of an acre.

"The present officers and proprietors of the company and the only owners, which was incorporated under the name of Houghton & Dutton in 1906, are B. F. Dutton, who was one of the original founders, and his sons, Harry Dutton and George C. Dutton, as vice-presidents, and Alexander McGregor as treasurer.

Philanthropic Interest.

"The Houghton & Dutton Company has always co-operated with all philanthropic institutions of the city, especially at Christmas time, when it has, among other things, given the Post Santa Claus toys at cost. It is the policy of the store—and no bad business policy as it undoubtedly secures a church and philanthropic harness, the firm going more than half way to meet committees that have waited on it. It made over 1000 donations last year alone. Yet it does not look upon such action as charity, but business.

"The deposit account system is interesting. Anyone who deposits money may shop on it by means of a deposit account transfer card, drawing 4 per cent. interest on the balance. The store thus encourages the saving and investment of wages.

the top floor. There are also spacious rest and retiring rooms, telephone rooms, ladies' hairdressing and manicure parlors, with a resident physician who is always to attendance, an optician and photographic studios.

"There is an elaborate music section, with instrumental and sheet music rooms continually illustrated by vocalists and instrumental players that hourly draw their crowds of tired shoppers bent on a little relaxation.

"Such congenial business relations has the firm maintained throughout the years with its employes, that among the active force of today can be found men and women who were employes of the house in the early years of its history.

"Each holiday time a gift of 5 per cent. commission on sales in addition to many others is made all employes. There is also a mutual aid society which is all that the name implies.

It is an actual fact that the Houghton & Dutton Company was the first store in New England to employ women and girls as clerks for selling purposes. And, indeed, it was fitting that a firm which had made so many sweeping innovations in methods of merchandise distribution should have taken the initial step in bringing in located the grocery, meat and other more popular departments.

FACTS ABOUT THE NEW BUILDING OF HOUGHTON & DUTTON CO.

The building with this addition will be one mammoth block, nine stories in height, with basement covering a combined ground area of nearly 50,000 square feet, and a floor area of over 500,000 square feet.

The tower entrance at the corner of Tremont and Beacon streets will be a great circular structure 165 feet high, embellished with huge granite columns 30 feet high, and over 1,000 tons of steel will be used in this tower alone. The prominence of this corner will make this feature one of the landmarks of the city.

At the top of the tower will be a mechanical electrical structure in itself 25 feet high, to be used for display purposes. From this point, so near the heart of Boston, it is intended to maintain one of the most powerful beacons among electrical displays, and one which can be seen, not only from every point in Greater Boston, but which will be to the incoming mariner the first indication of approaching land. In addition to this feature the entire building will be wired in outline for electric illumination by night.

The building operations will be carried on through such advanced and scientific construction methods that the new store will be built right around and over the old, thereby causing little or no inconvenience to shoppers. The plans have been prepared by Clinton J. Warren and contracts for the construction have been placed with the George W. Harvey Co. The Beacon street staging is now under erection, and this section is planned for completion in time for the Christmas trade, and the whole structure will be opened in the early spring.

PAINTED DOGS TO MATCH THEIR DRESSES!

Blue Polka Dot Poodles, Pink Striped Wolf Hounds Green Bulls and Mauve Spaniels the Newest Fad of Frivolous Paris which Makes the Boulevards a Weird Riot of Color!

MLLE LILLIAN GREUZE AND HER PAINTED PONY WHICH STARTED THE PAINTED DOG FAD.

"MLLE MISTINGUETTE'S PAINTED KANGAROO WENT SO FAST THE COLORS ALL RAN TOGETHER"

"THE BOULEVARDS CHEERED WHEN MLLE RENOUARDT PRODUCED HER ZEBRA GRAYHOUND."

Paris, August 30.

OH, maman, why does that tall gentleman start, place a hand upon his brow, glare affrightedly and then leap and bound away, calling loudly for succor?

Hush, petite, he is an American. He sees for the first time the greyhounds of Mlle. Renouardt. The slim greyhounds, whose heads are vermillion and whose ears are purple. See, their sides are polka-dotted with old rose and their tails are green as emeralds, and they each walk on four little gilded feet.

But, maman, do not the Indians who scalp each other in New York also paint themselves?

Yes, petite fleur, but it is the habit of the barbarians to fear always that which is strange. Wait until he sees the terriers of Mlle. Mistinguette, which are to-day yellow as old gold and barred with mauve and whose azure tails vibrate. Then will he call still more loudly for succor!

Which is to say that in Paris they are now painting their dogs to match their dresses, and the sight is indeed an unusual and disconcerting one.

Mlle. Lillian Greuze started it. Mlle. Greuze is that charming beauty who at Ostend was accosted by an Englishman just emerged from the surf.

"Pardon me, mademoiselle," said the Englishman, "you have dropped your handkerchief."

"My handkerchief!" exclaimed Mlle. Greuze. My handkerchief! Why, sir, that is my new dress!"

To Mlle. Greuze one day recently came a poor Parisian inventor.

"Mademoiselle," he said, "I saw you last night. You enter the stage accompanied by a little horse. You wear a blue dress that is hemmed with old rose and gold. But your little horse is a sad brown. Let us go to him and I will make him joyous."

They went. The inventor took a few little cans and mixed with water their contents. He approached the little horse. He plied upon the little horse brushes dipped in the cans.

"Behold!" he said.

The little horse of Mlle. Greuse champed gayly. He was no longer sad brown. He was blue, with hems of old rose and gold. He was a vision—but he did not look like a horse. He looked like a Futurist horse, which means he looked like nothing ever seen before anywhere.

"Lovely! Exquisite? Perfection!" cried Mlle. Greuze, kissing the inventor and the little horse rapturously and impartially. "Will it hurt him?"

"Not in the least," said the inventor. With a wet cloth we restore him to his sad brown-ness."

That night Mlle. Greuze in her blue dress, with its old rose and gold, led in her little blue, rose and gold horse. Paris was never so delighted.

At once came the logical development. The inventor, scampering from the plaudits of the theatre, opened over night a little shop that bore the legend, "Animals Dyed Here." He hired ten assistants on speculation. With dawn came the deluge.

Mlle. Renouardt, rival beauty to Mlle. Greuze, sent three of her twelve bashi-bazouks to the inventor. Back with them he went. Mlle. Renouardt pointed to her four greyhounds.

"I wear this afternoon a toilette of green with yellow stripes," she said. Behold it. I shall wear a large hat with sea green flowers. Harmonize my dogs."

Soon the four greyhounds stood forth transfigured. The artist had painted them for contrast. Three were of orange, striped with pale silver. Their feet were green, their tails were yellow. The fourth was simply green.

Mlle. Renouardt fainted with delight. Like a sprite surrounded by rainbows she rolled down the bois, while impressionable Parisians fell upon one another's necks, wept with joy and cheered.

The fashion grew and spread. Mlle. Mistinguette, who strives with Mlle. Polaire for the crown of grotesquerie, bought a kangaroo.

The kangaroo next day appeared as a symphony of fadeaway tints. Paris, however, frowned on this as outre. The Parisienne, taking warning, stuck thereafter to her dogs.

And that is why the boulevards now glow with doggish shapes of all colors. How long will the fad last? Until something stranger turns up. For those who pity the dogs it may be said they needn't. The stuff used is entirely harmless and is easily wiped off.

What Happened in the Chorus Tent

(At Mrs. Vanderbilt's $250,000 Ball.)

Some of the Unscheduled Events Mrs. Vanderbilt's Lady Guests Didn't See, and Their Husbands Will Never Tell

(By One Who Was in the Tent When It Happened.)

MRS. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT gave a costume ball at Newport a couple of weeks ago that cost a quarter of a million dollars and brought out several million dollars' worth of jewels and fixings.

However, this isn't about the actual ball given by Mrs. Vanderbilt nor the ball itself. The official, properly censored story has already appeared of that. What I'm writing is the uncensored story, the 100% diamonds and decollete, what a backneyed phrase behind the scenes story. Who am I? It doesn't matter. I was there. I am, in fact, in the chorus of the "Merry Countess" company. Not many months ago I was on the fringe (that's a lot closer than being on the edge) of Mrs. Vanderbilt's set. I simply give a bit of my history to show that while Ned Brewind and Arthur Iselin and Pembroke Jones and the others didn't know me, I knew them very well, and I hope I won't make them uncomfortable to have me say it.

"Under each arm they carried wine. Elsewhere they carried more."

Mrs. Vanderbilt (you know this, too, but I have to lead up to the real story) had the Casino Theatre closed in New York that night so that "The Merry Countess" company could exclusively entertain her guests.

We were a happy crowd when we got in at Newport. Weren't we to mingle with the elite, to scrape elbows with the biggest bunch of Johnnies ever collected under one roof, to sit down at the table with Cornelius himself and perhaps drink out of the same loving cup? We were—not! But the girls didn't know it.

"The only thing that troubles me," said Chlorinda to me, as we approached the wharf, "is that the dear boys I know may be afraid to recognize me because their wives are there."

It was then about 5 o'clock.

"What a dinner I suppose we'll have at Beaulieu," mused Rosie, the blonde. "I expect I'll sit down at the festive board with Cornelius on my right and Alfred on my left and a champagne cup in front of me. In fact, I did promise Clarence—the dear boy—that I'd bring him home the cup."

But what has happened? Here we are at the wharf and Cornelius is not here to meet us! How very, very careless of him! We will call up his little cottage and find out what keeps him.

"Hello! Is this Beaulieu? Well, this is the company. We've just got in. Shall we come right up? What's that? You can't accommodate us at the villa? We'll have to put up at the hotel? You think the hotel will be all right. Oh, very well; we'll go right up."

Gloom! Gloom, indeed! We girls of the merry, merry chorus don't feel half as chipper now But let us wait until we see the hotel Mrs. Vanderbilt yes, the man on the phone said he was Mrs. Vanderbilt—has selected for us.

"Oh, no, driver! This can't be it! It is, you say? Very well, we'll get out. It certainly isn't the Knickerbocker or the Plaza. But Mrs. Vanderbilt selected it herself."

We are installed. We are seated at supper. Supper comes. There is a silence.

"And this," at last murmurs Bilxie, of the pony ballet, in words made famous by Mayor Gaynor, "and this is Newport!"

I pass rapidly on. The company was not to go on until midnight. Between now and 10 we look over the town. At 10 we put on our costumes.

"The poor unfortunates!" says Jo, the little brunette. "I hired one of those queer, unfortunate buggy-effect rigs and drove down the Avenue. There were Johnnies to the right of me, Johnnies to the left of me, Johnnies all over, and not one of them volleyed or thundered. The poor boobs! I don't believe they know they're alive!"

What's the use of fussing?" said Rosie. "We should be annoyed by these poor unfortunates!"

We are carted down to Beaulieu in carryalls and stages. We go into the big tent that constitutes the theatre.

And now the famous gold-painted chairs are brought in and the ballroom becomes a theatre. The curtain goes up and we do our little stunts. It takes less than an hour, for we have time only to give a few of our specialties. And for this we are paid $5,000. Just as we are getting into the swing—it's all over!

We retire to our tent. From behind the wings appear Pembroke Jones and Arthur Iselin. Do they know me? (An anxious moment). Thank heaven they do not. Here approaches a Bluebeard; here a Persian Prince. Under each arm they carry wine, many, many bottles of it. Elsewhere, it is apparent, they carry more. Things are beginning to look up.

A flunky appears with a tray of glasses. Arthur and Pembroke pour for the ladies. Other flunkies of the haute monde deep in attendance. Everybody drinks. The ice is cracked, if not broken. The poor unfortunates are beginning to show evidences of life.

But who is this attired as a sheik? Why, Lizette, it is Cornelius himself! He tries to make every one feel at home. He invites them to a tent where a special supper is to be served to them.

Wraps are thrown over the flimsy and abbreviated costumes and all hands troop down to the tent. It is far removed from the villa, where the guests are now being entertained at supper. How odd, is it not? Yes, it is odd. It will be seen. In the tent we find six round tables where places are laid at each for twelve.

There is not a Vanderbilt to be seen. We might just as well be back in New York for all the signs of wealth we can see. Bilxie almost bursts into tears.

"And this is Newport!" she wails.

The waiters are filling our bouillon cups. It is so silent and dull. But what is this they are bringing in pitchers and pouring into the big tumblers? By garters and stays—it is wine! (I use the Broadway term for champagne).

"Cornelius must think we are more accustomed to drinking the stuff that comes in pitchers than the bubble water and serves it this way to make us feel 'at home,'" says Gladys, whose dearest friends are three Pittsburgh millionaires, ...nd yet I think it very thoughtful of him.

But who are th e peeping behind the curtains and making their way through the tent door? I won't tell but you would know them in a moment if I did. One is a Prince and the other a very stout, famous character in the "Arabian Nights." We shift to make room for them. The Arabian Nighter is feeling very gay He sits down at one of the tables and, with a glass of wine in each hand, drinks both a once to the girl on each side of him. They are the only two happy girls in the room for the moment. Soon the Prince makes two more happy ' But what can two fellows do with sixty-odd girls?

Yet we are now a very happy bunch. We are drinking wine by the pitcherful. Other powers and potentates arrive. They glance around the curtains and approach Oh, look at them, Clarice! See the six Hindu Gods at that table and the seven Arabian Nights notables at that, and there is Sindbad the Sailor and Aladdin and Haroun-al-Raschid making merry at this. There are more millionaires in this little tent than Broadway sees in a season' The waiters are handing around food, but no one bothers about it. We should worry about the eats! (My, how slangy I'm becoming.)

What is Bluebeard doing? He seems to be the life of the party. A bunch of girls are gathered around him now trying how far they can plunge their pretty ...ms into his capacious paunch. It must be great fun, for he seems to be enjoying it.

"Hold fast to my ankles, Bilxie!" cries Mabel, who has already established the record for getting in as far as her elbow. "This time I'm going to see if I can touch bottom!"

Larry Waterbury waxes communicative. He tells us who's who in the Chorus Tent. I appear to be ignorant so I won't give myself away. That man over there with a girl on each knee is Jack So-and-So. That one drinking wine out of a pink slipper is Willie ... What's His Name.

But, gentlemen, why do you keep on those terribly warm turbans? Take them off and give them to the girls. Thank you, that is much better. And, girls, don't you find those wraps too warm? Certainly. Take them off and give them to the men. Thanks, ever so much. Don't we all look funny. And the lights are really much too bright. They dazzle one's eyes so, you know when one has been used only to the subdued glare of the footlights. They are turned away down. Ah, that is much better.

The ballet girls haven't much on to keep them warm. Their little white knickers have never had more than a passing acquaintance with their knees, and they are feeling chilly. Never mind, bring more pitchers. And now the lights are out! Whoops, my de— Oh, there they go up again.

Messengers arrive from the villa to locate missing husbands. They go back empty-handed.

A mandarin suggests a midnight swim at the beach. A dozen girls take up the cry. Down to the beach, everybody! Chairs are upset, wine is spilled and there is a rush for the doors. The stage management protests. A special train is scheduled to leave at two-thirty. It's almost time to leave now. Leave? Well, we guess not. "What time's the matinee to-morrow?" "Two-thirty." "Well, girls, you just stick around. Let the train go. We'll take care of you if we have to carry you home."

The girls are willing. They have the costumes, you know, and the company can't go on without them. We'll make a night of it. Broadway was never like this.

Again the lights go out. Again there are long, loud shrieks. Messengers come over from the villa to find out what's the matter, but are kept out. Other messengers come over.

"Mrs. So-and-So wants her husband." "Mrs. So-and-So says she has called the motor." "Mrs. This-and-That says she'll apply for a divorce to-morrow." There are only ten women to every man up at the villa. Everybody is much annoyed. Down at the tent the turkey trot and the bunny hug are being danced all over to the peril of the tables.

Things are serious. The lights go up and Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt appears. He has been summoned by a tribunal of matrons and a distracted stage manager. He begs his guests to let the girls go. The response is not enthusiastic. In the midst of the confusion the lights go out again. Mr. Vanderbilt is furious and lectures the electricians. Some of the things he says I cannot repeat, for I am, after all, still a lady, with Maude Adamish ambitions.

The stage manager reads the riot act to the girls. A Persian Prince seizes a ballet planet and darts for the door. He is followed by half a dozen others. A wild chase through the grounds follows. Gradually some of the girls realize that things are getting critical, and they begin to fall into line, tearing themselves away from their admirers.

On the driveway a large carryall waits. Into it the girls are bundled, pursued by a mob of millionaire Orientals. One has lost his blue silk turban. He begs Mabel to return it to him.

"It will spoil my costume," he pleads.

"Well, give me the rest of the costume," she replies, and dances around him.

"Give me the hat and I'll send you one you can wear," he offers, and the offer is accepted.

At last the carry-all is full. Into the driver's seat jumps a very emotional Persian. He is hustled out by an enraged stage manager. He turns to the driver:

"I'll give you a thousand dollars for your seat."

He is dragged away. Believe me, this is not fiction. It is expurgated fact.

And then come the farewells. Such a hugging and kissing and promising. If all the promises are kept the house will be sold out for five years.

We get the train. We go home to New York.

No, mamma, when I get to be Maude Adams, I won't take you on the fringe and put you in the middle of the mat. I'll take you a thousand miles off the fringe on the other side "Oh, the poor unfortunates!" That's why.

"An emotional Persian turns to the driver: 'I'll give you a $1,000 for your seat!'"

Beauties—East West North and South.

1—The Girl from Oregon.
2—A Winnipeg Juno.
3—A Georgia Belle.
4—A New England Product.
5—The New York Girl.

PHOTOGRAPHS are reproduced on this page showing representative beauties of the four cardinal points in our country

All these are among the thousands of photographs that have been pouring into this office in the beauty contest—the search for the most beautiful girl in the United States that is being conducted through this newspaper. According to the terms of the competition, these young women are all eligible to become contestants for the prizes that have been offered. The terms have been several times printed and will be again recapitulated in another column.

The girl from the North, whom, like the others, will not be named until the time when the prizes are announced is from Minnesota. She has the hardihood and sturdiness of the North. Observe that her hair is long and strong, indicating abundant vitality Such a girl gives promise of long life and of exceptional endurance of the ills of life Like most persons from the North, she is of philosophical mind. That is proven by the distance between the eyes, sign of the reflective temperament.

The girl of the West is Westernly tall. Travellers to and dwellers on the Pacific coast have observed that that type approaches more nearly the heroic proportions than do any other American women. Especially is this true on the Pacific in California.

The beauty of reserve, a delicate, elusive loveliness that seems not of herself alone, but of many generations of lovely women is an appealing quality in the girl of the East

The girl from the South is a merry sprite life seems to her a huge, delicious joke She laughs with people, not at them. Hers is a good humored joy, untinged with sarcasm. She is "better company" than any of the other girls, though we must confess she herself would admit it—that she is several degrees more of a coquette

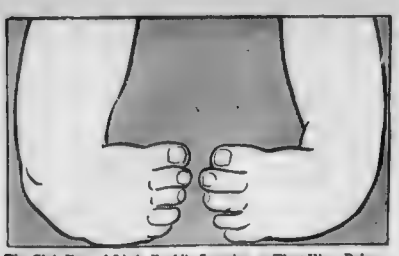
The New York girl is unique. She differs from all the others. She lays claim, the New York girl, and goes far toward proving it, of being the best dressed girl in America. She is exquisitely groomed. She gives much attention to her hats and gowns, because she believes, whether right or not, that they are three-fourths of the woman

These five typical young women are among the aspirants for the prizes offered by the Winter Garden in New York. That theatre offers to the most beautiful girl in the United States an engagement of four weeks at a minimum salary of $250 a week with the option of renewing the contract for a longer period. Thus the winner will receive a guarantee of a $1,000 engagement.

The Winter Garden will also supply five handsome medals of gold, each valued at $100, to the five young women whose beauty shall be declared by the judges in the contest—Harrison Fisher, probably the most famous illustrator in the world; Penrhyn Stanlaws, whose drawings show him to be a highly competent judge of feminine beauty, and another distinguished artist that ranks but little below the winner in charm.

All photographs for the contest must be sent to this newspaper before September 22 The conditions, as have several times been printed, are that the aspirant must be at least eighteen years of age, that if she be not twenty-one years old she have the written consent of her parents or guardians to her going on the stage, and, thirdly, that her appearance at the Winter Garden be her first, she having had no previous experience whatever.

The Newest Miracles of M



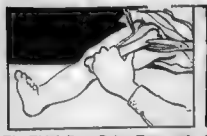
The Club Feet of Little Freddie Scorpion as They Were Before the Operation.

THE recent discovery by Dr. Alexis Carrell, of the Rockefeller Institute, that human organs, bones and tissues can be taken away from the body and be kept alive and healthy OUTSIDE THAT BODY, marked the beginning of a new era in surgery.

The next step was to determine whether these healthy parts could be successfully transplanted into other bodies, to take the place of corresponding parts that were diseased. The question of how these healthy portions were to be secured was also a necessarily important one. To this latter question science promptly answered: "Use the dead!"

On this page will be found details of operations in which the experiments of Dr. Carrel have borne fruit. The far-reaching possibilities of these cases, and others which will naturally follow, are plain. If Dr. Albee's method will take from humanity the curse of the club foot and the crooked spine and nothing else be done, that in itself marks a stupendous advance in the progress of the world.

How the Living Bones of Two Dead Babies Were Used to Make Perfect the Deformed Feet of a Crippled Child



The Thigh Bone Being Removed from One Dead Baby.

The Arm Bone Being Removed from the Second Dead Baby.

SOME weeks ago, this newspaper published the remarkable plan of Dr. Roswell Park, the distinguished biologist of Buffalo University, of utilising the bodies of the dead to repair those of the living.

In that article, Dr. Park declared that in the light of modern surgery there is hardly a single part of a fresh corpse which might not be so employed

"Without violating the proper scientific use of the imagination," he declared, "one may fancy something like the following: Let a healthy young woman meet accidental and instantaneous death. It would be possible to use no inconsiderable portion of her body for grafting or other justifiable surgical procedures. The arteries and nerves could be used, both in the fresh state, and the former even after preservation, for suitable transplantation or repair work on the vascular and nervous system of a considerable number of other people; the blood like the thyroid and the cornea and especially the bones."

Since the publication of that article, what Dr. Park suggested fancifully has been actually accomplished. Bones have been taken from the corpses of babies and used to correct the deformities of living cripples!

This epoch-making feat in surgery was accomplished by Dr. Fred H. Albee, a brilliant New York surgeon, who is head of the Department of Orthopedic Surgery at Cornell University, at the University of Vermont and at the New York Post Graduate Medical School.

The patient was Fred Scorpion, of Waterbury, Conn., a two-year-old boy who was born with what are commonly known as club feet. This condition arises when through congenital causes the feet lack the necessary number of bones, causing them to be distorted into a shapeless, useless mass.

A few years ago, club feet were regarded as incurable, and to-day there are in consequence hundreds of thousands of individuals who have lived their lives thus afflicted.

When, therefore, Dr. Albee was consulted in the case of the Scorpion child, he determined to try what might be accomplished by bone transplantation, a phase of modern surgery upon which he had been experimenting for several years, and in which he had already achieved some notable results.

Upon examination of the child's feet, he found that they were unusually deformed. Several of the tarsal bones, those which join the ankle bone to the bones of the toes, were missing. Dr. Albee decided to supply this deficiency by means of bones taken from the limbs of healthy babies who had died violent deaths.

For this purpose, he secured the co-operation of the Bellevue Hospital authorities, who agreed to be on the lookout for infants whose corpses might be available for the unusual operation. In the meanwhile, little Fred Scorpion was brought down from Waterbury and admitted to the Post Graduate Hospital, there to await the arrival of the bones which were to be made a part of him.

It was a most unusual situation—the crippled boy waiting patiently for some one to die that he might be made whole—but it is one which, as a result of the success of the operation that followed, will undoubtedly be very common henceforth.

Within a week, Dr. Albee was notified that the bodies he wanted were available for him. There were two, a boy and a girl.

From the cadaver of the girl, the physician removed a humerus, or arm-bone, while from the cadaver of the boy he took a femur, or thigh-bone. These were at once put in a chemical solution and placed in cold storage.

It is in this phase of the operation that medical men recognize a new epoch in surgery, for the fact that the bones and tissues do not die with the departing of life, but may be kept alive, under proper conditions, for days afterward, makes possible the general utilization of corpses in surgical operations on the living, and opens up an entirely new field in surgery.

The bones in cold storage were removed from the solution and carefully shaped to fit their new resting places. Under the skillful direction of the surgeon, what had been the thigh-bone of an hour-old baby, and which was little more than gristle, was rapidly shaped to fit the left foot of the crippled boy, while the arm-bone of the other baby was moulded into shape to supply the missing bones of the boy's right foot. Then the reshaped bones were put back into the solution and the operation on little Freddie began.

The shapeless masses which formed the youngster's feet were opened and disclosed, as the X-ray had already done, the absence of the tarsal bones. The muscles, ligaments and cartilage were carefully severed and the feet were so manipulated that they would assume their normal shape, and then the reshaped bones were inserted and firmly fastened in place with catgut.

The pieces of bone thus inserted in each foot measured some two and a half inches in length by half an inch in diameter and they filled up the space between the ankle and the bone of the big toe. The muscles and tendons were then properly united, the wounds sewed up and the feet enclosed in plaster casts to give the transplanted bone a chance to unite with the boy's own bones.

The operations on both feet took little more than half an hour, and when the little patient came out of the anaesthetic he showed no evidences of shock. Indeed, he seemed so lively that nurses had to watch him night and day to restrain any undue motion which would result in the breaking of the casts and might displace the inserted bone.

Within two weeks the casts were removed, and the boy's feet were found to have resumed their normal shape.

Because of his affliction, the boy had never learned to walk, but as soon as he obtained the use of his feet he made every effort to make use of them. He at once received his first lessons in walking and made rapid progress.

This operation is the first of its kind. Bone transplantation has been accomplished before, but heretofore the transplanted bone has been taken from the patient himself, never from another person. Thus, to correct a deformity of the spine, Dr. Albee has frequently taken portions of the patient's tibia, or shin-bone. The disadvantage of such a method is that it subjects the patient to a double shock. But even this method has never been employed to correct club feet.

The benefits to be derived from this surgical triumph are not, of course, to be confined to the single affliction of club feet. Pott's disease, commonly known as humpback, a condition in which the vertebrae of the spine adhere and distort the back, and which is very prevalent, has already been cured by Dr. Albee and other surgeons by an operation embodying the separating of the vertebrae, reshaping them and supplying missing parts with plates of bone taken from the patient's shin-bone. Hereafter, this same operation will be performed with bones taken from cold storage instead.

But a far greater field for the utilization of this discovery exists in the case of fractured bones which, for one reason or another, refuse to unite. In such cases it has been customary to use metal plates, but this method has proven unsatisfactory for several reasons.

In the first place, no matter how firmly the metal plates are fastened to the broken bones, they remain in place only temporarily. The human system seems to resent the presence of foreign materials, and the bone into which the screws are set soon disintegrates and the plates work loose.

Then again, even where the pieces hold, abscesses very frequently form around them, and it becomes necessary to perform successive operations to remedy this condition.

Transplanted bone, on the other hand, becomes an integral part of the bone to which it is attached and no subsequent trouble is to be apprehended.

A remarkable illustration of the effectiveness of bone transplantation was afforded in the celebrated case of "Smiling Joe" Marion, who earned his nickname because of the fact that despite the constant suffering he endured he always smiled. Indeed, a photograph of the smiling youngster as he lay strapped to a board was used as the principal exhibit in a campaign for a new hospital started by the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, and was largely instrumental in raising the $260,000 secured for the purpose.

"Smiling Joe" suffered from Potts' disease, or tuberculosis of the spine. He was sent to the Sea Breeze Hospital at Coney Island, New York, where Dr. Albee, then the surgeon in charge, severed the adhering vertebrae, supplied missing parts from the boy's own tibia, and placed him in a plaster cast. Because of the serious nature of the operation, it was necessary for the child to remain encased in plaster for two years, and when the cast was finally removed he remained strapped to a board for several years more. The treatment proved successful and to-day "Smiling Joe" is as active as he has always been cheerful, and the physical equal of his classmates at the public school he attends.

Since then, Dr. Albee has performed the same operation forty-seven times with uniform success, but recovery has never been so long delayed as it was in the case of "Smiling Joe."

Remarkable Experiments Which Made Possible the Use of the Dead to Repair the Living

THE following article is part of an important paper by Dr. Alexis Carrel, the distinguished Rockefeller Institute surgeon, whose researches into the growth of human tissues outside the body have made America the leader in experimental medicine. It is printed in full in the current number of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

SIX years ago, at the Rockefeller Institute, I began to investigate how tissues isolated from the organism could be preserved and used after a few days or weeks as grafts.

I wished to find a method by which tissues, extirpated from the amputated limb of a living animal or a fresh cadaver, could be stored during the period which elapses between their extirpation and their transplantation on the patient.

Paul Bert, in several famous experiments, preserved in latent life the tissues of mammals, and succeeded in transplanting rats' tails, kept for several days in a small quantity of confined air at a temperature not higher than +13 C. In 1907-08 I transplanted successfully tissues preserved for several days or weeks in cold storage in a condition of unmanifested actual life.

A tissue isolated from the organism can be kept in active life if it is given artificially a normal nutrition. The possibility of the active life of a tissue outside of the organism was demonstrated in 1907 by Harrison, in a series of splendid experiments made in the anatomic laboratory of Johns Hopkins University.

From 1906 to 1912 several technics were developed in order to keep tissues isolated from the organism in a condition of latent or active life.

These tissues were extirpated from a living animal or from an animal recently killed by chloroform. The death of the whole organism does not bring about immediately elemental death, that is, death of the tissues and organs. Elemental death is a slow process, while general death may occur suddenly.

For instance, a man is stabbed through the heart and killed. His personality has disappeared. He is dead in the medicolegal sense of the word. All the organs and tissues which compose the body, however, are still living. If it were possible immediately after death to transplant the tissues and organs which compose this body into other organisms of identical character, no elemental death would occur, and all the constituent parts of the body would continue to live.

In this case, general death can be defined as the rupture of the contract of association between the tissues and organs of the organism by failure of one of the partners, the heart.

The duration of the period which elapses between general and elemental death varies according to the nature of the tissues. The cerebral substance disintegrates so quickly that, after a few minutes of complete anemia, irreparable lesions take place, while skin, bones and connective tissues can overcome for a long time the cadaveric process. Therefore it was necessary to extirpate, soon after death, such glands as the hypophysis and thyroid, which disintegrate rapidly, while the more resistant tissues, like the skin and arteries, could be removed from the animal a few hours after death. The tissues must be extirpated before the beginning of the cadaveric disintegration.

For instance, the state of cadaveric disintegration, which is very rapid at 35 or 40 C. (95 to 104 Fahr.), becomes very slow at — 1 or — 2 C. (28 or 30 Fahr.). It is, therefore, important immediately to put the cadaver from which the tissues will be used as grafts into cold storage, and to extirpate the tissues under rigid asepsis as soon as possible after death.

The experiments were performed on various tissues: blood vessels, cartilage, periosteum, skin, spleen, heart and thyroid gland.

Experiment 1.—The tissues were deposited in a preservative medium and put in a refrigerator immediately after their removal from the organism.

Several preservative mediums were used: Isotonic sodium, chlorid solution, Locke's solution, Ringer's solution, defibrinated blood, serum, confined human air, and petrolatum. The vessel or the flaps of skin and periosteum were placed in tubes filled with the medium. Petrolatum and Ringer's solution were chiefly employed. The tubes were sealed or hermetically closed and deposited in a refrigerator, the temperature of which was maintained constantly between —1 C. and +7 C. (30 and 44 Fahr.)

The color and consistency of the tissues remained generally normal for several weeks. After six, seven and even ten months the microscopic appearance of the arteries was not markedly modified.

The condition of the tissues preserved in cold storage was examined by two methods—cultivation and transplantation.

1. Fragments of spleen, skin and heart were extirpated from 15- or 16-day old chick embryos and preserved in Ringer's solution and in cold storage for one, two and seven six days. Afterward they were put in chicken plasma and in an incubator. They grew luxuriantly.

2. In a great many experiments tissues which had been kept in cold storage from one day to eleven months were transplanted into animals, and the results examined from a few days to four years after the operation.

In several experiments flaps of dog's skin preserved in petrolatum and in cold storage from one to ten days were transplanted. Generally the graft took as well as a fresh piece of skin. In one case a fragment of black skin was grafted on a white dog. As the black hair grew from the skin, no mistake was possible regarding the condition of the graft during the period of preservation in cold storage.

In a few experiments pieces of dog's cartilage and periosteum which had been kept in cold storage from twenty-four to twenty-eight hours were transplanted on dogs. It was found that periosteum produced bone and that cartilage remained alive.

In many experiments segments of dog's arteries and veins preserved in cold storage were transplanted on the carotid artery and on the abdominal or thoracic aortas of other dogs. The results were examined from five days to more than four years after the operation. The gross anatomic changes of the vessels were light, but the wall often presented marked histologic lesions. They consisted generally in the partial or complete disappearance of the muscular fibres. The remote results of these operations were excellent. For example, a segment of popliteal artery extirpated from the leg of a young man and preserved for twenty-four days in cold storage was transplanted onto the abdominal aorta of a small female dog. The animal lived in excellent health for four years and two months, presenting several litters. The abdominal aorta was normal, but the human arterial segment was slightly dilated, and its wall was composed of connective tissue only.

In another experiment a segment of a dog's jugular vein, preserved for twenty-four hours in cold storage, was transplanted onto the thoracic aorta of a fox terrier. In spite of slight lesions of the cord, due to interruption of the aortic circulation during the operation, the animal remained in excellent health. After two years and two months the dog died of an epidemic disease. The descending aorta was normal and the transplanted segment had about the same calibre as that of the aorta.

The results of these and many other experiments showed that tissues like blood vessels, skin and connective tissue could be preserved in latent life for two weeks at least.

It is known that flaps of human skin preserved for some time at a low temperature have already been used in human surgery. Nevertheless, the first systematic application of the preservation of tissues in latent life was made by Dr. Tuffier. In 1910 and 1911 he preserved in petroleum and in a refrigerator pieces of fat, bone, cartilage and peritoneum which he had extirpated from amputated limbs.

These tissues were kept in cold storage from a few hours to two months. Grafts of lipoma and omentum were inserted by Dr. Tuffier between the pleura and the thoracic wall in several cases of pleurisy and intrapulmonic abscesses. In the reconstruction of joints Tuffier several times used pieces of omentum and peritoneum and cartilage. In a case of resection of the elbow he covered the surfaces of the bones with cartilage previously kept for five days in cold storage. After seven months the patient was examined and the result found excellent. In another case of resection of the elbow Dr. Tuffier covered the ends of the bones with a fragment of omentum previously kept for one month in cold storage. Ten days afterward the elbow joint could be moved easily. In ten operations of the same or similar character there was neither elimination of the graft nor other accidents.

In 1911 Dr. Magitot extirpated the eye of a patient suffering with glaucoma. The eye was placed in a tube containing human serum and kept for eight days in a refrigerator at a temperature of + 4 C., during which period the cornea remained transparent. Dr. Magitot removed the anterior part of the cornea of a man who had been burned by alkali. A large scar had developed on the cornea and the patient was blind. In the opening a flap of cornea from the eye preserved in cold storage was inserted. The graft took. Seven months after the operation the transplanted cornea had remained transparent and the patient could see through it.

At the end of 1911 I attempted to develop a technic which would permit a large quantity of human tissues to be kept in store ready for transplantation. The tissues which are used by surgeons in their clinical work are skin, bones, cartilage, periosteum, peritoneum, tendons and aponeuroses.

December 6, 1911, the cadaver of a man who had died during birth was used for the extirpation of cutaneous and other grafts. Several hours after death the body of the child was washed with soap and water and then with ether. Dermo-epidermic grafts and flaps of skin were extirpated in large numbers and were kept in Ringer's solution. Bones were also extirpated. Afterward the grafts were put in tubes containing warm petrolatum. Other grafts were preserved in Ringer's solution. The tubes

New Brains for the Insane; Murderers' Eyes for the Blind

THE discovery that diseased portions of the body can be successfully replaced with corresponding healthy portions taken from the dead was the logical outgrowth of experiments which began with blood transfusion and skin grafting.

Dr. William Maule Smith, a distinguished English surgeon, has reported to the British Medical Association that he has cured many cases of insanity by the injection of a preparation made from healthy brains. This extraordinary but authenticated announcement was the outgrowth of a series of experiments which ran somewhat along the lines of those which resulted in the operation that lends hope of removing the curse of club feet and crooked spine from humanity.

There are in the body a number of small organs known as the ductless glands—the thyroid, the pituitary body, the adrenals, and so on. The functions of these glands are not thoroughly understood, but they are no less important for that. Each manufactures a substance which is taken up by the circulation and goes through the body. The product of the thyroid, in the throat, seems to regulate growth and to have an essential effect upon the mental processes. The adrenals, above the kidneys, regulate blood pressure and are essential to the throwing off the body's waste.

For some time it has been known that extracts of these ductless glands, made from corresponding glands in healthy animals and injected into the human body, remedy conditions caused by ineffective functioning of the human glands. Dwarfs have been made to grow and imbeciles have been made normal by treatment with thyroid extract. Dr. George Alexander Gibson, physician of the Royal Infantry at Edinburgh, in a private report to the British Medical Association in London recently, told how he had added seven inches to the growth of an eighteen-year-old boy within six months. He had done this to enable the boy to pass a military examination, the lad's only defect being lack of height.

In the same way extracts from the adrenals and other glands injected into the blood supply deficiencies and restore the normal balance of the body.

Working along these same lines Dr. Smith made a series of experiments, going over many years, with the brain tissue of healthy animals. The last step of these experiments consisted in applying the principle to human beings. In these cases the compound injected was made from the brains of dead people whose death had not resulted from any cause affecting the brain tissues.

In his paper read before the Medical Association Dr. Smith told how he obtained healthy brain tissues and from these extracted the cerebrin, which is a reddish substance found in certain nitrogenous substances of the brain, and cholesterin, a fatty substance. These he injected into the brain tissues of persons suffering from certain forms of insanity and restored them to normal. The Smith method is now being tried out in various great hospitals in America.

In the great progress of modern surgery grafting of skins and tissues plays an important part, but not until recently has any attempt been made to actually restore sight by this means. One of the most curious operations of this class is soon to take place in Atlanta, Ga., where John Cashin, a blind newspaper dealer, may be made to see through the eyes of a murderer.

Robert L. Clay is soon to be executed for the murder of his wife. As soon as he is executed his eyes will be removed, placed in a saline solution and sent to a hospital where Cashin, the blind newsdealer, will be in readiness for the operation of grafting the cornea of the murderer's eyes into his own, in which the corneas have been destroyed. Dr J. S. Ellis, a noted Southern specialist, and J. r. Phinzy Calhoun, a widely known oculist, will perform the operation. The operation of cornea transplantation has been successfully done before. The difficulty lies in securing the requisite parts, the prejudice against what is thought to be mutilation of the dead proving a great barrier. The suggestion has been made that the bodies of all executed murderers be turned over to the hospitals to be used in repairing the diseased.

Dr. William S. Halstead and Dr. Willis D. Gatch, of Johns Hopkins, have made great progress in the matter of mending and healing broken, punctured and ruptured intestines. After a great many experiments they have found the simplest means to be with paper cones. After the delicate membranes of the intestines are sewed together, they must have opportunity to heal and at the same time the intestine must perform its natural functions. But unless the delicate healing edges are protected there can be no healing. Finally, by means of forms of hard licorice and paper cones, inner linings are made. In due time the licorice is dissolved, the paper changes to soft pulp and finally all clears away, but the hard licorice holds the paper cone rigid and in place until long after the repairing tissues of the intestine have healed. Such delicate operations are now being almost daily performed in the great hospitals.

Many persons are being prevented from spending the remainder of their years on crutches or in wheel chairs by the simple means of treating their broken and shattered bones as a carpenter or machinist would repair a broken pole or shaft. In other words, fractures that cannot knit properly, leaving the bones their normal length and strength by the old-time method, are held together by means of wire, holes being drilled through the bones and the silver wires run through and bound about the fractured parts. Still more remarkable is the method of applying silver plates to such broken bones and actually securing these in place with screws, just as a mechanic would screw an iron piece along the broken arm or leg of a chair. Little thread cutting tools drill the holes in the bones for the screws, the plate is rounded to fit the bone, the screws inserted and tightened with a screwdriver, and the bone is held rigidly in place until it has knit and healed as strong and shapely as it was before the accident. Then through an incision these plates may be removed and in a very short while the entire injury is deposited in a refrigerator at + 3 C. (37 Fahr.).

The dermo-epidermic grafts and the flaps of skin preserved in petrolatum and in Ringer's solution were used at the Rockefeller Hospital for the treatment of three large ulcers and one circular ulcer of the legs of two patients.

The flaps of skin preserved in petrolatum remained apparently normal. Forty-two days after the death of the child the skin preserved in petrolatum was bluish, but when exposed to the air it became pink again. The small vessels of the subcutaneous tissue were filled with blood, which was red and still fluid. Histological sections of the skin showed that it was normal. At the end of May, 1913, the appearance of the flaps preserved in petrolatum was not markedly changed.

We began to graft the flaps of skin on the ulcers of the patients after twenty-four hours. The flaps were taken from the tubes and put for a few minutes in Ringer's solution at the temperature of the body. Then they were removed from the solution, compressed between two pads of hydrophil gauze and applied on the granulations of the ulcers. They were rapidly fixed to the granulatory surface by a warm mixture of paraffin, wax and castor oil, analogous to "ambrine," invented a few years ago by Dr. Berthe de Sandford, the composition of which remained unknown.

The warm and fluid mixture was applied with a brush on the surface of the graft. It became solidified very rapidly, but it was not adherent to the grafts or to the granulations, and it was possible to take it out every day. The wounds and the grafts were washed with oil and a new coat of the mixture was applied. Most of the grafts took, just as fresh grafts would have done. The last grafts were applied on the ulcers after seven weeks of preservation in cold storage, and a few of them took. The length of the period during which the flaps of skin could be preserved in latent life was not determined. It seems that the skin preserved during two weeks took as well as normal skin. As a great many pieces of skin can be kept in petrolatum, repeated grafts on the granulating wound could be made as easily as ordinary dressings with

This time she came into our establishment, and while we were in the midst of all sorts of questions regarding materials and designs for dresses, we managed to decide upon two coiffures, both so new and yet so attractive that I feel sure that they will be copied and worn later on by mondaines from all over the world.

The first consists of a band of coarse white net, bound tightly around the head and fastened in the back. At this fastening is a huge bird of paradise, one-half extending upward, while the other half of the bird droops downward until it touches the shoulder.

The second headdress is decidedly Oriental, suggesting both Russian and Turkish turbans and yet not quite like either. It is made of very heavy gold lace which is fashioned into a close fitting cap. At the back there is a black aigrette fantasie placed at a peculiar angle that lends charm and originality to the entire headdress. I think that the most effective touch is given by the hammered metal disks that hang from the brim of the cap and fall over the forehead and hair.

I must admit that this clever little artiste is not difficult to dress—she lends herself ideally to the costumes she wears. She can draw herself up to the fullest height and become serious and dignified if the dress requires it, and she can be a beauty such as I [illegible] have in mind when I design my tea gowns and weird color combinations reminiscent of the Far East. Sometimes I am inspired by my friend Bakst, whose wonderful Russian evenings are the despair and delight of my life.

She can be the innocent school girl—the roguish debutante and even the typical girl of the boulevards. All together she is a perfect mannikin, and well if she were not Gaby Deslys I am sure that I would try to persuade her to come into our designing rooms. I could make lovely things on her. But as this is impossible, I have done the next best thing in sending her forth dressed just as I know young women of her style and type should be dressed. She will serve as an inspiration to many who will see her in these clothes and will convey to them a message from me to the effect that this is the way I would costume them, provided they have the same slender outlines as Mademoiselle Deslys.

One of the first dresses we decided upon was a design after my own heart—a pale blue tulle embroidered in pearls and placed over the palest rose-colored satin foundation. It was a typical "Lucille" dress. The over-dress of the tulle so beautifully embroidered with pearls is gracefully draped. The under robe is scalloped at the feet and embroidered with seed pearls in a lace design. The bodice is of a delicate and unusual shade of rose-colored panne velvet. This combination of tulle and velvet is very novel; also a hint that Autumn is at hand. The seed pearl trimming that is used on the skirt is duplicated on the bodice. As you can see by the picture, this costume is delightfully suited to the artiste.

It was a vastly different thing to make a black velvet evening gown. Mademoiselle Deslys was not to my mind the figure for a stately black costume. Always black velvet suggests to me a stately matron, and I could not see the slender artiste in that role! But suddenly I was inspired and went ahead, making. I believe, one of my greatest successes.

I used for the under robe pale pink liberty satin in one piece from shoulder to hem. This I covered with a soft velvet drapery that started at the bust. The bodice was of black mousseline elaborately trimmed with brilliants. This was necessary in order to brighten an otherwise sombre color scheme. As you will see, the most magnificent and elaborate embroidery is on the skirt below the hips, where the velvet is caught up to give the cutaway effect to the bottom of the skirt. In this motif I used brilliants, cut jets, black crystals and steel beads. I carried this idea to other parts of the dress and into a fringe which I used in various ways.

The sleeves, for example, are banded with this fringe and around the bottom of the skirt another band commences at the cutaway and sweeps the floor in the back. The cutaway effect, by the way, is one of the little touches that gives youthfulness to the dress, while the train is an innovation in its way, for it is the only kind I approve of for dresses for young people. It is separate from the dress and of a contrasting material. For Miss Deslys the train is of black tulle, streaked with lines of brilliants and crystals and falling loose from the shoulders to the ground, where it is heavily embroidered with brilliants and crystals on a velvet foundation.

The article is as replete with interest and instruction as are all of the long and valuable series.

"Dry your body quickly with a rough towel."

"I should as lief think of beginning the day by putting on part of my clothes as commence it without giving my stomach its bath."

Mme. Lina Cavalieri.

By Mme. Lina Cavalieri.

SEVERAL facts about beauty culture I want to impress upon my readers to-day, because of their importance and because they are so often neglected.

One of these has to do with the care of the stomach. We should give as much thought to the cleanliness of the stomach as to that of the body. But how often does the stomach have such a cleansing as the body has at its daily bath? Yet the stomach should be cleaned each morning. A California physician, recognizing this fact, gave to each of the patients in his sanitarium a morning stomach bath by feeding them the white of an egg beaten up briskly with ten or more drops of lemon juice. If the stomach were delicate that amount of lemon juice sufficed. If robust the juice of half a lemon could safely be stirred with the white of egg for the morning ablution.

At the famous baths in Germany the need of this daily stomach bath is supplied by a glass of warm or cool water as preferred, into which the juice of half a lemon has been squeezed. If the patient has not that tendency to uric acid which is the herald of approaching rheumatism the amount of lemon juice can be increased to that squeezed from an entire lemon. This cleanses the stomach as completely of lingering nourishment as a broom well applied frees a floor from dust.

Desirable as are these soothing, cleansing agents of which I have spoken, one is imperative. I should as lief begin the day by putting on only part of my clothes as to commence the day without giving my stomach its bath of two or three glasses of water. I never drink ice water, nor do I ever drink very hot water. Cool water is my choice, for no particular reason other than that it is more palatable. If there is need of it you may add a half teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda. But don't start the day without cleansing the stomach. As lief go down town without brushing your teeth or combing your hair. This practice has often been the starting point of a good complexion where there had been a bad one.

Digestion and beauty are both served by drinking one or two glasses of water an hour before the meal. This washes out the stomach well, preparing it for the meal.

Another need I want to impress upon my readers is that of frequently relaxing the nerves. An athlete, world renowned for his strength and virile beauty, told me that no method employed by women was as effectual as that which many men understood. He advised all of our sex to try it.

"When your nerves seem to be tied into a hard knot, and as I've often heard women say, you are 'tired enough to scream,' lie down on the hard floor. Lie there on your back, with your arms spread out horizontally at your side. Close your eyes and draw five or six deep breaths. It is the quickest way of resting known."

Another point worthy your attention, and a personal problem you will have to solve, is how to give the skin its air baths as well as water baths. For the body needs more ventilation than the tight clothing worn all day permits. Let me make this as clear as possible. You have noticed how drawn your feet feel after you have worn your rubber slips on a wet day.

And you feel uncomfortable after wearing a rain cloak. Just what the effect of the rain cloak is upon your body and rubber boots upon your feet the clothing has upon the body, save in lesser degree. It prevents the circulation of air through the pores of the skin, closes and clogs them. In some way contrive to let the body have more air. For this reason let your bedclothing be light though warm. Heavy bed clothing sinks upon and about the body, keeping out the air. Better several light blankets and a spread or two than one weighty counterpane that excludes the air. But try to give your body a sun and air bath every day. The best time is directly after a bath. Having stepped from your bathtub, dry your body quickly with a rough towel, then walk briskly about your bathroom or bedroom before beginning to dress. If this isn't feasible at least throw on only one garment and perform the exercises in that before dressing.

Beauty Questions Answered

S. D. says: "My hair is becoming streaked with gray. It is very dark brown. How can I darken it and hide the gray hairs?"

Since you insist upon using a dye, a practice to which I have always been opposed, you might have recourse to the time-honored walnut stain.

Walnut bark, 1 oz.
Alum, ½ oz.
Water, 1 pint.

Boil the bark in the water for an hour. Add the alum to "set" the color. Apply the liquid with a sponge or bit of cotton. Wrap an old veil about the head or wear a night cap after the application, on retiring, since the stain will perform its functions on the bed linen as well as your hair. I would much rather recommend your massaking the scalp vigorously and using one of these applications to retard the appearance of gray hair, for I believe in tonics, but not in hair dyes

Bay rum, 2 ozs.
Sulphur, ½ oz.

Wash the hair and the roots in the liquid. Sulphur is a well known agent in retarding grayness of hair.

Brown hair that is fading into gray is freshened by this wash

Claret, 3 ozs.
Sulphate of iron, ½ dram.

Let the iron dissolve thoroughly in the wine. Wash the hair as frequently as necessary in it.

M. I. W. asks how to mix henna with indigo for coloring dark brown hair. Persian women who want black hair apply a paste of henna to the hair, leaving it on a half hour or more. They then wash this off and apply a paste of indigo, leaving it on at least three times as long. When this is washed off they oil the hair, usually with perfumed olive oil.

A simpler method is to mix three parts of indigo with one part of henna, adding enough water to make a paste. The longer it is on the hair the darker it grows.

M. R. K. is troubled because a brown spot that may be a mole—she is sure it is not a birth mark—is growing on her five-year-old daughter's nose. It seems to be growing larger.

I would consult a reliable physician about it before doing anything.

S. C. H. S. writes: "I am a carpenter and work at chestnut wood, which gets into the skin. Will you kindly tell me what will remove it?"

I would make a paste of pumice stone and lemon juice, rubbing the affected parts with it. After doing this I would rub cold cream or vaseline well into the hands, for pumice stone is a strong irritant.

NO GOOD THING IS EVER LOST

Temples Fall and the Grass Grows Over Them. Children die and the grave swallows them up. Brave men and women live, struggle, die and are forgotten. But no GOOD thing is lost. Science tells us that matter and force are indestructible. The soul teaches us that goodness, beauty and truth are indestructible also.

HERE is a picture of a fallen temple. The faint dotted lines show the noble building as it used to be, in its beauty and power. The dark lines show the ruin of today.

The sheep graze, and the Shepherd sits in mental dullness, where Philosophers walked and great thoughts were born.

The movement of the world, the growth of civilization, the progress of humanity, thought, feeling, light have moved far from this old temple site.

In the day time the sun shines on ruins that sank into the ground, on stones that are crumbling.

And at night, the old stars that saw the birth of this young planet look down on apparent desolation.

Once this plain was a solitude where men had never walked.

Then came the great race with great thinkers, architects and artists. The temple was built, the statues were carved, the walls were painted—and thought, the one real force, flourished.

And the force lessened, and disappeared with the swinging of time's pendulum. The temple fell and that spot went back once more to desolation and decay.

* * * *

Travelers look upon a scene like this in sorrow and bitterness. They think, "What effort wasted, what beauty lost, everything passes, vanishes, effort is useless and time destroys all."

But it is not so.

Nothing good is EVER lost. The wisdom that rules this universe forbids loss absolutely.

The scientists can prove to those intelligent enough to see the truth, that matter and force are indestructible. When you burn a log of wood in your fireplace, you destroy the shape. You do not destroy that wood. Not one atom of it is lost. The moisture is changed into steam and goes up the chimney. And that steam may be changed into the gases, oxygen and hydrogen, of which water is made—but not an atom ceases to exist. The carbon may go off in the form of gas, certain solid parts are reduced to ashes—nothing is LOST. The matter changes from one form to another and still exists entire—just as it was. If it were possible to destroy matter by burning, the earth would long since have disappeared, for the bulk of wood and coal burned through the ages would more than equal the bulk of the world.

* * * *

When you blow out a candle there is no loss, the light of the flame and the heat of the flame still exists in another form of energy.

When you strike your hands violently together, the force that you use in the blow is changed into heat, as the hands meet, no particle of force is lost.

It is probable that not a particle of matter or any force of any kind was ever created or ever destroyed.

The universe is a great, endless, infinite combination without beginning and without end, indestructible.

Nothing in the physical world is ever destroyed.

Nothing in the world of the spirit is ever lost.

The architects and the artists built the temple. It fell and vanished. But its beauty and power still exists in the written words that the temple inspired, and in the better thought handed down to the generations that survive the temple's fall.

* * * *

A child is born, eagerly awaited, warmly welcomed. It dies and the father and mother feel that the world has come to an end, that nothing is worth while. The earth swallows the child's body as it swallows the stones of the fallen temple. But nothing is lost.

The love of the parents for the child, the power and beauty that have disappeared persist in another form. Kindness to other children, sympathy for unfortunate mothers, greater devotion and care for the children that remain—those things prove that the dead child did not live or die in vain.

Hospitals have been built, schools established, charities of all kinds have been organized in memory of children that died too soon.

The child has disappeared, like the fallen temple. But the beauty and the power exist in another form, as the flame and the heat and the substance of the burnt-out fire still exist and still do useful work elsewhere.

* * * *

In this picture, rightly interpreted, there is comfort and consolation for the millions of men and women, devoted, patient, unselfish, of whom the world never knows, concerning whom history will not have one line, and whose spirits are often weighed down with disappointment and bitterness.

The real work of the world, the only work that counts, the work in comparison with which that of all the "great men" is nothing, IS THE WORK OF THOSE THAT ARE NEVER HEARD OF, THOSE WHO TOO OFTEN BELIEVE THEY LIVE IN VAIN.

No good thing is ever lost. Kindness to the poor, unselfish devotion to children, justice and generosity to the weak—these are manifestations of the highest force in the universe, the force of the spirit. And that force is indestructible, it lasts forever like the common forces, heat, light, electricity, that science tells us cannot be destroyed.

* * * *

Foolish are they that long for praise. That which is unknown and apparently forgotten is as important as the deed most widely advertised.

The temples of Babylon and the first monuments of Greek beauty, now entirely vanished, exist today and do their work today just as when the first stone of each was laid.

The slave who set fire to the great temple in order that his name might be remembered burned the temple but did not destroy it.

The religious vandals of the Middle Ages that burned the magnificent works of the ancients, the wonderful books, the noble poems, believed falsely that they had destroyed the work of the writers. But they did not destroy it. It lives in the descendants of those that read the books. It lives in the civilization and the better thought of today.

* * * *

NO GOOD THING IS EVER LOST.

Remember that truth, the most important and encouraging of all truths. Your life may not seem worth while, the sacrifices that you make for others may not seem worth while. BUT NO GOOD THING IS EVER LOST. And he who does his duty contributes FOREVER to the sum total of that which is good in the universe.

Has Science at Last Discovered How to Create Life?

..eview of the Latest Achievements of the Great Biologists in Their Efforts to Solve the Riddle of Life

SOME of the greatest scientists in the world will soon meet in England at the congress of the British Medical Association. It has already been announced that a few of these distinguished delegates will make extraordinary reports upon the progress made during the last few years upon determining the secret of life. It has been announced that at least one of these learned men has actually been able to create life artificially. Here Dr. Leonard K. Hirshberg, of Johns Hopkins University, discusses what has already been done in this direction.

By Dr. Leonard K. Hirshberg

IN A BRIEF communication to the scientific world, in 1891, Mr. G. Johnstone Stone announced the discovery of the nature of an electric charge. Until that moment, just what electricity was no one dared say. Almost unnoticed, Stone's paper clearly asserted that the electric charge was carried by an "electron." What an electron actually is remained to be indubitably determined very soon after this by the greatest living physicist, Sir J. J. Thomson, of Cambridge, England.

Although nearly twenty years have elapsed since the epoch-making discovery of the tiniest bodies was given to the world, the man on the street has heard little of them, perhaps. He still speaks of atoms as the smallest known—or suspected—division of matter. Yet it has been absolutely and undeniably found that an atom contains from hundreds to thousands of electrons, each darting hither and thither about a central electron, just as the earth and the other planets spin elliptically about our sun.

Beside this discovery—built upon the various discoveries of Kepler, Newton, Galileo, Laplace, Lenard, Crookes, Roentgen, Becquerel, the Curies, Ramsay, Rutherford, Arrhenius, Wilhelm Ostwald and R. W. Wood—the philosopher's stone, the Alcahest of Paracelsus and Raymond Lully's quinta essentia are only sounding brass and tinkling cymbals.

Came then the discovery by Lenard that the cathode rays in a vacuum tube could be passed into the air, through an aluminum shutter, and studied; the discovery by Crookes that they could be bent by a magnet, just as a prism of glass bends the luminous rays; came, too, the generalization and proof by Sir J. J. Thomson that these invisible rays were movements in a perfect vacuum, and, therefore, waves in the ether set up by electrons that had escaped from their atoms. With the unequivocal establishment of electrons, nature's well-known partiality to the number three, formerly thought to be so dear to the gods, was again proved.

Thus with animals, plants, and stones; solids, liquids and gases; lengths, breadths and widths—may now be placed molecules, atoms and electrons. But just as lines, circles and squares may all be reduced to the printer's point at the end of this sentence, so may all scientific work succeed in finally analyzing all things, living and inert, into electrons.

There is to-day actually no strict frontier between the territory of the plant and animal kingdoms. The sponge was, until very recently, thought to be a plant. True, it, like many of the human species, leads a vegetative existence, stuck to its watery perch like a bump on a log —yet it is an animal. On the other hand, the typhoid bacillus and the haematococcus, that move about relatively as fast as an Automatic monoplane, are undoubtedly plants if there ever were any.

Everybody knows what life is. When the question was put to a "pick-to-pen" Mayor of Baltimore recently he said: "Any fool knows that." He also knows just exactly what matter is. "Matter," says he, "is something large and dead." But is it?

Everybody knows everything — except those who devote their lives trying to find out something. You and I, perhaps, a crystal gazer in your family, or have read some of their bizarre literature? Well, crystal gazing, though most absurd in its occult claims, has that modicum of truth in it that makes all the "get-knowledge-quick" fads so consumingly dangerous. For the bubble of water imprisoned in quartz crystals, like the spirit level, is a dancing molecule, as beautiful as a sunbeam. It has its uses, but it is not a spirit.

Like crystallization—cohesion, diffusion, osmosis, catalysis, synthesis, electric dissociation and combination—may be made to create forms that strike terror to the hearts of the spiritists, the faddists, the healers devilish or divine, and all superstitions. Indeed, many such laboratory creations have all the characteristics of living beings, and many of them are past the experimental stage.

It is truly an audacious scientist who will draw dare-devil a sharp line of demarkation between the vital protoplasm and the inorganic molecule. A generation has grown up since he felt the fine-cure ground fall from under the line between the kingdom of vegetation and that of animals. Now he may no longer maintain the points of demarkation between a mineral and a new living species.

"What are the exact symptoms of life?" you ask your learned friend

"The characteristics of life, my friend, are manifested in Nature's mysterious laboratory," he might answer if a biologist of the old school, or a scholastic with their usual theological turn of mind. Or he may say:

"Life is made known to us by its activities, its works, its composition and its products." But is it? Let us see.

Dripping water will wear away jewels, as well as stones, and the constant addition of newly discovered facts will stagger superstitions, theologies, philosophies and fallacious beliefs. The rapidly accumulating feats of the past fifteen years —proved and promulgated by chemists, physicists, physiologists and electro-spectroscopists—have driven those who held to the "vitalistan" delusion into their dying strongholds.

Slowly, continuously — yet steadily — those complex compounds manufactured by our human tissues have been duplicated in the physical-chemist's laboratory. In the laboratories of Professor Kossel, of Berlin, and Professor Fischer, of Vienna, as well as in this country, simple, inorganic combinations have been synthetized into elementary bodies closely resembling proteins. So far has this work proceeded that even the number of molecules, atoms and electrons can be computed in them. It is now expected by the most optimistic that any day will see the laboratory production of soluble enzymes (ferments) and hormones (such as thyroid).

Enzymases or enzymes are those bizarre organic mixtures present in the blood, stomach, intestines, muscles and other living tissues which act as a fulcrum or chemical body for cementing, transferring and disintegrating more complex chemical bodies without themselves exhibiting any perceptible alterations of form or content. Thus, one grain of pepsin can, without itself being changed, transfer and decompose ten thousand times its own weight of lion meat; rennet will curdle—change chemically—10,000 times as many gallons of milk. Not the minutest chemical analysis yet discovered will show a perceptible diminution in the amount of rennet at the end.

This curious faculty of ferments or enzymes was until recently considered to be a strictly "vital," "living" power peculiar to plant and animal chemistry. But there physical chemistry again stepped into the breach with a demonstrable denial. Ostwald, Arrhenius, Mach, Jones of Hopkins and others simply immersed bits of gold, tiny reds of platinum and specks of metallic silver in a water bath. The poles of a battery were connected up with the corresponding metal used, an electric arc was established, and the result noted

The same effect is to be seen as that which takes place when trypsin, pepsin, rennet or other body enzyme is brought in double contact with meats, sugars or milk. The transparency of the water is replaced by a glutinous, foggy, starchy-like solution. The platinum, gold or silver has been so altered into an impalpable, powdery solution that not even the most powerful microscope with dark-filed illumination can make it visible. This body, the very antithesis of a crystal, is called a colloid. These uncrystallizable substances, colloid gold or platinum, may now be observed to conduct themselves much the same as a bricklayer building a wall; he takes a brick from one place to another, forming an architectural creation merely by transferring the bricks. Ferments and colloids like these elements do likewise.

Advancing even a step farther towards the solution of protoplasmic activities, Professor Butschalli, of Heidelberg, mixed the yolk of eggs, linseed oil, baking soda and water beneath a microscope, the base of which was kept at blood-heat, photographed the forms observed, and presented them to the scientific world. Shapes exactly like white blood cells and amoeba are plainly visible in the picture. Perhaps this is but another example of the value of our kitchen products as subservers of growth and life. At least, these experiments cannot lessen our respect for eggs, water and baking soda. Butschlli's results are not the less dignified, because Dr. Herrera, an American investigator, successfully repeated them with castile soap.

If an unbaked Boston bean, dry and powerless, is placed in water, fluid passes into it by diffusion, and it swells up as proudly as a self-made man. If whiskey is added slowly, bit by bit, to some water, the water travels into the alcohol, and the alcohol can be seen as whiskey travelling into the water. This sort of travelling has nothing to do with either rolling down hill—the force of gravity—or with railroad or aeroplane; it is called diffusion. If a piece of parchment separates two diffusing solutions the "travelling" is given another name, osmosis.

If now you place a solution of molasses and sugar on one side of such a parchment membrane, and pure water on the other side, there will be a transfer of the crystals of sugar through the pigskin membrane in a fairly rapid manner. The molasses will pass much more slowly. Osmosis occurs rapidly in the case of natural crystalloids, and slowly in the case of diffusible colloids

Another savant reported to the French Academy of Sciences—and it has been repeatedly verified—that when a drop of a mixture of sugar and sulphate of copper (bluestone) is placed upon a Ledue gelatine-water plate, in which traces of ferro-cyanide of iron have been left, pseudo-plants will grow with leaves, twigs, branches—reaching as much as twenty inches in length. These artificial plants have thorns, catkins, cones, blossoms and fruits. Like their real counterpart in nature, they respire, transpire and absorb oxygen.

Another worker in this untilled field, Jagadis Chunder Bose, of Calcutta—a devout Brahmin, it is said—announces that the cells of Leduc, and the plants of Ledue and others, may be shows to have the same irritability of the steel spring which, when forced from a state of equilibrium, reacts strongly to the opposing force, and tends to return to its stable state. In other words, Bose maintains that there is nothing either specific or vital in the so-called nervous irritability of living matter.

The work of Loeb and his students in this country is now well known. They succeeded in fertilizing the eggs of starfish and sea-urchins without the intervention of the male or female adults. The specific function of the sperm cell was discharged by chemical salts. The larvae which developed were dwarfs and irregular fish, but these, in turn, gave birth to a new species.

Burke, who used the Beta rays (electric negative charges) to generate new-living things in tubes of beef tea, was at first deceived into the notion that he had actually imprisoned vital forms. M. Laveran, the great French biologist, who discovered the parasites of malaria, also thought they were vegetable moulds. He soon saw, however, that the animalcules were nothing more nor less than spaces made in the fluid by the emanations of radium. Even living viruses is usually associated in the older scientists' minds with the higher forms of life. With that transcendental, mystical, unscientific thing called "mind," seeing was, until in the recent past, considered to be limited strictly to the higher vertebrates

Freeman, Loreta, Sir J. J. Thomson, and Rutherford, the men to whom, with Sir William Crookes and Sir William Ramsay, we owe so much for the development of our knowledge of the electron, echo to-day the words of Sir Oliver Lodge, another of our great contemporary English physico-chemists: "There would be no cause for astonishment if we succeeded, sooner or later, in producing in the laboratory a phenomenon which we could not avoid considering as new life."

Women in Their Kingdom of Home---By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Half of the race, hitherto almost silent, has begun to make its wants and ideas known in industry, society and politics. Man is coming to realize that it is worth his while, even if only from the standpoint of self-interest, to learn and consider the ideals of modern womankind. The old days when woman kept silent in the churches—if nowhere else—is past. Not only in the churches, but in every field of human endeavor, her voice is now heard. The traditions of the hearth have been forsaken, and woman is competing with man in the marts of trade and labor, challenging his opinions on the platform and through the printed page, and organizing to impress her ideas on human progress in a way that is significant of tremendous change. No longer a subject class in the community, economically, intellectually and spiritually dependent upon man, woman is now "looking on life with the eyes of a reasoning adult, where once she regarded it as a trusting child"

Woman, said Selma Lagerlof, at the recent international congress of women at Stockholm, is beginning to reason thus: The only human institution in which man and woman co-operate on equal terms is the home. And the home has been a success. In the State and the city, which is peculiarly man-made, and man-managed, there is ever strife, waste, misery and sorrow. If woman also took part in the larger life of the community would not the results be beneficial to the community?

A GENERAL survey of the homes about us would not lead to the belief that woman has made herself a complete success in her own domain. The successful wife and mother and home keeper includes many and varied qualities.

No matter what the station of the family, whether among the laboring people, the tradesmen, or the professional and artistic classes, whether in the home of wealth or the home of modest comforts where strict economy must be practiced to secure life's daily needs, the successful home maker must possess certain old-fashioned virtues and put them into daily practice.

She must be orderly in her mind and her habits first of all, and she must have high ideals of womanhood, of motherhood, of wifehood, and of the importance of the home as an institution on which the security of the nation rests

She must realize the necessity to make and keep her home and herself attractive and to live a life that is above reproach, while she shines as a centre for bright, intelligent, clean social life. It is astonishing and disappointing to see how few American women live up to these requirements.

Every day and everywhere able bodied and well educated women are complaining of their dislike for housekeeping; of their trouble with domestics; of their longing for wider and more brilliant spheres than that of the domestic life, and every day the divorce court is granting freedom to men and women, who might have found happiness and peace and wholesome joys in the kingdom of home had the wife set about the work of home making with the same enlightened and lofty ideals which characterize success in other domains of endeavor. Women in this era long to shine, and few seem to realize that there is no lustre so dazzling as that of the halo which surrounds an absolutely successful homemaker

There is the woman who has allowed her ailments to obsess her mind, and who has destroyed all the comfort provided by a liberal husband by a continual thought of ill health. Rest cures, health resorts and specialists consume the greater part of her husband's income, and yet there is nothing whatever the matter with the woman, save careless diet and habits, which she could overcome with the exercise of only common sense. Deep breathing, outdoor air, simple food, plenty of pure water or milk and right thinking would enable the woman to enjoy good health. But the home is sacrificed to her self indulgent ideas of invalidism.

Another woman has been provided with every luxury in the way of a beautifully appointed home and complete wardrobe. A devoted husband, a lovely child, should make this home a paradise. Instead the serpent has entered it in the form of a man who plumes himself upon his ability to lead silly women into compromising situations

The wife imagines this man in love with her, and shows her satisfaction in every way, wholly ignoring the husband's feelings, all unconscious that (as is usual in such cases) the man is merely amusing himself at her expense, and that he openly boasts of his influence over her. Such a situation is not uncommon in the world, and there are many women of wealth and leisure, blessed with every gift which makes earth beautiful to its denizens, who find their only keen enjoyment in playing with edged tools—human emotions.

Attraction between the sexes is part of Nature's great plan There is always a beginning when a woman with fine ideals and the right understanding of what her position of wife and home keeper demands can avoid having the attraction proceed farther than respectful admiration. Can it be truly said, as Mrs. Van Norman asserts, that the home has been made a success when so many women seemingly pride themselves upon their ability to gain flirtatious attentions from men who are not their husbands? Even when the husband is of that pitiable class known as complacent it does not exonerate the wife.

Nor can a woman flatter herself that it is her special power of fascination which causes her to be placed in a position where she is subjected to undue attention from men. It is the habit of certain men to test all womanking in search for a really sensible woman.

A bachelor once told a woman in a moment of confidence that he was a bachelor only because in two score years, given to testing the wives of his acquaintances by means of romantic attentions and flattering words, he had failed to find more than two who were not silly enough to believe all he said, and to imagine him in love and to invite further sentiment from him.

"Whenever I find a woman weak enough to take me in earnest," he said, "I feel that one more ideal is shattered. What we men—the worst of us—are seeking for is the ideal, sensible, noble woman, who will not permit us to make unlawful love to her, who will laugh us out of such efforts and turn the would-be lover into the sensible friend

"Such a woman, when we do find her, encourages us to attempt marriage. The others discourage us. We prefer to remain single and make a pretense of loving other men's wives, rather than place ourselves in the unenviable position of the husband of that type."

Meantime one of the wives who had received the romantic attentions of this particular bachelor confided to a friend that the man was single because of his hopeless love for her. Alas for the vanity of silly women!

The woman of disorderly habits is another one who fails to make her home a success. She will tell you that she was never fond of house work, and that she hates the sight of a kitchen. That life means more to her than such drudgery And no matter how many servants she employs, her house will never suggest the word home. From hall to parlor and kitchen to garret it will spell discomfort. She will be well read and perhaps will be musically inclined or excel in embroidery. But she will never make a home for her husband or children. Like the savage woman, she will array herself in gaudy attire when going forth among her tribe but she will fling aside her festive habiliments once inside her hut and settle down to dust and disorder.

It is indeed to be hoped that with woman's larger outlook and by her business education she will develop into the real homemaker—the real home keeper. And that the home—the absolutely successful home, the home which is an inspiration to all who enter it, a haven of peace and beauty and comfort to all its inmates, the home where wholesome and sane pleasures abound, the home with no skeletons in the closet, and no discords within its walls will be the rule, not the exception as it is to-day.

CLORINDA—Hurry up, Hiney; we'll be late for the game. You know I knew your father once, when I was a typewriter. Now I don't recognize him, 'cause I'm a real actress, with spangles and shiny fingernails and everything.

HINEY—Well, I'm glad I've got you at last. I've just been dying to see you ever since I looked at your lithograph on an ash barrel at the corner of the alley.

CLORINDA—Yes, and you may well be proud at the honor of addressing such as me. Listen! You can hear the swish of my skoits when I jump around. It's real taffeta, with the name stamped on the selvage.

HINEY—How do you like me as a football player? Ah, football's a wonderful game. Just lamp my physical development!

CLORINDA—I don't see anything, unless you mean that wrinkle in your sweater. Call that phythical-development?

HINEY—Not phythicaldevelopment. I said physical development.

CLORINDA—All right; phythicaldevelopment. I can't thay it only when I eat thoup. My teeth get in the way.

HINEY—Then go downstairs and get the other set.

CLORINDA—Say, Hiney, what's that O. Y. you've got on your sweater?

HINEY—O. Y. means "Official Yeller." I lead the yells at all the games.

CLORINDA—Oh, I see. So you have O. Y. stuck on you in yeller letters. Now I see where your yeller streak comes in. You look more like a long drink to me—like a Horse's Neck.

HINEY—Well, they picked me out from hundreds of students to represent the college and instruct all the men in the gentle art of yelling.

CLORINDA—Poor Hiney! They'll never get done picking on him. I see where I'm out for a nice, quiet time. I'm going to get my knitting.

HINEY—Wait a minute. I'm going to give you our yell. Listen!

RAH, RAH, RAH, SKINNY-MARINKY-DA, EAT 'EM UP, TEAR 'EM UP, RAH, RAH——

CLORINDA—Look out, Hiney, here come the squirrels to chase you. They think you're a nut. You can't fool the squirrels, you know, Hiney. They always get on to you.

HINEY—No, just wait another minute. Here's just one more. You see, this little book here is full of yells, and you must hear some of them and then you'll know how I earned my title.

CLORINDA—Hiney, this is NOT my idea of a good time! Let's get an open hack and drive to the morgue. I haven't got any more patience left than a bum doctor.

HINEY—Aw, no, now. Here we go. RAH-RAH-RAH, UM-TA-TA——

CLORINDA—Hiney! We're going to the cemetery and have tea.

HINEY—You didn't let me finish. Here's one of my own you'll like. RAH, RAH, RAH, PREPARATORIA! WE SEND HOME FOR MONEY, HA! HA! HA!

CLORINDA—Oh, I'm getting happier every minute. All I need now is the jumping toothache.

HINEY—You mustn't go until you hear one of the originalest things I ever composed. It's the yell of Stockyards University. All ready, now. All together—RAH! RAH! RAH! MEAT!

CLORINDA—Hiney, choose your fate. Will you be lanced or chloroformed? Say, go get the phone book and read me a story, will you?

HINEY—But better yet is the yell of Sausage College. This is it. HARK! HARK! THE DOGS DO BARK!!

CLORINDA—If I hang around you much longer people will think I'm your keeper from the asylum. Here I am all dressed up and no place to go.

HINEY—Well, there's just one more before we go to the game. You see, I have to rehearse these because we can never tell when they may have to be used on the field. Now here's the last. Ha! Ha!

CLORINDA—Say, are you laughing with me, or at me? Oh, Hiney, don't! Have a little sympathy for your victims. Try it on the cat first. I'll give you anything to close the book—there I am Santa Claus, what do you want for Christmas? I don't know what you want, but I know what you're going to get.

HINEY—But this is the last one, and it's too good to let you go without hearing it——

CLORINDA—All right, but you'll have to remember that before you gave it you had your health.

HINEY—This is the Denver College yell, known the country over, and one that may be gone but not forgotten. Here we go now. You see I must assume just the right poise, and the right expression, or it won't work with the desired effect.

CLORINDA—I can tell you before you begin that the desired effect will be to throw you into that nice muddy pond back of us. Get ready to run while I roll up my sleeves.

HINEY—Woman, I fear you not! (I said that just like a regular actor, didn't I?) All right, Clorinda, here goes the Denver College yell. Listen, now. We WILL, get well, we WILL get well! COUGH, COUGH, COUGH!!!

CLORINDA—Oh that's awful funny. If you look at me upside down you can see I'm laughing too. Yes, Hiney, that yell is very effective when you give it, cause you see if your back was turned around in front you'd have such a nice chest!

HINEY—Well I've done my best to entertain you. I think you might at least give me a little encouragement.

CLORINDA—I will, Hiney. Look at me while I smile at you. Really, I've spent a very pleasant year with you this evening.

I Interview The Astor Baby

By Richard Carle

Being the First of a Series of Interviews by the Famous Comedian Who Is Now Playing in "The Girl from Montmartre," at the Criterion.

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal Examiner. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

CONGRATULATIONS!

Thank you!

With reasonable pride I may introduce myself as the first journalist, in fact, the first person who has succeeded in making the Astor baby talk. Heretofore he has displayed a taciturnity that would make J. Pierpont Morgan seem more loquacious than a suffragette. Not, however, that John Jacob, the sixth, has failed to express his opinions freely, particularly at meal time. Neighbors, in fact, are protesting against the frequency of meals at night time, for apparently, like most people he wants what he wants when he wants it.

Only the difference between him and most people is that he gets it.

When I called at his Fifth avenue residence he was lunching. Lunching on Fifth avenue is always a long continued process of mixing conversation and food. The little fellow apparently felt that his social position impelled him to follow the fashion, but being short on conversation he had to be long on food. And, believe me, he has some appetite.

I arrived at 1:45. At 2:45 I was still waiting. At 3:47 a maid came through rustly silk portieres.

"Mr. Carle," she said, sotto voce, "this way." She tiptoed through the portieres into the hall, covered with a rug that sank so under my feet that I inadvertently cried "Help!" and leaped for the hard-wood floor.

"Shsh—" she exclaimed looking at my feet as though she had a grievance against me for letting them grow so large.

We then climbed the staircase. At least we climbed what they used as a staircase, though any reasonable person could see the architect had intended it for a driveway.

It was so long that I didn't blame John Jacob, sixth, for living up-stairs.

At the top I was greeted with a yell—a polite Fifth avenue yell—but a yell. John Jacob, sixth, was expressing his opinion.

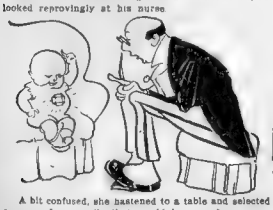
"He doesn't like to be kept waiting," apologized the maid.

"Neither do I," I mumbled.

The maid glared me into John's bedroom.

"Hello, John," said I.

There was silence. Even John didn't notice me, but looked reprovingly at his nurse.



A bit confused, she hastened to a table and selected a spoon from a pile that would have made a pawnbroker's fingers twitch.

John Jacob took it and, turning it over, carefully inspected the stamp on the back of it. Satisfied that it was twenty-four karat, he stuck it contentedly into his mouth. Then he looked at me, first at my head and then at my feet.

His face puckered into a grin.

"Boston or Chicago?" he asked.

"Both," said I.

"In a way," he added, smoothing his own bald head, "we resemble each other."

I smiled. That's the trouble with interviewing. You have to stand for a lot of uncomplimentary stuff. John Jacob may be a Beau Brummel in twenty years; but now, well——

He says he resembles me.

He looked bored.

"Being an Astor heir is no joke," he resumed. "I have too many social obligations. Forty-one people called yesterday and inspected my toes and 'little-piggied-to-market' with them. Some of them are shaking my foot now, so that they can pull my leg later, I guess."

"I wouldn't stand for it," I counselled.

"It's like this, Dick," he said, confidingly and leaning over to tap me familiarly with his gold spoon. "I don't intend to. But just wait till I get out of these darned petticoats."

Adventures of the Hunters

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Mr. Hunter wanted to go to the beach. When they got to the mountains they were not suited. Neither were they suited at the shore, nor at the farm where bee stings, poison ivy and a Mephitis mephitica drove them to a lake resort. At this place a peroxide widow spoiled the scenery for Mrs. Hunter and they tried camping out with such small success that they went to fashionable resort where Hunter was dragged away just because he became popular as a swimming instructor for young ladies. Fire and water drove them from a bungalow, while ragtime and a hole in the hull of their houseboat caused them——READ THIS AND FIND OUT.

CHAPTER IX

"WHERE will we go, John?" asked Mrs. Hunter.

There was a loud explosion from the back-fire of his automobile and Mr. Hunter crawled out from under the car with alacrity.

"If that happens again," he said, rubbing the smoke and grease from his face with waste cotton, "I know where we'll go, but on account of the size of ears on little pitchers I won't mention it," and he looked knowingly at little Willie.

"That's all right, but where WILL we go?" his wife persisted.

"Great caburetias, Fannie, it isn't so much WHERE we will go, as HOW we will go"——

"Of course, if you cannot run your automobile we'll make our tour on a trolley car," observed Mrs. Hunter.

Hunter gritted his teeth and crawled back beneath the car again. After another half-hour's work Mrs. Hunter got out and sat on the veranda of their home. The Hunters, having failed to be quite suited at any of the eight places they had tried for a vacation resort, decided to take their automobile and end the Summer season with a glorious tour through the country. Their luncheon kit and everything was packed in the auto, with road maps and extra tires and, resplendent in new auto togs, they had been ready to go for an hour, but Hunter had been unable to start his machine.

"Perhaps you need gasoline, dear," suggested Mrs. Hunter.

"I don't think the tank leaks. I filled it this morning," Hunter looked in the tank. "Well, of all things, scarcely a drop"——

"Oh, I forgot all about it," exclaimed Mrs. Hunter, smiling sweetly.

"About what?" asked Hunter, suspiciously.

"Why, I wanted to clean the curtains and our auto coats and a lot of things, so I took the gasoline out of the tank. I really meant to tell you"——

"Fanny," said Hunter, plaintively, sitting down on the mudguard, "how any human being can exist—well, they don't rattle enough to give you a headache."

"If you refer to my brains," she began, indignantly.

"You flatter yourself," snapped Hunter, but he filled the tank and they were off.

As they reached the outskirts of the city Hunter speeded up.

"Where will we go, John?" asked Mrs. Hunter.

"Anywhere you say"——

"Hey, Pa, there's a man behind us on a motorcycle wavin' his hand"——

Whatever else Willie was about to say was jerked into silence as Hunter put on more speed and fairly scorched.

"No cheaty cop on a tin motorcycle is going to hold me up," he declared, but just then he rounded a turn in the road and found it blocked with steam rollers and workmen. Before he could get through, the policeman had overtaken him, secured his name and ordered him into court.

"All right," said Hunter, and they were off. "I'll pay that fine when we get back. Where do you want to go?"

"Out into the glorious country and have a picnic first," said Mrs. Hunter, and so, after a long dusty ride, Hunter turned into an inviting wood road.

"Right over there," said Mrs. Hunter, pointing to a shady knoll by a babbling brook. "We'll go in there and spread out a nice lunch and enjoy the afternoon." Hunter hid the car behind a tree and petted it a while, as Mrs. Hunter arranged lunch. They had been seated long enough for Hunter to take one bite of one sardine, when he leaped to his feet, clutched himself frantically about his legs and then dashed into the woods.

"I believe," she said to Willie, "that your father has gone crazy. He"——

Mrs. Hunter paused to make a grab at her ankle, then her knee, then——she apparently grabbed at herself all over and, arising hastily, proceeded to shake her clothes and look as wild-eyed as a woman catching her husband kissing the maid.

"Ouch! Awr Gee! OUCH!"

This time it was Willie. But Mrs. Hunter was too busy with her own troubles to pay attention to him. With one last "Ouch!" Willie dashed into the woods in the direction his father had taken. Mrs. Hunter hurried behind the automobile and proceeded to take account of herself. As she was doing this, Hunter came back. He looked critically at the little knoll on which his wife had spread the lunch.

"Oh, Fanny," he shouted.

"Yes," she snapped.

"Hsz, hsz!" laughed Hunter, "got you, too, did they? Well, next time you spread a lunch don't pick out one of these mammoth ants' nests. Where's Willie?"

"Was that what——why, the idea! Why didn't you tell me it was an ants' nest, John Hunter?"

"One reason may have been that you carefully concealed it with the table cloth."

"Gee," said Willie, emerging from the woods, "I had to take off all my clothes."

But they finally rescued the lunch, spread the cloth in a safer locality and had something to eat, but now and then a stray ant that had not been dislodged would get in a few bites and there would be an exclamation of pain!

Altogether it looked more like a little family party of St. Vitus dance patients on a picnic.

"Now where?" he asked his wife, after lunch.

"Oh, let us go on to Silver Lake. There's a nice hotel there where we can stop for the night," suggested Mrs. Hunter.

Hunter started.

"I think you are going the wrong way," she told him.

"You've got another think," he answered, and put on full speed. In a couple of hours they approached some lights.

"Say, we got there quick, didn't we?" he exclaimed. "I thought it was twice as far"——

"Hold up!" shouted a voice by the roadside.

"There's another of them motorcycles, Pa!" exclaimed Willie.

"For the love of Pete, out here at Silver Lake, too?" said Hunter.

Just then the motorcycle man overtook him and Hunter stopped. The motorcycle man looked at Hunter's number.

"Oh, yes," said the cop, "you are Mr. Hunter, are you? Well, you better come right along to the station. I've already taken your name once for overspeeding"——

"Who are—you are—where are we?" asked Hunter, beginning to feel a bit queer.

"Why—e—" shrilled Mrs. Hunter, "we are back home again and this is the same policeman that arrested you before. Now what do you think about going the wrong way? I told you so. I told you so"——

"Ye gods!" yelled Hunter, "lock me up. I'd rather be in jail than to hear that 'I told you so' song from my wife all night!"

(This will be concluded next Sunday.)

WHEN YOU SEE:

A man rushing out around the corner carrying a pitcher, it is a sign he believes ice water is unhealthy.

A woman insisting on waiting for one of those stepless cars, it is a sign that she "felt something give."

A man grinning in the midst of a subway crush, it is not a sign he is happy, but that he is ticklish.

A young man buying half a dozen little solitaires, it is a sign he's had a lot of experience and is going on his vacation.

A woman gazing sadly about a desolate marsh land, bordered with tin bungalows and smelly fishing huts, it is a sign she is looking for the "Vacationist's Paradise" that the place was advertised to be.

A clergyman and family going on a vacation, it is a sign his congregation is wealthy, or else his wife is.

"Have forgotten name of client. Please wire at once."

This was the reply sent from New York:

He did.

He told her next morning about some nice tooth-powder he found in a little pink jar on the dresser.

"Tooth-powder?" screamed the landlady, who was a widow as well. "That was my husband's ashes!" and she turned sick and fainted.

So did he.

Speaking of Dignity.

Mrs. W. O. Davis, the charming Chicago woman who tried to stampede the Republican convention for Colonel Roosevelt, said the other day:

"I still hear occasionally that my conduct at the convention was undignified. My answer to that criticism is that there are finer, higher things than dignity. Those who stand on their dignity too much deserve the retort that the broker got.

"A rich Chicago broker was strolling on State street one day when his beautiful young wife stole up behind him, threw her arms around his neck and kissed him heartily.

"'Tut, tut,' the man said, hurriedly straightening his hat. 'Tut, tut! This sort of thing my dear is most undignified.'

"His wife dropped her eyes and answered demurely:

"'Oh excuse me, John—I didn't know it was you.'"

Wanted His Straight.

After a "night off" with the boys, Big Con, an East Side gin mixer, got pointed in the wrong direction and walked off the dock into the river.

At the end of half an hour's time two cops and a watchman fished him out, more dead than alive. When the whiskey was brought Con's lips moved slightly.

"Roll me on a bar'l fust," he whispered faintly, "an' git some of this water out. If yer don't 'twill weaken th' booze."

Horrible!

A woman was taking her husband on a shopping expedition to buy him new clothes. They stopped in front of a men's furnishing store and looked at a line of trousers displayed in the window.

"Let's go in here," suggested the husband.

His wife spied a sign in the window and cried: "Never, never, Henry; I wouldn't go in such a place."

"Why not?"

"Just look at that bargain sign in the window." The sign read:

PANTS
HALF-OFF.

An Insurance Fraud.

When the doctor arrived he found Mrs. O'Leary in bed, her face and hands adorned with plaster and bandages and Mr. O'Leary sitting in stolid misery at her bedside.

"Cheer up, Tim," said the doctor, "she'll pull through all right. I don't believe there are any bones broken."

"Don't be tryin' to raise me moind," said Mr. O'Leary, darkly, "for it's impossible, doctor. Here Oi had her insured against accidents of ivery kind only four days ago, an' paid down me foive dollars as prompt as anny man cud an' before th' week is gone she falls down stairs wid a bucket o' coal, an' now look at her, marred from ind to ind!"

By ROBERT SHERBERT TURNER.

"ISN'T he the cutest thing you ever saw?"

These were the words that greeted me—as the story books say—when I set foot upon the threshold of my home the other evening. Our home, so far as I know, has no threshold, being in a two-family house; indeed, I'm not sure that I know exactly what a threshold is. Nor have I ever seen a roof tree, nor a kettle on the hob, nor a hearthstone.

However, this is getting away from the subject.

I am becoming quite a writer since I began this autobiography. By starting off suddenly with a sentence like the one at the top of this instalment, the reader's interest is aroused—or should be. And then by wandering off into talk about thresholds and such things, the reader is kept in suspense as to what the opening sentence is all about.

"Isn't who cute?" I replied.

"Why, this darling little puppikin doggums."

Sure enough she had a small, hairy animal in her arms. It was as much like a bunch of excelsior as a dog, and I said so.

"You heartless big brute," said Lucy. "It's the dearest little doggums that ever lived."

"All right," I said, "put the dearest little doggums in the cellar and let us have our dinner. I'm as hungry as a hunter."

Here I must make another digression. Not for the sake of suspense this time, but because I'd like to find out something.

Why should we say "as hungry as a hunter"? A hunter isn't any hungrier than a bricklayer or a hobo or a stowaway.

And why should we say, "as drunk as a lord." I doubt if lords are pre-eminent in anything. No doubt many lords reach a high state of drunkenness, but then there are many far from aristocratic persons who attain a commendable degree of alcoholic exultation.

Further, why should we say, "As merry as a 'grig'"? For years I thought a "grig" was some kind of a goblin, but when I looked it up in the dictionary one day I found that a "grig" was a cricket. And goodness, knows why we consider a cricket merry. It makes a chirping noise, but it sounds more like a complaint about something than anything cheerful.

As I was saying, I told Lucy to put the dog in the cellar and let us have our dinner.

"The cellar!" exclaimed Lucy. "The cellar for the doggums! He's going to have his dinner right here at the table."

When Lucy talks in a certain tone I never argue with her. It wouldn't be any good if I did. So the dog sat up alongside me at the table. Lucy chopped up some chicken for him, but the brute grabbed a wing off my plate.

"—— —— ——!" said I.

"How cute of him," said Lucy.

I could have gladly kicked the little beast, but I didn't. I didn't dare.

After dinner I was reading the paper, when Lucy rushed up and yelled: "Where's Pinky-Panky?"

Just then we heard a terrific racket in the cellar. We rushed down, to be met by the woman who lives in the other part of the house.

"Is this your dog?" she demanded, holding up Pinky-Panky by the tail.

"Don't hold him like that," yelled Lucy, rescuing her pet.

"He's yours, then," said the woman. "Then, Mr. Turner, I'll be asking you for $1.75 to pay for the chicken the dog snaffled off the top of my icebox."

I paid it and retreated upstairs to meditate on means of destroying Pinky-Panky without any hanky-panky.

Now Playing the Title Role in "Bunty Pulls the Strings" at the Comedy Theatre.

THE boys had made good use of the steep hill in their search for Winter sport, and their sleds and bobs had worn a track down hill, where the snow had turned to ice.

A gentleman, whom we will call Mr. Chesterfield (he was really very polite), collided with a fat woman just at the brow of the hill, lost his footing, and fell, the woman fell also, landing on top of the polite gentleman. And down the hill they went, Mr. Chesterfield forming a toboggan on which the fat lady rode in safety. Faster, faster they went down the icy incline, not stopping until the foot of the hill was reached. Then the fat lady heard a very weak voice saying:

"Pardon me, madam; you have to get off now—this is as far as I go."

"LET me engage the next cook," said the meddlesome man to his wife. "Show the applicants in to me and I will see that you are properly suited."

"Do you attend church?" he inquired of the first applicant.

"Yes, sir. Regularly every Sunday."

"How long were you at your last place?"

"Two years."

"I would pay you six dollars a week. Would that do?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you ever have any men hanging around?"

"No, sir, not even a cop."

"Right! I'll engage you."

The next evening the meddlesome man asked his wife how the new cook was progressing.

"She's gone," replied the wife. "You omitted one question when you engaged her."

"Nonsense. What was that?"

"You forgot to ask her if she could cook. She COULDN'T.

"RATHER a curious thing happened at our house," said one man.

"What was that?" inquired another man.

"Well, you know our conservatory? We've had a lot of trouble over the insects in there, and the other day I got an idea. My wife gave me a box of cigars for my birthday, but I have given up smoking. Rather funny, eh?"

"Very peculiar."

"Yes. And I got a bright idea. We would give the cigars to our gardner to smoke in the greenhouse. That would kill off the insects."

"And did it?"

"We gave them to the gardner to smoke, and——"

"Did it kill the insects?"

"I think so. It killed the plants, anyway. And the doctor says the gardner is now out of danger."

DURING the voyage across the Atlantic a friend of mine was annoyed by a fellow-passenger, who persisted in supplying him with information he didn't want.

My friend was leaning over the rail one day when this particular nuisance came up and tapped him familiarly on the shoulder.

"Sir," he said very gravely, "do you know that if the earth were flattened out the sea would be two miles deep all over the world?"

With an air of deep anxiety my friend replied: "Listen! If you catch anybody flattening out the earth please shoot him on the spot. I can't swim."

SHERIFF LEAVITT is noted, even among farmers, for his constant grumbling. A neighbor met him one morning and remarked.

"Fine weather, Frank."

"For them that ain't got to work."

"Your farm looks in a fine condition."

"To them as ain't got to dig in it."

"Well, Frank, I'm glad your wife's better."

"Them as don't have to live with her may be."

I HAVE been much amused, not to say somewhat startled, at the expeditious American manner of doing things, social, financial, political or what not. Of all hasty marriages one that a theatrical acquaintance told me of the other day beats the world's record, I am sure.

The young man breezed into the old man's library.

"I met your daughter yesterday," he announced, "and I want to marry her next Friday afternoon at 3:30. She's willing."

The old man turned to his card index.

"Which daughter?" he inquired.

"It's Miss Ethel."

"All right," said the old man. "Make it 4:30 and I'll attend the wedding. I have an engagement at the other hour."

It was so ordered. This is a snappy age.

"I HEARD that you were going to marry Archie Blueblood, Esther. Is it true?" asked one young society woman of another.

"Marry him? I should say not! Why, I wouldn't know what to do with him. He can't ride, play tennis, golf, or drive a motor car!"

"Well," said the friend, "he can swim beautifully, you know."

"You wouldn't want a husband that you had to keep in an aquarium, would you?"

FUN PLUMS FOR THE ROCHESTER FAIR

Vaudeville Aviation, Firemen's Muster Among the Big Features.

If arrangements already completed are any criterion, the Rochester Fair of 1912 which opens at Cold Spring Park, October 30, will be an exposition full of interest. The mammoth stage show provided by the management this year embraces some of the finest vaudeville acts to be seen at a fair. An aviator has been engaged to make daily flights and everybody will want to see the parachute jump from a height of a thousand feet. An automobile show race on the high speed oval and a [illegible] will take the place of the firemen's muster which has been given in years past. Two horse races with a $1,000 purse is offered as an important feature and $10,000 in purses is offered.

The Rochester Fair is one of the oldest fairs now in existence.

LONGS FOR TOKAY HILLS.

But Josephine Victor Heeds Demands of American Stageland.

Unlike most foreigners who migrate to America, become successful and make their homes here, Josephine Victor yearns for Hungary and the pretty home in Tokay where she was born, but will she be unable to enjoy because the artistic talents at her command have been made magnificently rewarded in the theatres of America. Miss Victor is Arnold Daly's leading woman in "The Wedding Journey," which comes to the Shubert tomorrow.

Her birthplace was the little village of Erdo Benye, among the Tokay hills. Her father was a prosperous wine grower. He was an ardent patriot, too, and, becoming involved in a political intrigue, he gained the enmity of the powers that were and was forced to flee the country. He came to America—of course—he'd here his wife and his small daughter then eight years old, soon followed him. They came to New York city and there the future actress proceeded to grow up and learn English and various other things. She learned quite a variety of things, really because her parents had destined her to be a teacher. She had brought an artistic temperament along with her from the old country, however, and she rebelled against pedagogy.

She wanted to be an artist she said, and so she went to Cooper Union for a while and learned to draw and paint—a little. That wasn't what she really hankered after, though. She wanted to be an actress. And so when the chance came for her to get a free scholarship at the Wheatcroft School of Music she got it.

The only solace to comfort Miss Victor now is that she may find some spot in America where it may be possible to build a replica of the little Hungarian village and even though she will have to produce the grapes of Tokay on the artificial fields of Hungary, she will still have her art, her position on the American stage and the home "ideal."

VALUE OF SECOND PARTS.

Theodore Friebus Gives Some Light on Stock Work.

"The man who plays second parts in a stock company often has a better chance of making good than the man who plays the leads," said Theodore Friebus of the St James Theatre company, who is playing Daniel, the monk, who saves Thais in "Thais" at the St James this week. "I know that is true because I have played both kinds of parts and from my experience in town in Mr Friebus might do know, for he ended an engagement taking the part of grizzly bears at the Academy of Music in New York where he played the "leads," changing his role practically every week.

"Just take the case of "The Girl of the Golden West." Mr. Friebus continued. "When playing an engagement in Boston I was Jack Rance—the second part—you may remember. How I loved that part! It is a wonder for the actor. When I went to the Academy of Music, we put on the 'girl,' and as I was playing 'lead' I took the role of Johnson, the road agent. My word, but I wished I was back at Jack the gambler. I think that has been the experience of all the men who have played in the Belasco play.

"At the Metropolitan opera Amato scored as heavily as Jack as Caruso did as Johnson, and at the Boston and the Chicago houses, the men who sang the part of Jack scored as heavily as Bassi, Constantino and Zenatello, who did Johnson.

"I mention this simply as an example of the fact that the so-called 'lead' is not always the best role in the show.

"In fact, in 'Thais' Daniel passes me as the one human although the role which Mr Haines plays is really the leading masculine role."

MAKES A BANJO TALK.

Eddie Ross Also Does Some Clever Talking Himself.

Has a banjo any feelings? Blackface Eddie Ross, who comes to B. F. Keith's Theatre this week, believes it has. Ross, in addition to being a clever monologist, is an exceptionally expert banjoist. He carries two instruments about the stage with him. It is rather interesting to watch Ross preparing to do his "turn." His doffing and carefully tuning. Talking to them like a human being and giving each one a little good advice. Ross never uses the same instrument two performances in succession.

Like most all theatrical people, he is very superstitious, and naturally has his talisman to ward off bad luck. When Ross made his first appearance in the East he carried only one banjo. During his opening number a string snapped, putting the instrument out of commission and causing the player to flop as show folks express it. Immediately after the performance Ross hurried out and purchased a new banjo, and that evening he got over in great shape. Now he alternates between the two instruments as regularly as sun rises. One is used for flatnesses and the other for the evening performances.

IN THE GREENROOM.

In the last act of "The Greyhound" at the Boston Theatre, the Marconi wireless operator of the steamship reads a message which results in the arrest of two members of the confidence band. The detective who causes the arrest says the message is from "The Ear." Scores of inquiries from persons who have seen the play have been received in the mail at the box office asking the meaning of the expression. It is explained that, according to Messrs. Arnstrong and Almer, the authors, "The Eye" is the term by which the detective agency is known to persons of the criminal class

Noted Beauty Tells of Search for Apartment "in the Country"—Brookline.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

We met in the twilight—at that soft evening hour just between sunshine and electricity. Now, doesn't that sound romantic? But it wasn't—not a bit of it.

Meeting in the twilight is risky business, so we all fortified ourselves for the ordeal. I had a stout press agent for a prop, and Miss Ina Claire leaned upon her mother. None of us were taking any chances.

It had been suggested that Miss Claire was the most attractive girl on the stage and that at least 75 per cent of the beauty of "The Quaker Girl" was supplied by her demure little maid whose name you may see featured glaringly on the dead walls of the city. This rumor was only partly correct. Miss Claire is really 80 per cent of the show's beauty.

But we are drifting into personalities and that was not the object of the twilight meeting. It may have been twilight, but there certainly was no chance for romancing in the Touraine library—there was too much thick upholstery and heavy velvet carpet.

Apartment Hunting.

Naturally you expected the young woman to speak of her art, but her mind was on furnished apartments and that was as far as you could get for some time.

"We've been motoring—mother and I"—began Miss Claire, "and we've had a dreadful hunt for a furnished apartment out in the country. But it was quite useless."

"In the country?" I exclaimed.

"Yes," volunteered mother, "away out in the quiet country; in Brookline."

That was different.

As Miss Claire rambled on in her artless way, it suddenly came over me that it surely was an easy task to sit in front of her—and look. It required no fanciful imagination to understand why smart young millionaires enjoy "The Quaker Girl" and beg the privilege of sending her roses, bon bons and steam yachts. A smart young millionaire would indeed show poor taste if he had a surplus of motors and yachts and didn't seek to share them with this fascinating young woman.

But she was very businesslike, and to the untrained eye—mark you I say untrained eye—she was not romancing. It was her day for apartment seeking.

"You see," she went on, "mother and I, while exceedingly simple in our tastes, must have refinement, and you know it is fearfully hard to find real refinement in a rented apartment. Isn't that so, mother?"

"Indeed, yes," murmured the maternal guardian.

And Not Yet Nineteen.

"But your art," I ventured. "Here you are the most featured young woman on the stage and you are not yet two—"

"Not yet nineteen," she corrected. "Now, don't forget that. I am just eighteen years old and I've been on the stage fourteen years."

It was an old head on young shoulders—she didn't propose to grow up any faster than the actual movements of the calendar demanded.

It was a wisdom seldom discovered in one so young.

Naturally fourteen years on the stage would give even a demure Quaker girl an experienced view of life.

"Yes," she confided sweetly—with mother's approval, of course—"yes, I first went on the stage when I was four years old. It was in Washington. I had been taught how to dance and everybody said I was splendid."

It was pretty young to begin a professional career, I thought, and Miss Claire interpreted my double easily.

"Oh, I know you don't believe it, but I'll prove it to you," and she dispatched the faithful mother to regions above, whence she returned quickly with photographic proofs. I was forced to believe everything.

"And Ina showed real talent even at that early date," declared the admiring mother as she described how her daughter was one of the sweetest Queens of the May of her time.

Was Convent Bred.

"Then I went to a convent," explained Miss Claire, "where I suppose I absorbed the usual amount of modesty and good manners that are taught in such places."

So here was another convent girl who had rushed madly from the spirituance after a course of the entire civilized world, of the Six American Dancers, who made London society mourn at B. F. Keith's Theatre this week. Still another big feature will be Blanche Ring. Other acts will be Gold-smith and Hoppe, the Two Commercial Drummers, who combine comedy with music in the most interesting and entertaining fashion. Barry and Johns, a comedy trio trained troupe of intelligent canines, Tom Kyle and company, in "A Doctored Widow" and Cook, Clifton and Tyler, in a novel act called The Entertainer."

Gaiety Theatre.

Something entirely new and full of novelty is what is promised by its promoter, John G. Jermon in "The Gaiety Girls," which begins a week's engagement at the Gaiety Theatre tomorrow. The company does not come to Boston new, but enjoyed the reputation of being one of the best of its kind in vaudeville. This season everything is new, which means a great deal, and when you mention the name of Jermon it is a guarantee of its comedy, one is given a sure guarantee. His energy has placed him on the highest round of the ladder of burlesque comedy. He is assisted by Miss Clara Rackett, known all over the Eastern circuit as an artist of talent. The supporting company is of the best, while the olio contains surprises.

Majestic Theatre.

For theatregoers who like to give their senses a rousing good play, "The Million," the riotously funny farce that begins its fourth week at the Majestic Theatre tomorrow evening, stands by itself. From the rise of the first act curtain to the fall of the fourth the audience is kept in a state of semi-hysterical hilarity. Complication upon complication, each seeming more ludicrous than the preceding one follow with such rapidity and explosive effect of projectiles from a rapid fire gun.

Globe Theatre.

That this week's program at the Globe shall be even better than the one just ended many new features booking offices are scheduled for tomorrow's bill. Ergotti's Lilliputians, one of Europe's most novel and best acrobatic attractions, will head the bill. Another feature will be Al. Fearing the first half of the week will be the Burtons, a juggling company of note. Wilson and Wilson, vocalists of unusual ability; Aubrey and Fuller, the Ethopian Four and Leona May. Some of the most prominent of the week-end acts will be Maidel Morgan and company, Greenlee and Henry Pewitt and company, Sweeney and Rooney and Wilbur Sweetman. Amateurs will be added to the program on Tuesday night and on Wednesday and Friday night the Globe Comedy Store will be added to the regular program.

National Theatre.

For the coming week the National Theatre will present as its big feature one of the best musical comedy acts in vaudeville. George Choos will present Frank Deshon, supported by Stella Thomas, in "The Sultan." The music and lyrics are by Walter L. Rosenberg. A chorus of pretty girls in gorgeous costumes will support the company.

Another big attraction will be "The Cigar Girl" by Howard and Lawrence. This team is well known in vaudeville and their act has been popular all over the circuit. The remainder of the show will include Hanlon Dean and Hanlon, knock about comedians, Healy and Butler, two clever song books; Frank Malvese & Co. in a comedy sketch, Ward and Culhane, dancers, and George Wiekman, a clay modeler.

Plymouth Theatre.

William Hodge will begin the second week of his engagement at the Plymouth Theatre in "The Man From Home" tomorrow evening. There are few theatregoers who are not familiar with this play, which three seasons ago played to capacity houses at the Park for twenty-seven consecutive weeks. With both literary force and vitality, and a story rich in humor and delightful in romance, "The Man From Home" makes a strong appeal to every kind of amusement seeker. Mr. Hodge is again seen in the quaint and lovable character of the honest Indiana lawyer, a role in which he has won national renown.

Colonial Theatre.

"The Quaker Girl," which is now entering upon the second week of its engagement at the Colonial Theatre, has found Boston friendly to its charm. Since the opening, Labor Day evening, capacity audiences have witnessed the performance. Lionel Monckton's score, already well known to Boston as it has been played for two years now in cafes and concerts, has taken the music loving populace by storm and the dainty airs and swinging waltzes of "The Quaker Girl" are being sung and whistled everywhere.

Orpheum Theatre.

The feature at the Orpheum Theatre this week will be "The Love Specialist," a one act comedy playlet. This act will remain the entire week. Other entertainers will be Great Tallman, exhibition pedalpser; Quaker Girls, in a singing act; Danny Mann, the military baby; Hi Clere, xylophonist; and Ford and Hyde in a rural comedy sketch. "At Clifton Corners."

Park Theatre.

Rose Stahl has scored another success in "Maggie Pepper" at the Park Theatre, where large audiences have been laughing and crying with the department store girl through the past week. Miss Stahl's engagement at the Park is a limited one, for other cities are calling for the new play, and although it has been staged three months it remains a comparatively new places have had no opportunity to enjoy it.

Tremont Theatre.

"The Count of Luxembourg" is at the end of its stay at the Tremont Theatre. When it first came to Boston the announcement was positive that the Smoking could be for only three weeks, and that limit must be adhered to notwithstanding the marked success that has been made here on the occasion of the first production in America.

Waldron's Casino.

Joe Hortig, under whose direction the "Bewery Burlesquers" have been since their initial tour, has added new features this year. Too season's offering, The Field Clothes Man," a breezy musical farce, will come to the Casino tomorrow.

Hollis Street Theatre.

May Robson begins her second week at the Hollis Street Theatre tomorrow night in "A Night Out." As Grandmam, May Robson is delightfully comical, furnishing the audience with laugh after laugh, each of them spontaneous and all of them wholesome.

Grand Opera House.

Blanch Baird and her "Stageland" burlesquers will be the attraction this week at the Grand Opera House. Thursday night will be given over to wrestling fastened, and Friday night the amateurs will hold forth.

Boston Theatre.

"The Greyhound" remains at the Boston Theatre. Beginning with a suicide it dashes breathlessly into lively humor and winds up with a ghost and the cry of "Man overboard." It all happens on the high seas during a voyage from New York to Liverpool on the steamship Mauretania.

Howard Athenaeum.

The burlesque feature at the Howard Athenaeum this week will be "The Speedy Pacemakers." This company of girls is headed by Leslie Hunter, Margie Catlin and Mae Yair.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

Scenic Temple.

The regular season is in full swing at the Scenic Temple. The offerings of the coming week will be several attractive features. The photo-plays will be absolutely new to Boston.

Hub Theatre.

Tonight the usual two-hour Sunday night concert, consisting of select motion pictures and illustrated ballads, will be given at the Hub Theatre.

Durbar Pictures.

Indian princes by the score, elephants by the hundreds, camels by the thousands and soldiers and spectators numbering millions form the picturesque and ever living background to the crowning of King George and Queen Mary as Emperor and Empress of India in "The Durbar in Rhinemonte at Tremont Temple every glory of the pageant and ceremonials may be clearly observed.

Norumbega Park.

September at Norumbega Park has always been a month of large attendances and this season it is no exception. One never regrets a visit to the open air theatre with its musical comedies and vaudeville programs alternating each week as the traction. For the coming week there will be presented, every afternoon and evening a big array of vaudeville talent.

Paragon Park.

The Palm Garden at Paragon, which has remained open all the past week after the regular season of the park was closed will close for the season tonight. A fine well trained cabaret program is arranged which promises to prove eminently inviting.

Coming Events.

Vienna is to send another musical comedy success to Boston, and at the Tremont Theatre a week from Monday, A. H. Woods will present "The Woman-Haters' Club," which is well known from its long success in Europe.

* * *

At the Castle Square during the week of September 16 John Craig will produce Charles Klein's modern drama, "The Third Degree." In it Mr. Craig will appear as the lawyer and Miss Mary Young as the heroine. It was originally acted by Helen Ware.

* * *

Convict Ship.

Now in her sixth week of exhibition in Boston, the bid British convict ship "Success," which lies at Warren Bridge, near the North end, continues to be packing daily in popularity. People find this an ideal place, with its grim history, full of interest.

HODGE A BARNSTORMER.

Some Early Experiences of "The Man from Home."

William Hodge hasn't always been the star of a play of the importance of "The Man from Home." There was a time when Mr Hodge was engaged in that widening and enlarging experience known as "barnstorming," and there isn't any false pride in the Hodge makeup which prevents allusion to that period. Recently he recalled some of his struggles.

"Only once," said he, "was I really stranded, and that was in a little New York town several years ago. The stage had refused to be starved, and I and kindred bold spirits had taken a sporting flutter and hired the town hall for twenty dollars for a performance of 'East Lynne.' We didn't show up to rehearse, for there was exactly $19.60 in the house when all had been counted.

"We were feeling pretty blue I can tell you, and when the kinds-faced old gentleman who was the manager of the house, the janitor or sexton, approached we decided to ask him to help us with enough to get to the next town. We had got as far as to tell him we were without funds when he stopped us and left abruptly, saying he would see what could be done. He was gone three-quarters of an hour. When he returned he said:

"'Boys, it's all right. I couldn't settle this in the regular way because I ain't got a cent to pay. But the other trustees were willing to help when I explained the thing to them. You don't have to worry about that either forty cents.'"

CHANCE FOR OPERA SEATS.

The announcements for the forthcoming season at the Boston Opera House recently made by its director, Henry Russell, have had a marked effect, which is nowhere more noticeable than in the busy subscription department of the opera house. The announcements coupled with the fact that so many people are returning to town, are bringing a daily increasing number of applications for season tickets.

The opportunity is still afforded to obtain certain seats in the house at a reasonable reduction. This opportunity, of course, will cease when the opera season commences. The box office is open from 10 to 3.

ANOTHER budding playwright will tomorrow evening enjoy the nervousness that usually accompanies the first performance of his first play. The doubtful, thrilling moment will arrive when "The Wedding Journey" takes its initial plunge into the treacherous dramatic sea at the Shubert, where Arnold Daly will be seen in a new American comedy by John T. McIntyre. Mr. Daly believes "The Wedding Journey" is a sound proposition, as well as a safe enterprise, for his artistic tastes. At any rate, he seized Mr. McIntyre's play at its first reading and with that well-known munificence of his nature promised to make its author famous in a night. Tomorrow will be the night. While Mr. McIntyre is not known as a playwright, he has a good reputation as a Philadelphia newspaper man and a patron of the drama. H. H. Frazee, who is directing Mr. Daly's tour in this new comedy, is pinning great faith upon the Boston verdict of the play. "The Wedding Journey" was given time at the Shubert that originally belonged to "Over Night," and it was done to prepare the new production for entrance into Broadway. Mr. Daly has fond hopes for its future.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

MR. GULESIAN is dipping deep into the serious drama at the St. James this week, and is prepared for happy returns. For his second production at the new theatre he has selected "Thais," which, strangely enough, has never been given in dramatic form in Boston. That he expects agreeable results from his endeavor to supply important amusement is shown in the extensive preparations he has made for "Thais." During the week Mr. Gulesian's patrons may see the new company in surroundings that will demand close attention to the principles of acting. It is serious business for a stock organization to engage in a play of the character of "Thais," and if everything goes as well as Mr. Gulesian predicts, he will have taken his first definite step toward pronounced success for his Huntington avenue playhouse.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

WITH the departure of the "Over Night" company there moved away from the Shubert Theatre a young woman whose real ability as an actress was somewhat dimmed by an unimportant and inconspicuous role. Miss Emily Calloway was not required to particularly exert herself in "Over Night," although she did convince her audiences that Mr. Brady had not overlooked the importance of selecting an intelligent player for service in a rather obscure ingenue role. But Miss Calloway is not altogether an actress—she professes other claims to distinction. A few years ago she was at Wellesley College, doing her best to uphold the traditions that go with that sometimes frivolous occupation. But she was not frivolous. While the other girls were following mad social honors, Miss Calloway clung closely to her music and her literature, with the result that she graduated from college soundly equipped to meet any emergency that the call of art might demand. Her musical compositions, she was told, were meritorious, and her short stories spoke for themselves when she discovered that the leading monthlies were willing to pay for them at regular rates. The lure of the stage caught the young woman, however, and for three seasons she has made her other talents incidental to the drama. She confesses that her choice of professions has turned out happily.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

WHETHER it may be accepted as an honor, or merely because the producing managers look upon Boston as a rural centre sufficiently inconsequential to be used as a "trying out" place for new plays, the fact remains that local theatres are receiving more than their usual allotment of genuine premiere performances. We have already been privileged to see "The Count of Luxembourg" before its entrance to New York, and Arnold Daly will make his first bow to a discriminating public in "The Wedding Journey" at the Shubert tomorrow. We are also promised the American premiere of "The Woman Haters' Club," which A. L. Woods will send to the Tremont on September 16. If the New York managers continue at this pace for any length of time, we will feel safe in thinking that they really regard Boston as important theatrically as Allentown, Pa., and other points launching new plays upon a cold and relentless world.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

THE bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre last week was enlivened by one of the brightest, as well as most pretentious, musical acts that has ever played in that house. "A Persian Garden" served to introduce Kathryn Osterman and Louis Simon as a comedy pair worth attention. "A Persian Garden," like most musical comedies, was chiefly conspicuous for its unimportant material, but there was no escaping the good humor injected into it by Mr. Simon and Miss Osterman. Mr. Simon is a master of eccentric comedy—a man with a laugh in every gesture. He is plainly laughable at all times. Miss Osterman, too, exposed a nature free from gloom. She fairly bubbled with good cheer, and infected her audiences with it. "A Persian Garden" was designed to amuse, and it succeeded, but it was Mr. Simon and Miss Osterman who lifted it above the commonplace productions ordinarily presented for the same purpose.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

MR. CRAIG has found early reward at the Castle Square Theatre. "The Fortune Hunter," which had been planned for a single week's engagement, is forced into a second week by the demand of the Castle Square patrons. It is a joyous comedy, with many pretty touches that carry its story straight to an audience. Mr. Craig is not at all disturbed over the customary pessimism of election-year poverty. He has already overcome all suggestions of that nature.

ROSE STAHL has saved the gallery—she has put that section of the theatre back on the map. Many tears have been shed by anxious managers over the steady and consistent falling away in receipts for gallery seats. The loss of so much easy money—or rather what had once been easy money—has been bitter and heart-rending. In the meantime moving pictures kept right on drawing the crowds that once filled the now empty galleries. The subject of the vacant gallery has been seriously discussed by managers of first-class houses, and the situation had about settled itself into a complete surrender to moving pictures, when "Maggie Pepper" slipped into existence. It proved a lively tonic for the top of the house. All the Maggie Peppers of the big stores in New York and Chicago flocked to the theatre to see themselves in dramatic form—and most of them went to the gallery, where the prices for entertainment are not prohibitive. This has been repeated at the Park Theatre this week. The upstair business of "Maggie Pepper" has been enormous, and everyone concerned is happy. If you can take Miss Stahl seriously, and it is always safe to do so when she is away from the theatre, the presence of so many young girls in her audiences is distinctly to her liking. "I believe it is more to one's credit," she told me the other day, "to be able to interest and entertain the young woman who works for meagre wages, than it is to win the applause of the contented people who inhabit the $2 seats. The average working girl has so little opportunity for real pleasure that it does make me happy to find her enjoying 'Maggie Pepper.'" The first week of Miss Stahl's visit has brought ample evidence of her popularity with all classes of playgoers. While "Maggie Pepper" is not a great play, it has elements of attractiveness to those who like to see plain people on the stage. It is Miss Stahl herself, however, that gives the play its real distinction. Her Maggie Pepper is a woman worth meeting at any time.

High Time in Mountains for Belles of Autumn

As Autumn begins spilling its gold over New England hills the air begins to fill with that "fall feeling" which is the sublimation of all elixirs, society prim and ready for the life more abundant slips from the sheath of summer lethargy and is off to the hills for its annual "high time."

And be it known, no other time of all the year weaves so potent a spell about these same fashionables who for a time temporarily forget the world and all the worries thereof; these semi-burdened blase ones who at the bidding of Mother Nature in her most dominant mood shed the years with the conventions and out in the heart of the happy hills are "twenty again," buoyant and care-free.

Two of the handsomest of North Shore society girls, Miss Leslie Bradley and Miss Faith Simpkins, were among the bridesmaids at the wedding on Thursday of Miss Elizabeth Gorham Bacon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gorham Bacon of New York, to Dr. Truman Laurence Saunders, also of New York, which took place at the country home of the bride's parents, "Matakesa," Yarmouthport. The Rev. Julian K. Smyth of New York city, formerly of Roxbury, officiated. N. S. Simpkins, Jr., of Beverly Farms was one of the ushers.

Mrs. Meyer's Smart Party.

One of the most important functions given on Labor day in connection with the annual gymkhana of the Myopia Hunt Club was the party given by Mrs. George von L. Meyer at the Hamilton Town Hall. Supper was served and later dancing was enjoyed. It was one of the largest parties of the season and all the North Shore Summer colony was represented.

Mr. and Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, who have been entertaining so extensively this season, now have as their house guest at their Pride's Crossing estate Mrs. Shaw's sister, Miss Pemberton, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Mary E. T. Chapin of the Back Bay, who is so deeply interested in educational and uplifting work, is spending a few weeks at the Mount Washington Hotel, Bretton Woods, N. H., before beginning her Boston and New York work. Her Wednesday lectures at her home, No. 158 Newbury street, will begin early this month. Mrs. Chapin goes to New York every week-end to speak to large audiences at the Berkeley Theatre, Forty-fourth street, Sunday mornings, and to the newsboys Sunday evenings. Mrs. Chapin's work is well known as beneficent and constructive. She has spoken before many clubs, among them the Medico-Legal Society, of which she is a member, and is to address a meeting at Cooper Union.

Mrs. Joseph H. Singleton of No. 123 Humboldt avenue, Roxbury, has returned to her home after a two months' visit in Canada.

Harley M. Perkins, the Boston portrait artist, who has been summering at the Manchesters, Manchester-by-the-Sea, left the past week for the Canadian Rockies and Pacific Coast, where he will remain for a month. Later he will return and go to the coast of Maine to spend the month of October. Mr. Perkins' recent art exhibit on the North Shore was both a social and artistic success. He will return next season to Manchester.

Miss Katherine Dorr has returned to the Brownlands from a camping trip with friends. Miss Dorr with her sister, Miss Josephine Dorr, are two of the most interesting girls at the Brownlands this season. They are Philadelphia girls and are most popular in the exclusive Boston set.

Mid-September Wedding.

A mid-September wedding of much interest on the North Shore will be that of Miss Janet House, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. House, formerly of Texas, but more recently residents of New York, to Gordon Auchincloss, son of Mrs. Edgar B. Auchincloss of New York.

Miss House, with her parents, has only recently returned from a trip abroad, made especially for the purchase of her trousseau. The wedding is to take place on September 14 in St. James Episcopal Church at Beverly Farms.

Mr. Auchincloss is a Yale man, class of '08, and a graduate of the Harvard Law School, 1911.

Mr. and Mrs. House and their daughter are at present the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Tucker, Mrs. Tucker being the marriage was Miss Mona House, sister of Miss Janet House.

Miss Gertrude Amory, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harcourt Amory, who has been making a round of visits at Dark Harbor, Me., has just returned to her Summer home at Pride's Crossing.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Lowell and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Motley sailed on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse Tuesday from New York for Europe.

Dr. Vincent Y. Bowditch, who went abroad in May, returned Friday to his home in Beacon street.

MRS. A. ISELIN AS GRANDMOTHER'S PORTRAIT.

Miss Louisa Drexel of Beacon street, who went abroad in June, is expected home the middle of the month. Immediately upon arrival she will go to her Summer home in Beverly. During her absence Miss Drexel has spent the greater part of her time in Germany, where she has done much sketching.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Gray (Alice Burnham), who have been spending the Summer at Sands Point, L. I., have gone to the Adirondacks, where they will spend the Autumn.

Miss Julia Newbold, who is well known in Boston society, having visited her aunt, Mrs. Lucius M. Sargent, here many times, is to be one of the attendants at the marriage of Miss Aileen Osborne and Vanderbilt Webb, which is to be solemnized at Gardenson, N. Y., on September 14th. Mr. Webb is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Seward Webb.

The Misses Caroline and Margaret Meade of Winslow street, Brookline, have just returned from a visit to Newport, where they were registered at the Casino.

Lieutenant George S. Patton, Jr., and Mrs. Patton, who have been for the greater part of the Summer in Europe, have returned and are the guests of Mrs. Patton's parents, the Frederick Ayers, at their North Shore villa.

Of all the society women who [illegible] the best of the social life at Newport few are more interesting and attractive than Mrs. A. Iselin.

Mrs. Iselin is noted for her originality. Mrs. Iselin, as well as being a foremost hostess, is also one of the most beautiful of society matrons.

On Friday morning Dr. Edgar C. Abbott gave a reading of "Macbeth" at Grasmere, the Summer home of Mrs. R. M. Morse at Falmouth, for the benefit of the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children.

Mrs. Charles R. Lincoln and Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, the well known society women directors of the work of the Boston [illegible] and Flower Mission, have decided to make the last distribution of fruit and flowers at the Parker Memorial on Friday, Sept. 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Scott of Boston, who passed the Summer at St. Moritz, Switzerland, have returned and are now the guests of Mrs. Caroline V. Ladd in Newport.

The George J. Clapps, who passed the month of August in Ogunquit, Me., have returned to their home in Woburn.

Miss Mary E. A. McAleer and her sister have given up their home in Beacon street and have taken apartments at the Somerset.

Miss Edyth Degeon, who has been spending the Summer at Newport and Bar Harbor, sailed from New York on Wednesday for Europe where she will spend the Winter. Upon her return from abroad she will reside in Boston and is to take up again her studies in sculpture.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Storrow are at present guests at the Crawford House in the White Mountains. Mr. and Mrs. Storrow are among the most enthusiastic golfers there.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Codman, who were guests of Col. Charles Hayden on board his yacht at Newport, have returned to their country estate, [illegible]

"HAIR THAT GIVES FATHER TIME THE LAUGH!"

We are just about as old as we LOOK

People judge us, by the way we LOOK. The man or woman with grey hair is beginning to get in the "Old Timer's Class." This Twentieth Century does NOT want GREY hairs—it wants the energy of Youth. The big things are being done by the YOUNGER generation

There's a sort of "Has Been" look about those "Grey Hairs." There is always one to criticize and smile knowingly.

Father Time is a stern disciplinarian. Get the best of him. Give him the laugh. Do not be a "Has Been." It's unnecessary.

SIMPLE FORMULAS FOR HEALTH AND BEAUTY

MAKES THE HAIR GROW.—A very simple remedy for dandruff and one you can use the most-desired qualities of a genuine hair grower, is to first cut off about two ounces of the hair, then wash it thoroughly in one half pint of soft water, and when dry apply a drop or two of cocoanut oil, then adding one-half pint cold water. Use this every other day for a week it destroys dandruff and stops falling hair.

WHEN EYEBROWS ARE THIN.—Rubbing the eyebrows and eyelashes with forefinger makes them grow thick and long. Also use a little vaseline after rubbing it in well over with the forefinger. Eyebrows should be used not to get sour, previous to which they are brushed.

EXCELLENT EYE-REMEDY.—A tonic lotion for diseases of the eyes—Put crystals in a pint of cold water (a teaspoonful to a pint) and let dissolve. Wash eyes well. It is extremely soothing and will not smart.

FACE POWDER OUT OF DATE.—Modern face powder is a woman's confidence. Instead, a simple lotion, made by dissolving one ounce of saxonax in one-half pint witch hazel or bay water and after shaving smoothing gycerine is used, which does not show. Wash away the surplus lotion takes away that shiny appearance, leaves the skin clear, smooth and velvety. It is a splendid preparation for sunburn, freckles and other facial blemishes.

OLD-FASHIONED TONIC.—Impurities in the blood often cause one to feel drowsy, dull and tired. Here is a tonic. The best remedy for this condition is an effervescing mineral water, which is made at home at small cost, as follows: Dissolve one dram of Epsom salts and one ounce Sardona in one half pint alcohol and two drams each of lithia water and simple syrup. Take a tablespoonful before eating. This will clear the skin, purify the blood, regulates the liver and bowels and gives a straight, clear eye. This remedy will clear the skin of sallowness and blotches when put one in good shape for winter.

BLEACHING THE COMPLEXION.—Wonderful in its effects in clearing, smoothing and beautifying the complexion is cream-of-almond. Made by stirring together and allowing to stand overnight one ounce bitter almonds, one pounded, two teaspoonfuls glycerine and one-half pint good rose water. Two drams less preparation smoothes out wrinkles and hollow places, leaves the skin soft as a baby and is splendid for removing tan freckles and other skin discolorations. It reduces the size of large pores and leaves the skin soft, smooth and velvety.

MAKES CLEAN NAILS.—No other brand cleanses nails like soap and scalp so thoroughly and quickly as a teaspoonful of cardox dissolved in a cup of hot water. It takes out all dandruff at first use, leaves hair fluffy and dries quickly without streaking or leaving dull or sticky look. Hair will feel fresher and cleaner than ever before, and one will be very bright soft and fluffy. Those who once try it wonderful invigorating shampoo will never again use soap or any other shampoo in any form.

SAFE FAT REDUCER.—To cut down weight without laboring one a meal take before each meal a tablespoonful of the following: Dissolve four ounces parmelia in one and one-half pints hot water and strain when cool. Also, a simple exercise every morning will reduce weight rapidly while having all other parts such as a wicked, Baby skin. Dieting and vigorous exercising are unnecessary.

WHEN HAIRY GROWTH IS APPEARING.—Many women are needlessly troubled and worry is excellent to remove hair or fuzz from the face, neck or arms. After the paste is on two or three minutes wash off and the hair disappears. This treatment is painless and after a few applications it will be found to be free from spot or blemish.

PEPS. SWEETENED BUST.—Dissolve one and one-half cupfuls sugar in a little water and add one ounce powder. Take two teaspoonfuls at meal time. This is the famous Yvonne treatment for scrawniness and underdevelopment of bust. Because of its stimulating action on the starved tissues and glands it soon rounds out the figure, making plump and beautiful.

SURELY TAKE "SYRUP OF FIGS" IF HEADACHY, BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

Sweetens your stomach, clears your head and thoroughly cleanses your liver and 30 feet of Bowels of sour bile, foul gases and clogged-up waste.

All those days when you feel miserable, headache, bilious and dull are due to sluggish liver and sluggish bowels. The days when your stomach is sour and full of gas, when you have indigestion; the nights when your nerves twitch and you are restless and can't sleep could be avoided with a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs. Don't let foolish to be distressed when there is such a pleasant way to overcome it?

Give your inactive liver and ten yards of waste-clogged bowels a thorough cleansing this time. Put an end to constipation

Take a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs tonight, sure, and just see for yourself by morning how gently but thoroughly all the sour bile, undigested fermenting food and clogged-up waste matter is passed on and out of your system—no nausea—no griping —no weakness.

You simply can't have your liver inactive and your thirty feet of bowels full of poisons and decaying waste mater and feel well. The need of a laxative is a natural need, but with delicious Syrup of Figs you are not drugging yourself. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot injure.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." Refuse, with scorn, any of the so-called Fig Syrup imitations. They are meant to deceive you. Look on the label. The genuine, old reliable, bears the name, California Fig Syrup Company.

Hull's Summer Folks Can't Get Away

HULL'S Summer folks are always loath to leave their homes on the Hill and around Windmill Point, and especially those who include young people in their households. The opening of the schools the middle of the week will cause a small exodus, but many of the families will send the youthful members by the boat until the end of the month.

Mrs. George Cross, who is one of the leaders of the nation set, has entertained extensively this season and was of the numerous hostesses over the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Nason are entertaining a large family party at their Windmill Point home.

Passing the last days of the season are Mr. and Mrs. George O'Connell of Boston, who have been missed from the affairs of the younger married set along shore.

Sullivans Entertained.

Charles Bacon, Miss Belle Bacon and the youthful Miss May Bacon are to remain at Hull for the last weeks of the season. They seldom close their house until October when which their Boston house is opened.

DUXBURY

Smelting time has arrived, and the ever fascinating pursuit of the finny tribe will occupy the stags from now on with the gunning, the open season for which is officially on. Smelting is more universally popular, however, for the combination of boating and the catching of fish is one of the same trip is a delightful combination, and one which appeals in a high degree to the feminine mind as to the masculine.

Recent guests have included the attractive Miss Allen Hale, who has been a house guest for a short stay. She will remain over the holiday and will then go to the metropolitan district for the latter month of September.

Mrs. Otis Delano of Somerville is passing the late Summer at the village

Summer cottagers include Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Harwood of Newton, who have been at the Train cottage for a long visit

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rogerson of Milton are visiting at Duxbury for several weeks, taking a cottage for their outing

At the Russell cottage for the remaining Summer are Mr and Mrs. Albert E. Ponds of Brookline and their family

Duxbury guests for the holiday include Miss Georgiana Moore, who has been a frequent guest during the Summer

Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Burrell and Miss Ida Burrell of Brookline have joined the vacationists at Duxbury, where they have a cottage.

Miss Edith C. Richardson is among those sojourning over the week-end at this resort.

Brookline cottagers at Powder Point include Mr. and Mrs. George Benedict, who are entertaining extensively over the late season.

Prominent among the youthful set at Powder Point is Miss Katharine Wing, who has been among the belles of this section of the shore during her season sojourn.

Some members of the social set who were prominent at the Newport horse show, the best exhibition the resort has seen in years and which was attended by exceptionally large throngs. May Ladenburg, mounted on Corcus, taking a high hurdle, is seen at the bottom.

Active Days in Northern Resorts

WHITE MOUNTAINS, N. H., Sept. 7.—Mr and Mrs Norman de M. Whitehouse, in company of Mrs. Ralph Ellis, Fred Hale and H. von Bulow of Germany motored up this week from Newport and spent a day at the Intervale House going on from there to Bretton Woods.

The latest news received by her friends from Mrs. Joseph Stickney tells of her entertainment at house parties in Ireland, where she went following her London season. Mrs. Stickney is expected to arrive at the Mt. Washington Hotel at Bretton Woods some time this month for the Autumn season and will doubtless entertain much, as usual, and spend much time in the saddle, as she is devoted to riding.

Attorney-General George W. Wickersham, who is at the Mt. Washington in company of Mrs. Wickersham, started this week to spend an hour or two daily in the saddle and is also playing golf.

Miss A. J. Maxwell of Rockville, Md., was met with a great demonstration on her arrival by the New York train. Messrs. J. N. Conyngham and George B. Dyer, heading a large circle of her late state friends, arranged a parade for her honor. She was met at the station by a large number of guests and escorted to her rest in a decorated coach, led by four horses, these in turn led by J. N. Conyngham, following a number of cowboys on trail ponies and outriders including several Bretton Woods young people on horseback.

Mrs. Morris K. Jesup has returned at the Profile House from Bar Harbor for September. Mr and Mrs. Henry K. Metlen have been joined by their daughter, Mrs Wendell. Mrs. J. M. Cornell received at her cottage on Tuesday. The Edward White have closed their cottage at the Profile and returned to town, but Mr and Mrs. David P. Kimball will remain through September. Former Governor Dingley played golf daily at the Profile Golf Club during his stay and gave a silver and glass decanter for one of the handicap golf events.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Nelson Parker of the Hotel Waumbek, who have been at the Profile for some time have gone to the Mount Washington at Bretton Woods.

Miss Isabel Florence has been joined at the Fabyan House by the talented dancer, Roberts, who is the latest Boston girl to find fame before the footlights and who will dance a 40-weeks' engagement in the South circuit.

Mr. and Mrs F. C. Pope of Milton have arrived at the Mountain View House at Whitefield where there are several events on, including a coaching party on Thursday to the Country Fair at Lancaster. The management of the Mountain View House offers a superb silver cup as a prize for the season's lowest score on the links of the Mountain View Golf Club.

BEACH BLUFF

The regular Autumn moving day, the morning after Labor Day, fails to make any impression on the residents of Beach Bluff, chiefly for the reason that the majority of the Summer cottagers own their homes, and it is just a pleasant little ride from the city to the seaside resort, both of which are kept in constant residence. Then, too, the number of permanent cottagers is increasing, and the exodus of September grows smaller each year.

Among the additions to the permanent colony this year are Mr and Mrs. Charles B. Price. Tory are of the old Salem family, and early in the season took the former Daniel H. Lane cottage, which they rebuilt into a beautiful home. They are located here for the year round.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Parsons will remain for some time, enjoying the country along the North Shore during the Autumn. Mr. Parsons is especially fond of driving and brought down many of the most beautiful horses in his stables.

Mrs. William M. Hunting, who is one of the leading hostesses of the younger married set at the Bluffs, has started the fall festivities, with one of her dinners she has not been so prominent this season on account of family mourning.

Mr and Mrs. John Craig, who have made their permanent home for several seasons are enjoying the frequent respite from their works, which the quite quiet of this resort offers.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Preston are to follow their usual custom of remaining for the autumn, where their estate is quite as beautiful as during the early Summer. Their gardens are then filled with flaming flowers and wonderful displays of Autumn foliage.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hitchcock and their son, James Hitchcock, are planning travelling on the continent during most of the Summer, are established at the shore for a brief stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson of Boston were among the recent visitors, being entertained by members of the cottage colony.

Mr. and Mrs R D. Fox, who have recently returned from a motor tour of the Northern, will remain at their cottage for a short period.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Dunn of Springfield and Miss Dunn are among the recent guests at the Bluff, where they registered at the Preston.

F. H. Caufield and Miss J. Caufield of Boston are sojourning along shore for a few weeks.

Mr and Mrs. I. N. Maynard, accompanied by E. T. Maynard, were included among the motorists of the North Shore over the holiday.

Mr and Mrs. W. J. Follen and their family were registered at the Preston for the late Summer.

Boston visitors at Beach Bluff include Mrs. Mary L. Cole and Miss Mary I. Weis.

Mrs. Harriet E. Browne has been renewing acquaintances of former Summers during her recent stay at the Preston.

SWAMPSCOTT

Mr and Mrs. Timothy Remick who are enthusiastic devotees of Swampscott, are to remain here for some weeks yet, enjoying the rides along the shore to Gloucester during the Autumn more than during the mid-Summer period.

News has been received from Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Earle, who left this resort for a trip to the mountains that they are enjoying the sojourn there, and will make an extended visit. Mrs. Earle was extremely popular during her stay at Swampscott, and no doubt is as much or a leader and favorite there as when she was here.

Prominent visitors of the motor coterie include Mr and Mrs J. H. Purdy, who stopped over at many of the North Shore resorts on their trip. After leaving here they made the trip to the mountains, where they are to remain for a long period.

Late guests include Mrs R S Williams, Mrs. W Myers and Mrs. Robert Williams, who are making their headquarters at the New Ocean House.

Mrs James B Perkins and Miss Bessie Perkins are of the Fall sojourners, being motor enthusiasts and passing most of their leisure in the country about the North Shore.

Mrs. Charles H Bond, whose hospitality includes so many distinguished members of society, has entertained extensively of late. She and her daughters, Miss Mildred and Miss Edith Bond, gather about them not only celebrities of the social world but also the prominent members of the musical, political and diplomatic circles and their home resembles the fashionable salons of France. Guests of the Summer included Dr and Mrs. Ferrara of Havana, who were the guests of President and Mrs. Taft early in the season at Washington. Dr. Ferrara was invited to speak before the House of Representatives quite an unusual proceeding. He is speaker of the Cuban House of Congress and professor of international law at the university.

Motor visitors include Mrs. May Alden Ward of Boston, one of the best known club women of America. She has been staying with Professor and Miss Ward at Manchester, but is a frequent caller at the homes of her many friends at Swampscott, where she Summered a few seasons ago.

Mrs. Eugene W Ong has continued her series of hospitalities at her shore cottage. She has been one of the active members of the Tedesco set this season and in addition to her home affairs has presided over numerous select gatherings at the Club.

Mr and Mrs William J Mixter were of those entertaining over the week-end, being part of the large family settlement at this resort.

Mr and Mrs. Ames Rogers Little are prominent among the younger married set, but as yet are not seen frequently in society the family mourning preventing them from taking an active part in affairs.

SCITUATE

The Autumn season was started by the Rivermoor Improvement Association of Scituate, which gave a large clambake, including yellow corn and lobsters in the menu on the beach. The association entertained about sixty-five guests, many of the cottagers having invited special guests for the affair. The guests included Mr and Mrs. William Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Brewer, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wescott, Nicholas Biddle, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Reed.

Visitor-along this shore number Mr and Mrs. B F Martin of Winchester, Mr. and Mrs Z E. Martin of Chicago and Miss Alice Morton who were motoring the length of the South Shore.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Cary of East Orange are registered at the Kent for the remaining days of the season.

Mr and Mrs W D Thompson and their daughter Miss Elizabeth Thompson are sojourning at this resort for the week end. They are included among the Boston guests.

Dr. and Mrs. L. Mendel Golden of Dorchester have joined the shore-term tour lists at this resort.

Many of the Scituate sojourners were guests at the reception of Mr. and Mrs. Perley Phelps, who were married at the Summer home of H. S. Drew Mrs. Phelps was formerly Miss Virginia Perry of West Somerville and the sister-in-law of Mr. Drew. The attendants were Miss Beth Gilchrist, little Miss Louise Drew and Chandler Drew, who were assisted by Leonard Phelps, the brother of the groom.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Phelps started for Seattle, where they are to make their home and from which place Mr. Phelps came for the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Bullinger and R. E. Bullinger, their son, have registered for the late season at the hent.

Mrs. W. C. Remichrett and Miss Mary Heinstreet are among the holiday guests, registering at the Kent

Mrs. Hall Hager and Robert Hager, her son, are among the Boston folks to arrive for the remaining days of the Summer.

Mrs. L. de Cornu and her daughter Miss Catherine de Cornis, have arrived for a long visit at this resort.

Additions to the Summer contingent include A. B. Krueger and his family, who have come from New Bedford for the month of September.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Murphy of Lowell accompanied by their son, Robert Murphy are registered here until after the holiday.

Theron Walker of Fall River has returned from camp at Buzzard's Bay and is now the guest of his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Walker.

Miss Lucy Lee of Brookline was the guest of Mrs. Edward Budd a during the week end at their cottage on the Third Cliff.

Mrs. F. W. Mosher of Niagara Falls has been entertaining her sister, Miss Helen Morse of Michigan during the past week.

Miss Emma Hanson, of Dorchester, has returned home after a short stay with the Misses Helen and Marguerite McVey, also of Dorchester.

Mrs. John Chatwick and her daughter, Laura, have returned to their home in Holyoke after a season's stay at the Bilon cottage on the third Cliff.

William McKeyer and family have returned to their home in Cambridge after a season's stay at their cottage on Pegsty Beach.

Mrs Phillip W. Carter beat Mrs. Stuart Read in a strenuous tennis game, Wednesday afternoon during the community week. Mrs Courbeda G Mitten will compete with Mrs. Ralph L. Steeves.

Miss Mariam Tyrus of Dorchester is the guest of Miss Susie Welch of Dorchester, at the Maples cottage.

The Misses Helen and Marguerite McVey and brothers will prolong their stay at the Barry cottage for two weeks, when they will return to their home in Dorchester.

Among others at the Kent over the holiday are Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Adams of Newton Highlands, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Sullivan of Dorchester and Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Spooner of Malden, Mass.

Cohasset's Set Holds Many Events

COHASSET'S Summer folks are to celebrate the ushering in of the Autumn with a series of house parties and private affairs. These are chiefly family gatherings and since the original families that came to the resort have intermarried, a few visitors draw many of the leading households into the festive circle and make the guest in one family the visitor to the entire colony.

Among the prominent hostesses are Mrs Eugene N. Foss, whose hospitality is extensive; Mrs. John Lewis Bremer, Mrs. A. S. Bigelow, Mrs. Henry DeFord, Mrs George Sagendorph, Mrs. William Boden, Mrs. Ralph S. Williams, Mrs. R. F. McElwain, Mrs. J. F. Richardson and Mrs. W. D. Mandell.

Mr. and Mrs. John Seymour are among the Southern guests stopping over at this resort

Events include the afternoon tea given at the home of Mrs. George Wills, one of the most charming members of the matron coterie. She is a native of Holland, most attractive and entertaining frequently at her Summer residence Mrs Wills returned not long ago from her native country, where she went last Winter.

Mrs. F. W. Fair is also included among those presiding over affairs of note. She is of the North Cohasset settlement and has been to the fore in the bridge and luncheon events during the Summer.

Sojourners over the week-end include Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Laurie, with their niece, Miss Estelle Laurie, who have made the trip from Maine by motor. They are to include the South Shore and Cape before returning

Miss Edna Hitchins and Miss Marie Hayes are staying over at New Brunswick for a short outing, after which they will return to Northampton for the Fall term at Smith.

Fisher Folks Rushing to Nantasket

FISHERMEN are in their glory and the Summer maid and the Summer man are quite forgotten in the glee and energy displayed by the city fisherfolk, who come to Nantasket in throngs for a day with their bait and hook. The bay is an ever productive ground for these delicious fish and if the present weather holds they will bite freely. From now on the old-fashioned dory will be the popular craft, and the racing yacht and pleasure sloop will be forced into second place.

Olcott C. Colt, who has been a guest for several weeks, has gone to Kansas City for a visit. He will return to this beach later for a stay with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reynolds at their Rockland Park cottage.

Mr. and Mrs E. N Savage of Cambridge are included among the recent additions to the week-end coterie

Passing the day at Nantasket during the week were Miss Margaret N. Rose and Harry R. Rose of Boston. They made the trip by motor.

Mr. and Mrs. F W. McGettrick, who have been at the Rockland House for a long vacation, prolonged their visit for the late Summer. Mr. McGettrick was formerly Assistant District Attorney and numbers many friends at this resort. They were accompanied by their family

Mr. and Mrs. M J Curran are entertaining a number of guests at their cottage for the week-end.

Come from Bridgewater.

Recent visitors include Miss Jessie and Miss Cora Prunier and Miss Mary and Miss Margaret Cosgrove of Bridgewater, who were guests for the day

The Misses Mary Nolan of Whitman has been passing her vacation at this resort, where she was entertained by cottage friends.

Mr and Mrs. A. Garside and Miss Mary Garside were among the recently registered guests.

James W. Burke and Miss Mary Burke are included among the Worcester visitors registered at Nantasket for the late Summer

Among the recent sojourners at Nantasket are Dr. and Mrs. J. Huse of Springfield, who had with them Miss Katherine Huse, Miss Helen Keenan and Miss Julia A. Downey

Recent visitors include Mr. and Mrs. A W. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. James F. Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E Hollis of Brookline are entertaining extensively at their Kenberma cottage.

Oscar Frederickson of Quincy, has added two new houses to his holdings on Hampton Hill, where he has been passing the Summer. Mr. Frederickson has the record for globe trotting at this shore, having gone several times around the world, and journeyed into many of the out-of-the-way corners of the earth, as noted by the traveler

To Prolong Season.

George A. Fitzgerald of Boston is among those prolonging their season, keeping his house at Hampton open for the Fall.

Mrs. Mary Marshall is to join the Brockton cottagers at Sagamore, where she has built a new home

Charles Freer and his family are among the Winthrop sojourners at Hampton Hill, where he has recently finished a cottage.

Mrs. Mary Marshall is to join the Rockland Park for the next season are Webster Mitchell of Hull and T. Monroe Murphy of Roxbury; on Sagamore Hill bungalows are being constructed for P. A. Leonard of Hopkinton, Frank Alger of Hanover and William Mahoney of South Braintree

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Alger of Rockland are to occupy the Strawberry Hill cottage next season, at which place they are building an attractive bungalow

The Boston Sunday American Will Pay $40,000 to Its Readers for Work in Pushing Its Circulation to the Half Million Mark

Few people live in the great territory of New England who would not consider $10,000 in cash a comfortable fortune. But few people in the section referred to will ever accumulate that much money or even expect to do so.

So, that if we were to impart the information to you, the MAN, WOMAN, BOY OR GIRL WHO IS READING THIS AT THE PRESENT MOMENT, just how you may EARN $10,000 IN CASH, you would consider that the most interesting and important bit of information you had received in a long time, if not in your whole life—now, wouldn't you?

The purpose of this article is not only to tell you just that very thing but much MORE THAN THAT—how the readers of the Sunday AMERICAN may earn $40,000 in cash and prizes in return for work that may be done with comparatively little effort for the magnificent return.

Elsewhere on this page you will find the details of this remarkable and alluring offer. It will probably only be necessary here to WHET YOUR APPETITE with the fact that at the top of the proposition are these facts:

ONE PERSON MAY EARN $10,000 IN CASH.

FIVE OTHERS MAY EACH EARN $1,000 IN CASH

AND THE WHOLE OF THE $40,000 IN THE STUPENDOUS OFFER IS AVAILABLE TO THOSE WHO WILL MAKE AN EARNEST, SINCERE EFFORT TO OBTAIN IT.

The Sunday AMERICAN, of course, is not spending this immense sum of money without expecting a compensating return. But this newspaper is willing to expend this amount to attain a laudable ambition—THE SWELLING OF THE SUNDAY AMERICAN CIRCULATION TO THE HALF MILLION MARK!

This is not by any means an impossible task, or even a very difficult one, IF ALL OF THE READERS OF THE PAPER JOIN HANDS IN THE WORK.

Remember, you are to be paid for the work, and paid well. In other words, the Sunday AMERICAN, in a way, takes its readers into its employment for the accomplishment of this task.

The circulation of the Sunday AMERICAN is 400,000 now, many thousands more than any other Boston or New England Sunday newspaper. All that has to be done is to add 25 per cent. to this figure WITH THE CHANCE OF BEING PAID $10,000 IN CASH FOR YOUR EFFORTS.

It is conceded that the Sunday AMERICAN, New England's youngest newspaper, IS ITS BEST. It is not necessary to recite here the SUPERIOR news, special features and pictures that make of this the HIGHEST CLASS and the FINEST QUALITY newspaper published in New England.

It is for that reason that a circulation of 500,000 is not a dream, but a reality of the near future.

Do not forget the pay—$10,000 in cash for ONE and $40,000 in cash and prizes for ALL of the winners in the 500,000 circulation feat!

Rules for the Contest

This contest is open to every man, woman and child in New England, irrespective of age, except employes of the AMERICAN and their families.

All contestants must be legal residents of New England, and must be regularly enrolled on the enrollment ballot which appears daily in the AMERICAN.

The first ENROLLMENT BALLOT received before September 22 will count for 1,000 votes.

Vote coupons from the daily or Sunday AMERICAN will count in this contest. One vote coupon will appear in each issue of the AMERICAN (daily and Sunday) during the life of this contest. Each vote coupon in the daily AMERICAN will be good for 5 votes. Each vote coupon in the Sunday AMERICAN will be good for 25 votes.

The one who receives the largest number of votes, irrespective of districts, will be awarded the capital prize.

The ones who receive the largest number of votes in each district will be awarded the prizes as scheduled. In the event of total votes for any contestants who win being tied, similar prizes will be given to each winner so tied.

Each vote coupon will be good for two weeks from the date printed in the AMERICAN and valueless after two weeks.

The contest will begin September 22, 1912, and will end at 10 p. m. Friday, February 28, 1912.

A vote credit will be allowed for subscriptions turned in for the Sunday AMERICAN (subscriptions to the daily AMERICAN will not be received).

No Sunday subscriptions for less than six months' period will be received.

The AMERICAN will not be responsible for any subscriptions sent in through the mails in any form other than postoffice money order, express order or certified check. Cash sent through the mails will be sent at the risk of the person sending it. You do not have to collect subscriptions in advance, but as an evidence of good faith each Sunday AMERICAN subscription turned in must be accompanied by a small cash GUARANTEE payment as follows:

LENGTH OF SUBSCRIPTION.	GUARANTEE REQUIRED.	VOTE CREDIT.
6 Months	25 Cents	1,500
12 Months	50 Cents	3,500
36 Months	100 Cents	7,500

Votes cannot be transferred from one contestant to another after receipt of same by the AMERICAN.

Vote coupons should be tied together in bundles of 100, keeping the 5-vote coupons separate from the 25-vote coupons. All contestants are requested to use rubber stamp containing contestant's name and address and district number. Only the top three or four coupons in each bundle of 100 need be stamped. Votes should be sent in one bundle, with contestant's name and address and district number and the total number of coupons said to be contained in package marked on the outside of the wrapper.

The AMERICAN reserves the right to amend these rules and conditions from time to time, if it may seem necessary, in order to protect all contestants from any possible contingency which may arise.

The Contest Editor will decide all disputed questions carefully and in good faith, and his decisions shall be final and conclusive.

PLANS SHAPE WELL FOR COLUMBUS DAY

Municipal Committee Makes Progress Preparing for Day of Honor to Discoverer.

ALL CITIZENS ARE INVITED

Military, Naval and Civic Features to Be Finest in City's History.

The military, naval and civic parade to be held in Boston on Columbus Day, October 12, promises to be the largest State holiday procession that has ever marched through the city's streets.

The celebration takes on this year an official character and is to be held entirely under the auspices of the city.

Every organization within Boston's confines is officially invited to be represented in the line of parade. It will be a magnificent march by the blended citizenship of this great cosmopolitan centre.

All plans are being laid along lines of military system, so that when Columbus Day arrives every man shall know his place and every contingent should march to its allotted rendezvous.

The parade will start at 12 noon. It is estimated that the column will be able to pass a given point long before darkness sets in. Between 50,000 and 60,000 men will be in line.

The committee on parade will meet next Tuesday evening, and on Wednesday evening the Columbus Day celebration committee will meet. At both meetings it is hoped large progress shall be reported.

The Italian societies will be organized much on the same plan as last year, when they bore their part in a most satisfactory manner. Their prize float was the most artistic in the entire procession.

The War and Navy Departments at Washington are being urged to give to the parade as large a detail of coast artillerymen, bluejackets and marines as can be spared. There is hope that the War Department may order the famous cavalry regiment at Fort Ethan Allen in Vermont to come to Boston for Columbus Day. This regiment is considered one of the finest in the United States service.

The citizens' committee is hopeful that Governor Foss order the State militia to mobilize in Boston on October 12. There has not been a State mobilization in Boston for several years. It is understood that the State militia officers not only approve but are anxious for such an order. The Governor, it is understood, has the matter under consideration.

Even if there should be no mobilization many of the State militia bodies will march on invitation of the committee. These would include the First Corps of Cadets, the Roxbury Horse Guards, the Lancers, and the First and Ninth Regiments.

Officers of civic organizations who accept the committee's invitation to join the parade are requested to send all necessary facts, as to numbers and bands, without delay to John F. Dever, director of public celebrations, at City Hall.

BOSTON SENDS GOOD MEN.

Zealous Students of Social Problems to Join in Washington.

Massachusetts will be well represented in the National Conference of Catholic Charities to be held at Washington, September 22, to September 25. In the section of the conference devoted to "Delinquent Children" the chairman will be Edwin Mulready of the Massachusetts Probation Commission. The discussions will be opened by Hon. Charles A. de Courcy, justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial bench.

In the section on "Needy Families" Dr. John A. Hornig, president of the St. Vincent de Paul Society of Boston, will speak on "The Chronic Sick in Their Homes" and will also read a paper on "The Parish Nurse."

Others representing Boston will be the Rev. M. J. Scanlan of the Cathedral clergy, Miss Josephine Bleakie, James E. Fee, David L. Tully and Robert M. Herrick.

The sessions will be held at the Catholic University. Cardinal Gibbons will preside over the main body.

Fr. Connolly Still Ill.

Owing to the continued illness of Rev. Joseph V. Connolly of the Immaculate Conception Church of Malden, Rev. John W. Spencer of Maplewood has been temporarily assigned as curate in his place. Rev. Father Spencer was ordained two years ago. He was first assigned to St. Catherine's Church of Charlestown and was later acting pastor at Saxonville.

Roll Call Wednesday.

A roll call and identification meeting of Father Sheehy Council, M. C. O. F., will be held at Holy Family school hall, Springfield, on Wednesday evening. Timothy J. Collins, H. J. C.; Joseph T. Brennan, H. I. S., and Charles A. Allis, D. H. C. R., will be guests of the court.

Leaders to Read Papers.

Miss Catherine G. Fitzgerald, past chief ranger of St. Valerian Court; Edward J. Stanton, past chief ranger of American Court, and Daniel A. Cronin, past high chief ranger, will read papers at the annual conference of deputy high chief rangers of the M. C. O. F. to be held at the American House September 15.

Will Speak at Franklin.

At the twelfth anniversary banquet of Griffin Court, M. C. O. F., to be held in the Morse Opera House, Franklin, addresses will be delivered by Captain Denis F. O'Sullivan, P. H. C. R.; Joseph T. Brennan, H. J. S., and Michael E. Small, D. H. C. R. A musical and literary entertainment will follow.

Keen Interest in Redmond's Coming

Signs That Tremont Temple Cannot Hold Tithe of Home Rule's Friends.

William H. K. Redmond, M. P., who is coming to Boston to speak in Tremont Temple on October 2, will be given a magnificent reception by the friends and supporters of the cause of Irish home rule. Meetings of preparation for his coming are being held weekly, and at each gathering enthusiasm grows in the interest of the eloquent representative from Ireland.

There is already a brisk demand for tickets to the Tremont Temple meeting. Every branch of the United Irish Leagues in Boston, the Irish County Clubs, the Irish National Foresters and kindred organizations have already secured places in the auditorium. It is expected that every seat will be taken before the present week expires. The committee is considering the possible need of a hall or theatre for an overflow meeting.

More than 1,500 tickets have already been taken out at the committee meetings. As many more will be spoken for at the meeting of Boston Central Branch of the United Irish League to be held at the American House next Tuesday evening.

Boston's delegation to the national convention of the league to be held in Philadelphia September 23, 24 and 25, will be as large and as representative as any that has answered to the name of Massachusetts since the home rule struggle began.

SAYS HE IS WATERFORD.

Sandwich Man in London Declares He Is a Marquis.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—An interesting individual has just turned up in the streets of the busiest section of the city. Dressed in frock coat and tall hat, he paraded Fleet street yesterday carrying sandwich boards on both of which was painted:

"I am the Sixth Marquis of Waterford.

I do this to forward my cause and obtain justice."

The man claims to be a son of the fifth Marquis of Waterford, who committed suicide in 1895. He says that he remembers how as a youngster he used to drive in a carriage with his nurse to the London house of the Marquis and that his father was always solicitous for his being well cared for.

After the death of his father, as he claims him to be, he was ill treated and disowned. Then someone told him to do the sandwich board act as a good means of raising money to fight for his title. He took the advice and is pursuing his rather hopeless mission.

The record of the Beresford family is a curious tale of tragic fate. Some of its leading incidents are as follows:

The third Marquis of Waterford was killed at the age of forty-eight by a fall from a horse.

The fifth Marquis shot himself.

The sixth Marquis was found drowned in the River Clodagh, near the family seat at Carrigahorne, last December.

Lord Delavel Beresford was killed in a railway accident in Texas.

Captain De la Poer Beresford was killed at Aldershot whilst attempting to stop a runaway.

Should the sandwich man make good on his claims, he might win a few honest pennies, after he gets the title, by selling a poet to write another stanza to the famous ballad, "Lord Waterford Is Dead Says the Man Van Vechr."

If the restored Lord has any vocal gifts he could be a top-liner at the Olympia or Empire for a whole season.

Battle for Home Rule Has Europe's Eyes

IRELAND'S PARLIAMENT AS IT LOOKED IN DAYS OF THE BRILLIANT PAST

Session of early Irish House of Lords; Marquis of Ormond presiding. Scene in the last parliament on College Green on the night of the "Great Betrayal."

Professor Swift MacNeill, Scholar and Historian, Shows That From Earliest Days Ireland Had Her Own Parliament.

By C. O'CONNELL GALVIN.

Interest in the progress of the home rule battle is growing wider and deeper all over Europe. This is shown by increased attention in the cause of Ireland and the facts of her history, on the part of the editors of prominent magazines and illustrated weeklies of London, Paris and Berlin. Even in high class pictorial publication of Belgium and Switzerland are to be now seen, with frequency, ably written special articles on different phases of the Irish movement, accompanied by his illustrations which are of great historic value.

To the industry and research of Professor Swift MacNeil, the scholarly Nationalist member for South Donegal, is due an enlightening article on the earlier Parliaments of Ireland just published by the London Sphere as the leading feature of its number.

Mr. MacNeill's narrative is not only of great value in itself, but its interest is much enhanced by two features hitherto unfamiliar to students of Ireland's history.

One is the first picture of the Irish House of Commons, as it sat in Chichester House in 1704, prior to the building of the present Parliament house on College Green, now the Bank of Ireland.

"Parlement d'Irlande."

The second feature is the Irish House of Lords as it was assembled in Chichester House during the reign of Queen Anne. Both are made from rare prints found in a French publication, entitled "Parlement d'Irelande."

To these two pictures, the Sunday AMERICAN adds another as a link to the illustrative chain of history, a view of the interior of the last Irish House of Commons, as it was in session during the fateful debates prior to the act of so-called union, which is now on the eve of repeal.

In his own brilliant and graphic style Mr. MacNeill tells how public attention has been so strongly concentrated on the Irish Legislature of 1782-1800, known as Grattan's Parliament, that the fact that Ireland had a Parliament as old as the Parliament of England has been all but forgotten. Prof. MacNeill brings to light the fact that from the earliest introduction of the power of the English Kings into Ireland there was an Irish Parliament exactly like the English Parliament. It had its hereditary House of Peers, its House of Commons was elected exactly like the English House of Commons. This was as far back as 1295.

During the reign of King John the forms and procedure of the Irish Houses of Parliament were substantially the same as the English Houses of Parliament and the ceremonial observances, typical of the age, were quite as splendid.

In the pictures the members are seen dressed in Court costumes. The Viceroy, the Duke of Ormonde, is wearing the robes used by King James II. when he opened the Irish Parliament of 1689.

From 1692 till 1782 the sessions of Parliament in Dublin were biennial. This assembly, in the words of Professor MacNeill, did marvelous things.

Fair, Progressive, House.

Although Catholics were excluded from its membership, it repealed the Penal Code which oppressed Roman Catholics. It freed Ireland for a time from laws passed by the English Parliament against the interests of Irish trade. It obtained an unequivocal acknowledgement by the settlement of 1782 of the exclusive right of the King, Lords and Commons of Ireland to bind by its laws that kingdom and its people as well in respect of external as internal affairs. In a word, says Mr. MacNeill, it made Grattan's Parliament.

At that moment Ireland occupied before the world a magnificent position. Her progressive and virile population numbered upward of 8,000,000. Dublin, her capital was the second city in the British empire, not even second to London in its architectural and suburban beauties. Being the seat of the Parliament it was the constant residence of the highest and most cultured society, whose members maintained magnificent establishments. The people of all social grades were famous for hospitality, and the active commerce of the port gave to Dublin a brilliant prosperity, which, Sir Jonah Barrington tells us, made Ireland's metropolis a splendid and luxurious capital.

Enemy's Arm Too Strong.

Then English politicians, they were too narrow and too corrupt to dignify them with the name of statesmen, began to look across the Irish Sea with eyes of jealousy and hatred and they set plans in destroy the parliament of Ireland, first robbing it of power.

Ireland struggled bravely and fought hard, but the arm of her enemy was too heavy. By all the arts of wicked tyranny, inspired by commercial jealousy, the spirit of the country was broken and the year 1770 saw Ireland paralyzed in all her activities and robbed of every semblance of freedom as a self-governing nation. The last blow fell when her parliament was absolutely extinguished in 1800.

Against this condition she has struggled without ceasing down to the present hour. Sometimes by physical means, under such patriot sons as Emmet and Tone, Meagher and Smith-O'Brien, Mitchell and Stephens; at other periods under great constitutional leaders like Grattan, O'Connell, Butt and Parnell to Redmond who, in our day, is leading the fight, the great protest has never known a break or an interruption.

Mills of the Gods.

For many weary years it was a lonely and unequal battle. Until within recent times England had the ear of the world. The busy, war-tossed, commerce-hunting universe had no time to waste listening to Ireland's plaint, and the decimation of the country went on through famine and emigration, both made continuous by a system of absentee landlordism, the worst and most tyrannous the civilized world has known.

But, "the mills of the gods grind slowly." Out of the ranks of the mighty there stepped, thirty years ago, into the ranks of the helpless and driven people, a young leader who taught new methods of resistance and perfected a national and international organization, whose power, like a social Niagara, swept all opposition before it.

The man was Parnell; the force he directed was the Irish National Land League.

Both the man and the movement are the direct fruit of their harvest in our day. Time ran at last on the side of Ireland.

When the House of Commons reassembles on October 7, measures will be taken to expedite the passage of the bill restoring legislative rights to Ireland.

His patience with the Tory obstructionists exhausted, Premier Asquith will take care that the promise he made in Dublin a few weeks ago will be fulfilled. Two years from May 9 last, the Asquith home rule bill will be signed by the King.

Century Club Active.

The Twentieth Century Catholic Club of Brockton will hold its first meeting of the season tomorrow evening. It will conduct a series of entertainments during the Fall and Winter. Included in the season's program is an address on "Catholic Education," by Hon. David I. Walsh, of Fitchburg.

WEXFORD MEN VOTE $200 FOR HOME RULE

Irish County Clubs to Honor William Redmond on Coming Boston Visit.

Wexford County Club will meet in Hibernian Hall, Union street, Charlestown, next Thursday evening. The club has voted the sum of $200 to the fund being raised for the cause of home rule. It will be presented through Mr. Redmond, M. P., on his visit to Boston.

Joint socials will be given during the coming season by the Leitrim, Cavan and Longford clubs in Corinthian Hall.

The Leitrim Club announces that the annual ball will be held in Paine Hall on Thursday evening, November 21.

The delegates to the Central Council of the Irish County Clubs have voted to take part in the reception to be tendered by the Irish organizations of Boston to William H. K. Redmond, M. P., upon his visit here within a few weeks, in the interest of home rule for Ireland.

A notice will be sent to each county organization giving the time and date of the parade to be held from the hotel where Mr. Redmond will make his headquarters to Tremont Temple, where the reception will be held.

At the next meeting of the Central Council, a special election will be held for the office of recording secretary, to fill the unexpired term of James Harvey of the Tyrone Association, who has resigned owing to a pressure of business.

Waterford men and women will enjoy their annual reunion and outing at Rugby Park, Mattapan, today. In addition to the usual fine old country dinner, a literary program will be given, interspersed with musical selections.

The following committee will act for the Waterford Association in the arrangements being made for the Redmond reception: Andrew J. Gambon, Joseph P. Hutchinson, Patrick J. Crotty, Richard F. Carroll, Thomas D. Carey.

One thousand tickets for the annual ball of the County Sligo Social and Benevolent Association will be distributed to the members at the meeting tonight in Sever Hall, No. 9 Appleton street.

A committee of fifty, with Edward Tierney as chairman, Thomas McDonald as secretary and Timothy Calloway as treasurer, is arranging the details. The ball will be held in Paine Hall on Wednesday evening, January 8.

The Cavan Club will meet tonight in Paine building to initiate a number of candidates and also to prepare for the annual ball to be held in Paine Hall on Thursday evening, December 5. John F. Donohue will preside.

* * *

A ball committee will be appointed in Sever Hall this afternoon by President Michael J. McCarthy to select a date for the annual reunion of the Knights of St. Brendan. All former residents of Kerry are cordially invited to this meeting.

* * *

Owing to the inability of the Roscommon Social Club to procure a large grove during this month, the outing will be omitted and all efforts will be concentrated upon the annual ball in Paul Revere Hall on Thursday evening, December 12.

* * *

A handsome painting of Colonel Case, the gallant commander of the old Ninth Massachusetts Regiment in the Civil War, will be unveiled in Roxbury Hall on Sunday evening, October 27, by the members of the Queens County Association. The literary exercises that evening will include an address by Major Dunton, commander of the Ninth Massachusetts Veterans Association. Dr. Joseph F. B. Tuan is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

* * *

Final arrangements will be made by the Clare Men's Association at the meeting in Vernon Hall, Tremont street, for the ninth part in the reception to be tendered William H. K. Redmond, M. P. President Thomas F. Doolin hopes for the attendance of a large number.

An important meeting of the Tyrone Club will be held in Knights of Honor Hall, East Cambridge, next Thursday evening. All members are requested to attend.

Anniversary Dinner.

St. Mary's Court, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, will celebrate its thirtieth anniversary with a banquet to be held September 17 in Stetson Hall, Randolph.

Boston Girl Becomes Nun.

Miss Mary Fleming, formerly a zealous and active member of St. Vincent's parish, South Boston, has entered the Order of St. Dominic, New York city.

MANY CONTESTS FOR SUFFOLK CHAIRS

McLaughlin of Jamaica Plain or O'Connor of Div. 72 for President.

Suffolk County board of the A. O. H. in Massachusetts will hold a meeting on Sunday afternoon, September 29, to receive reports from the field day committee and to arrange for the biennial election of county officers.

County President Richard Dwyer, having been chosen State secretary at the Springfield convention, will not be a candidate for re-election. A number of candidates for the various offices will be presented.

For the office of county president, Fred J. McLaughlin of Jamaica Plain, the present county vice-president, and William H. O'Connor, president of Division 72 of the South End, are in the field.

Mr. McLaughlin has held every office in Division 16 and is one of the committee that built the handsome Emmet Hall in the West Roxbury district.

Mr. O'Connor has been president of his division for a number of years and has the satisfaction of knowing that Division 72 is one of the most prosperous in the county. Both the candidates are popular and an interesting contest is looked for.

County Financial Secretary Thomas J. McMackin, president of Division 60 of the North End, and Benjamin J. Fitzpatrick, president of Division 58 of South Boston, are candidates for the office of county vice-president.

Fleming Must Stay.

County Recording Secretary William T. Fleming will be unopposed, as the members are reluctant to part with the services of so painstaking and efficient an official.

Former President Michael J. Dullea of Division 72, South Boston, has announced his candidacy for the office of county financial secretary.

County Treasurer Martin J. Smith, president of Division 17, Roxbury, was elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Cornelius J. Coughlin.

Elections in Suffolk County are by the Australian system. Nominations are made at one meeting and elections are held a week later.

Big Gains in Two Years.

Reports for the past two years to be submitted at the biennial county meetings will show that gains have been made in Essex, Middlesex, Suffolk, Norfolk and Worcester counties, Worcester, particularly, has made rapid strides.

While a large amount of money has been used for benevolent purposes, still the respective sums in the treasuries are of a substantial amount.

Clouded skies and threatening weather on Labor Day did not deter the lovers of Gaelic sports from flocking to the Locust street grounds for the A. O. H. field day. The committee that had charge of the big reunion and field day will make a satisfactory report.

The expenses were very heavy, as only the best attractions were offered. Everybody enjoyed a good time. The two football matches and the hurling contest were among the best ever seen in this vicinity.

The crack Tipperary team from New York left Boston happy over their victory. They had beaten the Wolf Tones of Boston in the hurling contest and a return match in New York is anticipated. If the Wolf Tones and Tipperarys meet over in Celtic Park, the crowd that will witness the game will be the largest on record.

DOUBLE CELEBRATION.

Temperance Body to Honor Discoverer and Moral Teacher.

A double celebration in honor of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus and the birthday of Father Mathew, the apostle of temperance, will be held on Friday evening, October 11, by Intercolonial Hall, Dudley street, Roxbury, under the auspices of St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Literary Society.

For the past three weeks the members of the society have been working assiduously to make the affair a memorable one in the history of the organization. A large corps of young women is assisting. The tickets will be put in circulation tomorrow night.

M. C. O. F. NOTES.

Cornelius M. Duggan, P. H. C. R., and members of the high standing committee will be the guests of McDermott Court of Springfield at their eighth annual clam bake.

Middlesex Court of Newton will initiate eight candidates Thursday evening.

William A. Curil, chief ranger, is chairman of the committee making arrangements for the celebration of the thirty-second anniversary of the institution of Wilfred Court, to be held September 17th.

Cheverus Court of Boston will initiate six candidates Monday evening.

The members of St. Alphonsus Court of Roxbury have organized a bowling team and would like to arrange to meet teams from other courts in that vicinity.

Patrick J. Kelly, D. H. C. R., will visit Fenwick Court of Boston Thursday evening.

Mrs. Vera Daly, D. M. C. R., will visit Father Barry Court of Boston Tuesday evening.

Erie Court of Boston will initiate nine candidates Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Eva M. Doyle, D. H. C. R., will visit Father Thomas J. Lee Court of Newton Thursday evening.

James J. Ryan, H. C. R., will act as floor marshal at the eighth annual concert and entertainment of the Massachusetts Foresters' Home Association, to be held in St. Rose Hall, Boston, October 21.

St. Bernard Court of West Newton will initiate eight candidates Thursday evening.

A joint fair and banner under the auspices of General Sherman and St. Veronica courts will be held at Plymouth, October 17, 18 and 19.

Lady of Victory Court of Fall River will initiate eight candidates Wednesday evening.

SUNDAY AMERICAN'S SPECIAL CABLE LETTERS FROM THE CAPITALS OF EUROPE

MRS. GOURAUD HAS GIVEN HER HEART TO A HUGE SNAKE

Blandishments of a 12-Foot Python Captured Her as Did the Serpent Eve in Eden.

BUILT GUARD ROOM FOR PET

By PAUL PIERRE RIGNAUX.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—"Between men and snakes, give me snakes." said Mrs. Amy Crocker. Ashe-Gillig-Gouraud in denying the report of a coming marriage with Senor Edmardo Garneia Mansilla, a former Argentine diplomat and noted composer of music.

"The marriage game," she continued, "is one I hope I will never play again. I fortified myself against any such possibility by giving all my love and affection to my snake, and I fully sympathize with Mother Eve's weakness in the Garden of Eden when she said to cope with the serpent. It was a wise old devil that conceived such a form of temptation."

The truth is that an arduous suit for Mrs. Gouraud's hand has been in progress since her return to Paris by Enia Agrikoff, a Russian singer, and Senor Mansilla, but both have been vanquished by a snake. When Mrs. Gouraud was in New York she became acquainted with Princess Sett Devi, the daughter of an Indian Rajah Who had brought an immense python to New York to use in a dance. The python was called "Kaar" and became very fond of Mrs. Gouraud, who borrowed it for days at a time and kept it at her home. Mrs. Gouraud tried to purchase the snake and bring it with her to Europe, but the Princess refused to part with Kaar.

When Mrs. Gouraud returned to her newly purchased house in Paris she began writing for Kaar, and in planning her house she has prepared a room for Kaar all of teakwood and mother of pearl where she soon expects to install the snake. Kaar measures twelve feet in length and weighs sixty-four pounds.

"I must have Kaar or life won't be worth while," said Mrs. Gouraud. "I've made all sorts of offers for the snake, but the Princess is keeping me from getting him. I have looked at other snakes, but none can take the place of dear old Kaar."

Rene Chapelle, a nephew of Madame Emma Eames, has been commissioned by Mrs. Gouraud to find her another snake in case she fails to get Kaar. Chapelle took charge of the snake for Mrs. Gouraud while in New York, and posed for a statue with the snake twined about his body.

Mansilla, the rejected suitor of Mrs. Gouraud, is a diplomat and wears a button of the Legion of Honor. His father was the Argentine Minister to Vienna and acted as intermediary in the marriage of Napoleon and Eugenie.

DOCTORS PRAISE CORSET.

Berlin Physicians Recommend It for Paralytic Thorax.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—Two Berlin doctors have raised their voices in defence of much-abused garment the corset.

Professors Felix Hirschfeld and Aldolph Loewy declare that for a certain type of physique that is especially prone to consumption the use of corsets may act as a preventative to that disease.

"Paralytic Thorax" is the name given to the type of physique capable of being benefited by the corset, length and flatness of the chest being its characteristic.

Exhaustive experiments with the Roentgen Rays on the respiratory organs of persons of this class resulted in the conclusion that, whereas the corset diminished the depth it increased the frequency of breathing so that the total amount of air taken into the lungs remained the same. At the same time the upper portion of the lungs was expanded the lower portion was contracted.

For this reason these professors recommend the use of corsets to paralytic-chested women threatened with consumption through imperfect action of the upper pulmonary tracts, but they also pointed out that in cases where the disease has already attacked the lower portion of the lungs the corset is directly harmful.

KAISER'S EYE ON CANAL.

Germany to Use San Francisco's Fair as Huge Aid for Trade.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—Germany is preparing a big effort to capture the South American trade when the Panama Canal opens, by means of a World display and an energetic advertising campaign at the San Francisco Exposition in 1915. German representation at the fair has the direct support of the Imperial government, and the Kaiser himself takes a keen interest in the coming campaign of German frudfen. Speaking at Hamburg recently, he said:

"Where they lead I will follow."

The North German Lloyd Steamship Company is launching four new cargo liners destined exclusively for the South American trade, and the fact that the American tariff bars them from developing an export trade with the United States, but does not prevent their starting on the United States soil a campaign for the invasion of Latin America.

BARONESS LIKES COACHMAN

Placed in Asylum, Pretty Orphan Denounces Relative for Plot.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—The pretty young Dutch Baroness Van Borra languishes in an insane asylum near Brussels because she is alleged to have fallen in love with her own coachman. The affair has caused a commotion in social circles here.

It appears that the Baroness, who is a wealthy orphan and heiress, was forcibly abducted last month from the Ostend Hotel by detectives in an automobile, armed with medical certificates declaring her insane because of her infatuation of a menial.

The Baroness has managed to give her own version of the affair to the press. She describes herself as the victim of the greed of relatives who wish to get hold of her property. She says the young coachman, although in a humble position, is a most intelligent, upright and worthy fellow. She says she intends prosecuting the Ostend police and her own relatives.

They Call Her the Madonna of the North

Lily Langtry Coming with Dazzling Gowns

The Jersey Lily Has Kept Her Figure and Her Good Looks to a Marvelous Extent.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Lily Langtry (Lady de Bathe) has been busy fitting herself out with some wonderful new frocks for her approaching twenty weeks' vaudeville tour in America. The Jersey Lily has kept her figure to marvelous extent and much of her good looks, too, and is still able to launch a mode with the youngest of her sisters.

The chief lesson to be learned from the frocks and frills which litter her flat at Regent's Court is that the bobble skirt may be regarded as a back number and that the accordeon pleated skirt has returned to stay.

The pleating, however, is not nearly so close as was the case when it was last in fashion, and the result is far more graceful, the garment outlining the natural lines of the figure.

Other points to be noted are that evening dresses all have separate foundations, and that though there are no panlers, many of the skirts are gauged round the hips, producing a slightly panier effect. One particular gown is a pinky shot grey and silver charmeuse over pale pink satin, veiled with gray silnon. The frock has a tunic of gray net embroidered in silver and pearls.

Mrs. Langtry is relying mainly on her suffragette sketch, "Helping the Cause," for her tour, but may possibly produce a new sketch also. She says she finds American audiences more stimulating and intelligent than the English, and naively adds that whereas in England cities only talk about her frocks, in America they give her credit for her acting also.

AXE FOR PRIME MINISTER.

The One Thrown at Him Added to Historic Relics.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—An interesting addition has been made to the collection of historic relics at No. 10 Downing street, the London official residence of the British Prime Minister. This is the hatchet which was thrown by a suffragette at Premier Asquith when the suffragettes attempted to kill him during his recent visit to Dublin.

Future Queen of Sweden, Whose Friends Are American Girls, Teaches Her New People the Loveliness of Motherhood

Special Cable to Sunday American.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 7.—Queen Victoria of Spain once declared she was determined to have as many children as her illustrious grandmother, Victoria of England. The Queen of Spain's first cousin, Princess Margaret of Sweden, seems to be of the same laudable ambition. The Crown Princess, often called the "Madonna of the North," recently presented her husband, Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus, with a third son and fourth child, the infant Prince Bertil.

Small wonder that the Crown Prince and Princess are known as the "Model Royal Couple of Europe." They were married at Windsor, England, on June 15, 1905. She is the eldest daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and so, of course, sister of Princess Patricia of Connaught, who has made herself so popular in the United States and Canada.

The eldest boy of the Crown Prince and Princess, who bears the same historic name as his father, is six years old. Their second son, Prince Sigvard, is five. The third child, Princess Ingrid, is two. The baby Bertil is seven months old. Race suicide is unknown in the Swedish royal family.

The Crown Prince and his charming wife married for love. They met in Cairo and were permitted to make their own choice of each other without trembling the diplomats. King Edward approved the match highly. Once it was officially hinted here that the Crown Prince would make a desirable husband for the then Miss Alice Roosevelt.

Like the Queen of Spain, the Crown Princess is a devoted mother. She has introduced the English methods of child culture in her adopted country. All her children are sturdy specimens of youthful royalty. They are being brought up under simple, healthdressed in the English fashion and are ful conditions, like small Britons of the middle class.

But their mother, who is devoted to art and to outdoor sports, is practically leader of Swedish society. Queen Victoria, who was a princess of Baden, rarely attends the court functions. When Crown Princess Margaret first took her place at court here, her informal manners provoked astonishment, but always she has been most democratic. In England, her most intimate friends were American girls. Miss Jean Reid, Miss Muriel White, Miss Breese—almost every member of the charming coterie—is married now.

It is related that when she first came over, Princess Margaret ran briskly across the palace lawn to meet her bridegroom.

"Princess do not run in Sweden," said an elderly lady-in-waiting reprovingly.

"Do they not?" retorted the crown princess. "In England, they stand on their heads, if they wish so."

DUCHESS AN AVIATOR.

Takes Up Hobby Regardless of Husband's Wishes.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Duchess of Westminster, stung at last by her husband's indifference, has given up the domesticated existence which she has led for the past few years and taken to living her own life and enjoying herself in her own way. She is making a particular hobby of aviation, and has been seen much at the Hendon Aerodrome, where she made several ascents.

Later the Duchess intends entertaining much on her own account, without regard to the Duke's wishes or actions.

Westminster has now almost cut himself adrift from society. In the season just closed, he scarcely went to a single function. One night when a great ball was being given at Grosvenor House, his London mansion, he slipped away quietly and supped at a Bohemian restaurant with a merry party of friends. He cares only for polo, and is bent on securing for England the polo trophy secured by the American team last year.

Oriental Cult Hits Americans in Paris

Persian Fancy Dress Ball Attended by Many from This Side of the Ocean.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—The Oriental cult has captured society Americans. The fame of the Persian fancy dress ball given at Dinard by Hardy, the wealthy widower of the late Mrs. Durkee of New Orleans, has penetrated the salons of Paris. Hardy was dressed as a Persian prince and the ballroom was decorated with ornaments such as are seen in the palace of the Shah. His dress was a real old Persian costume, so costly that it represented many thousand dollars. A group of Americans, dressed as Persian nobles, formed his bodyguard. This included Charles Holman Black and Frank Emery Holman of the American colony in Paris.

Andre de Fouquieres as master of ceremonies was dressed as an Indian prince, and with whom tomfoolery presided each guest to Hardy, the Persian prince.

Madame Marcella, the singer, was there as one of a group of sailors from the barbeshih Gloire, which was in the harbor, and she was unanimously acknowledged the most beautiful sailor in the seaport of Dinard. Mrs. Hughes-Hallett as an Indian princess, attended by an effective suite, divided honors with Judith Gauthier, a daughter of the late Theophile Gauthier.

Mrs. Peter Larson, widow of a Montana miner, wore a Persian costume studded with rare jewels.

AMERICAN FURNITURE BEST

Russian Prince Takes His House-hold Belongings from Chicago.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—American furniture has received a powerful endorsement in Paris by the fact that Prince Nicholas Engelitcheff has furnished his newly acquired residence in the Rue de Lubeck with some of the finest specimens. American society is notably the gainer, because the Prince and Princess, formerly Miss Farrrida, of Chicago, have decided to live here permanently.

Blenheim's Lord Snubbed; Duchess Christens Ship

England's Great Dreadnought "Marlborough" to be Named by the American Duchess.

By CHARLES OVERTON.

Special Cable to Sunday American.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—A signal honor has been shown the Duchess of Marlborough by the British Admiralty, which has formally asked her to perform the ceremony of christening the new British dreadnought, which is to be called "The Marlborough," at the launching of that vessel at Devonport next month.

The request is notable, inspired as it is by Winston Churchill, a first cousin of the Duke and First Lord of the Admiralty. It is a sharp snub for the Duke when a member of his own family bestows so marked an honor on the American girl whom he has so ineffectually tried to "freeze out" of English society. In spite of all the Duke's efforts the Duchess has an unshakable social position in London. Latterly she has been devoting herself more and more to public work of a social nature and is becoming well known and very popular among the general public.

Winston Churchill will be present at the launching of "The Marlborough" and will call on the Duchess to perform the ceremony of breaking a bottle of wine over the bows of the ship.

Queen Ties Prince to Her Apron Strings

Frowns on Wales' Trip to Canada, Fearing He Might Have to Visit United States.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—In court circles it is stated that Queen Mary has vigorously opposed the idea first suggested by the Duke of Connaught that the Prince of Wales visit Canada next year. Queen Mary does not so much mind the Prince, who is still treated as if he were a baby, going to Canada, but she is afraid this could not be done without his visiting the United States, and this she will not hear of.

She hates the publicity that attends any royal personage visiting America, and she has more than once expressed to her intimates her disgust at the fuss New York made over Princess Patricia of Connaught, who will never permit anything of that kind with Edward of Wales.

No city in the world, however, is likely to make a fuss over the Prince. He is still an utterly naughty pamby youth without an atom of vitality or high spirits, and everyone who is brought into contact with him declares that he will always appear a unmanly until he has thrown off the shackles which his mother has imposed on him.

The Queen, indeed, is arousing much antagonism by her arbitrary methods. She has succeeded in squeezing Queen Alexandra out entirely and keeping her in the background, with the result that the relations between the royal ladies are very strained.

Princess Radziwill to Lift Court Lids

Authoress of "My Recollections" Preparing a Still More Startling Book of Revealed Intimacies.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—The celebrated Princess Catherine Radziwill, who must not be confounded with the princess who was Miss Deacon, is writing another book of memoirs. She will tell once again, but in language more direct than formerly, of her intimacy with Emperors and Kings and her adventures behind the scenes of European politics. Her first book, "My Recollections," issued in 1904, created a great deal of gossip.

The princess comes from the high nobility of Poland. Her father was a close friend of the Empress Eugenie, and in his house as a girl she met all the great European personages of the day. On her marriage to Prince Radziwill at the age of fifteen she went to Berlin, where, for many years she knew intimately the old Emperor William, Prince Bismarck, the Emperor and Empress Frederick and the present Kaiser.

At the time of the Berlin Conference she became acquainted with Lords Beaconsfield and Salisbury and for a lengthy period was familiar with the private life, not only of the German, but of the Russian Court, as indeed with most of the courts of Europe. The new book, it is said, will reveal secrets which she has not dared to tell before.

Mrs. Potter Palmer Will Uplift Chicago

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Potter Palmer has returned to Paris from Berlin, where she took a thorough course of study in the picture galleries and museums. This is the last step of preparation for society functions next Winter, when she will visit Chicago.

Mrs. Palmer believes that more artistic appreciation should be developed in the Western city, and with this object in view she put herself under the direction of the learned Dr. Bode of Berlin. Dr. Bode, who is director of the Royal Museums, is recognized as the best living authority on the old masters. He is loud in his praises of the artistic aptness and intelligence shown by his Chicago disciple. Dr. Bode took his pupil around to the galleries and museums and gave object lessons on the theories of art which he is expounding.

When she motored back to Paris Mrs. Palmer decided upon raising the artistic tone of her own city because her local patriotism was hurt by the widely-quoted remark of the British novelist, Locke, to the effect that Charleston and Chicago represented extremes—the latter being all business and the former all culture.

HOW ENGLAND AND RUSSIA KEEP PACT WITH THE POWERS

Britain, Despite Her Solemn Promise in 1882 to Retire from Egypt, Is Still There,

HOLDS IT AS A COLONY

Special Cable to Sunday American.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—While the English press is daily shouting charges of bad faith against the United States, the news comes to hand from Egypt, calling sharp attention to England's way of keeping her word with the nations.

In 1882 England took possession of Egypt under a solemn promise to retire within a certain stated period. Thirty years have now elapsed, but, needless to say, England is still there, treating the country in all inten's and purposes as an English colony, even taxing the Egyptians for the support of the British troops maintained there.

Reports now being received of recent arrests for sedition show that matters are much more serious than was at first indicated. In addition to the suppression by the government of the Nationalist journal, El Lewa, founded in 1898, and the arrest of four men on charges of sedition, large numbers of inflammatory posters were being smuggled in from Constantinople in the luggage of a youth named Ohmed Monktar.

Previous to the arrest of Mouktar other posters had been placarded all over Cairo, the conspirators even having the effrontery to paste them on a wall adjoining a police station. Moukta's posters which the government seized in time to prevent their use, called on the Egyptians to rise against the British occupation. They attacked violently the Khedive, who is in the pay of the British government, and recommended the nation to revenge itself on all who oppose the Nationalist movement.

The conspiracy is said to be so widespread that English correspondents in Cairo call upon the British government to bring pressure to bear upon Turkey forcing her to refuse admission to all political agitators, and seditionaries who have made trouble in Egypt.

The extraordinary barbarities perpetrated by Russians in Persia are related by George Douglas Turner, an English missionary, who has just returned from Tabriz. He declares that gallows which were erected there eight months ago by the Russian troops, are still standing and claiming their victims almost daily. The methods of the Russians in inflicting punishment are beyond belief, says Mr. Turner. Men are beaten to death and others who have the temerity to speak in favor of the Persian constitution and their mouths sewn up. Heretofore are nailed to men's feet and they were thus driven through the bazaar. Other unspeakable barbarities were practised and any man who speaks in favor of the constitution is almost sure to meet death or a worse fate.

The Persians declare the worst crimes, however, has been the treatment of Persian women. It is undisputed that Russians boasted of their conquests of Persian women, and this aroused the Persian men to such anger that they mutilated the dead bodies of Russians, Mr. Turner says.

"During the December troubles there was a family of Persians, father, mother and children, seven in all, every one killed or wounded. One of the latter was a child of three years old who escaped by crawling under a stove, where it lay for twenty-four hours with a shot through its cheek." Mr. Turner declares that the Russians show no signs of intending to evacuate Persia. They treat the provinces exactly as if they intended to remain there permanently. The income is doing business in Russian paper money and everything is charged in kopeks. Russian soldiers with fixed bayonets are everywhere bulling the native Persians. The natives regret exceedingly the enforced departure of Morgan Shuster.

The opinion of everyone to whom I talked in Persia," said Mr. Turner, "was that Mr. Shuster was an ideal man for the work he had to do, and if he had been given time and had been left alone, he would have accomplished the regeneration of Persia. I did not discuss him with the Russians, naturally, but I did with men of every other nationality, and they all bear a single testimony in favor either in criticism of his methods or of his conduct."

WIN DOUBLE HONORS.

Mrs. McKee and Miss Croker Shine at de Molhac's Chateau.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—American women who have won a double distinction at the Chateau of the learned Pierre de Molhac, curator of the Royal Palace of Versailles, are Mrs. Baxter Tevis McKee and Miss Mary Croker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Croker.

The double distinction won was on horseback and in a ballroom. De Molhac organized a paper chase on horseback, the first ever seen in his entirely rural section of the country. Mrs. Tevis McKee and Miss Croker, who are driving away cheerfully in preparation for society functions next Winter, when she will visit Chicago.

Mrs. Palmer believes that more artistic appreciation should be developed in the Western city, and with this object in view she put herself under the direction of the learned Dr. Bode of Berlin. LONDON CLAQUE GONE.

Alhambra Banishes It and as Institution It Vanishes from City.

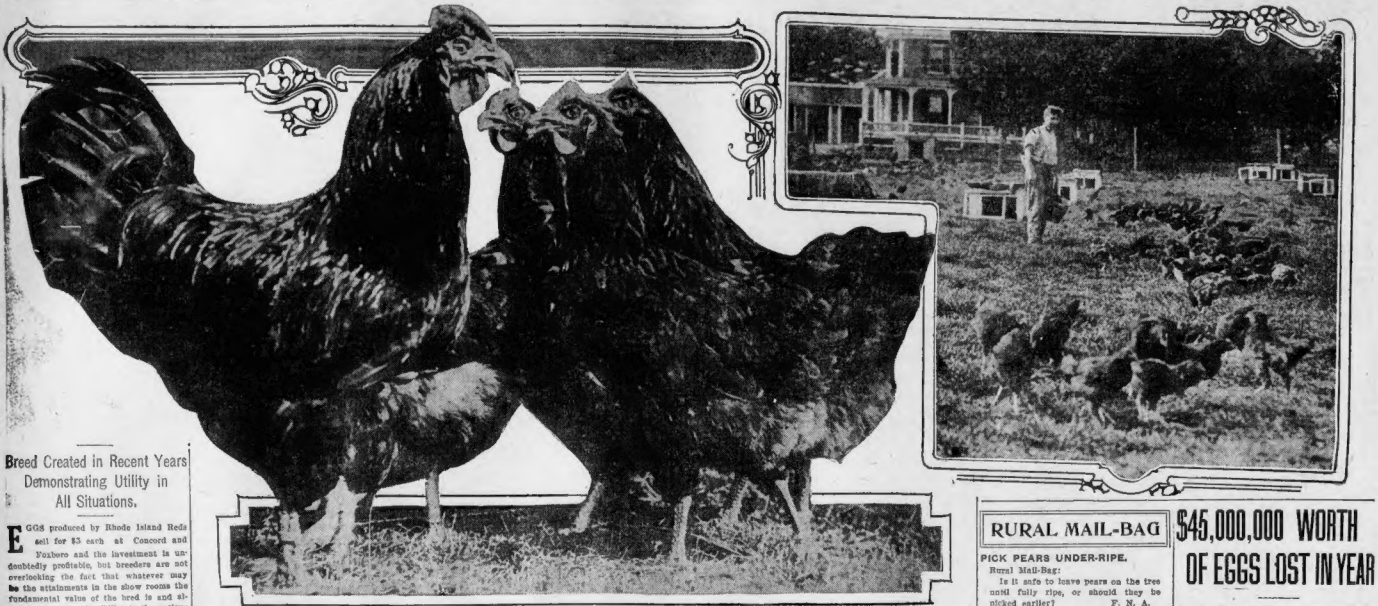
LONDON, Sept. 7.—The final disappearance from London theatres of the institution known as the "claque"—the Alhambra Theatre has just dispensed with it—will not be regretted in the interests of the theatrical manager, it never helped to make a reputation, but ruined many.

The monotonous nature of the work of the paid hand-clappers can easily be imagined. They were merely machines, listening night after night to the same songs, clapping their hands at command, and often having to put up with the angry demonstrations of an exasperated public.

That at least was a break in the monotony, but it often led to the ruin of a play.

'LITTLE RED HEN' WINS FAME AS MONEY MAKER

Surprises Poultrymen by Victories in the Show Room and by Her Great Success as Utility Fowl



Here are some of Tompkins' Reds, the pictures having been taken during the week at Concord, Mass. Lester Tompkins has attained the top round of the ladder in the poultry world. His Rhode Island Reds have won countless prizes, making many clean sweeps in the nation's largest exhibitions. Mr. Tompkins is regarded as one of the four or five leading poultrymen of America and one of the few who produces eggs which command $50 a setting and are worth the price.

Breed Created in Recent Years Demonstrating Utility in All Situations.

EGGS produced by Rhode Island Reds sell for $5 each at Concord and Foxboro and the investment is undoubtedly profitable, but breeders are not overlooking the fact that whatever may be the attainments in the show rooms the fundamental value of the bred is and always will be its adaptibility to the various utility purposes.

The Reds are stock that meet all the demands of the fancier and the egg producer. The breed has surprised poultrymen by its rapid progress and its victories at exhibitions, proving that it is a show as well as a utility type.

The Rhode Island Reds have not been injured as utility fowls by breeding for too great size and it is not probable that they will be so injured.

The Rhode Island Red is large enough for best results in egg production and for table purposes. The largest fowl is not always the best one as a meat producer, either at the broiler age or when fully mature. If it were, then we should all be breeding Brahmas and Cochins.

The cow that can assimilate the greatest quantity of food and from a given amount of it produce the most pounds of butter fat, is the most profitable butter cow no matter of what breed she may be. The animal of any beef breed that can turn a certain quantity of corn and hay into the greatest number of pounds of beef is best for that purpose, whether it be an animal of medium size or one abnormally large. So, the hen that can from one hundred pounds of food produce the largest number of eggs, whether she be Rhode Island Red or Wyandotte, is the greatest profit maker, and the chicken that can grow the largest amount of meat from a certain quantity of food in the shortest time is the best for utility purposes. The flesh of the oversized fowl is usually coarse in texture.

Eggs That Are of the Right Size.

The Reds lay brown eggs, varying in shade from a creamy tint to chocolate. This would be a disadvantage of course in some markets and in others it would not. The average Rhode Island Red female does not lay as large eggs as do Minorcas or White Leghorns, but as eggs are sold by the dozen and not by weight in nearly all markets, this makes very little difference. The Rhode Island Reds do not lay small eggs. Far from it. It is not an uncommon thing for a Rhode Island Red female to lay continuously for four or five months without becoming broody.

Many large Plymouth Rocks are too heavy to be used successfully in the hatching and rearing of chicks. The lighter and more active Red is nearly ideal for this purpose. She is large enough to cover a good nestful of eggs, but not so heavy as to smash every one she gets her feet on. She is quiet and when once broody is a persistent sitter and she is a careful mother. One hen that hatched eleven chickens last season raised them all and still continued to care for them until she had laid nearly two dozen eggs. She did not hesitate to attack any dog, cat or other animal that molested the brood.

As the Rhode Island Reds are more active and energetic than some of the larger fowls, hens of this breed with broods of chickens are exceptionally good foragers and teach the chickens to roam over large areas in search of insects. A Red hen with a dozen chicks to scratch for can and will dig over the surface of a large garden in a surprisingly short time.

A poultryman says:

Chickens Make Rapid Growth.

"During the last twenty years I have raised more than twenty of the standard varieties that are now considered the most popular ones. After carefully observing the growth of chickens of these different breeds I wish to state that I believe that Rhode Island Red chickens make more rapid growth and will weigh more at the end of three or four months than will chicks of any other American variety. This season we put mixed lots of eggs under several hens. These consisted of Black Orpingtons, Barred Rocks and Rhode Island Reds. Each hen hatched several chickens of each of the three varieties.

The hens were allowed their freedom after the first week and hens and chicks were fed for the purpose of securing as rapid growth in the chicks as possible. At the end of the first month the Red chickens were better feathered than either the Orpingtons or Rocks. We had lost six Rocks, one Red and one Orpington. There had been no particular ailment, but the chicks that died did not have sufficient stamina to follow the hens.

"At the end of two months the Reds were still in the lead in point of size and were all well feathered, while the cockerels and some of the pullets of the other two varieties were only partially feathered. At the end of three months the Red cockerels averaged three pounds each, the Orpingtons two pounds and fourteen ounces and the Rocks two pounds and nine ounces.

"I have heard the statement made that the Rhode Island Red did not make a good broiler or roaster on account of a deficiency of breast meat. Nothing could be further from the true facts in the case. At all stages of development from one month to three the Reds were more plump and had less pin feathers than either of the other. Two cockerels killed at three months were noticeably well developed in breast and presented an unusually plump and attractive appearance for chicks of that age. After having been accustomed to eating well fattened Plymouth Rocks for many years, I wish to say that I have never eaten chickens of more delicate flavor or of a finer grain and tender texture of flesh than the two Rhode Island Reds just mentioned.

Reds in Demand In All Markets.

"On account of the surprisingly quick growth of feathers on the young reds, only a suitable size for killing. They are very free from pin feathers at all stages of development. They have rich yellow skin and fatten easily at any age after reaching a suitable size for killing. They re very plump and symmetrical, and although the adult fowls are not as large as the Plymouth Rocks, I know of no market where the red does not bring top prices if properly conditioned.

"One very important point in favor of the red for utility purposes is this, although he has just been stated, they fatten easily, yet I have never seen a female of this breed break down from overfeeding or become too fat to lay. In some of the larger varieties great care must be exercised to prevent the older females of the flock from breaking down with fat and thus becoming worthless as breeders or layers.

"Although much more active than Orpingtons and Plymouth Rocks we do not find them more difficult to confine. A five-foot fence is sufficient to keep them within bounds. They seem to bear confinement in yards well and produce as many eggs as when at liberty.

"The Red hen never stands bumped up in a corner during the Winter days waiting for eggs enough to come with the shell. If there is any litter on the floor, it is all the industrious scratcher has to keep her working. She will turn it over and over looking for the last kernel of grain, while the more lazy hen of larger size mopes under the platform waiting for the next meal."

Some hens think it necessary to take a three months' vacation during the moulting season. Not so with the Rhode Island Reds. Hens in full moult sometimes give better than a fifty per cent. egg yield and show no disposition to stop for a small matter like change of dress. This is one of the strong points of this variety. The egg habit is so firmly established and been possessed of so great an amount of vigor and reserve force that the moult interferes very little with the business of supplying eggs for the family or market.

GOOD GRASS ON RECLAIMED CLAY

Wet Lands Can Be Made to Pay Profit to the Owners.

By L. N. PEASE.

Wet clay lands can be made to bear profitably. They will produce excellent hay or good pasture.

Many farms include areas of such soil, but unless some steps toward reclamation are taken, this part is likely to be waste land, bringing the owner practically no income. The farmer should make these waste places bear, and it has been proved many times over that wet clay land can be made profitable.

The needs of such areas as these are evident: drainage, cultivation adapted to the production of good tilth, and improvement of fertility.

Water should not be allowed to stand after heavy rains or in the Spring time, for clay soils are apt to pack down and bake, especially in hot weather, and this fault is corrected by drainage and proper tilling. Again, this type of soil lacks materially in phosphoric acid—a very important element of fertility. At the same time there is a tendency also toward injurious acidity.

Briefly, these are the needs of a wet clay soil. In preparation for reclamation, the first step is to clear the land. If it is new land and contains large or brushy wood growth, this growth must receive the first attention. Underbrush, small stumps and dead timber are easily removed, on such land as this, removal costing from $5 to $7 an acre. Large pine stumps, however, are harder to clear, costing at about the rate of $20 an acre. Blasting is probably the best way to remove these. If the stumps are left in the soil for a few years, the reclaimed land being used meanwhile for pasturage, blasting will be even more effective on the decaying stumps.

Drainage may be provided in two ways, either by open ditches or by under surface tile drainage. The latter is beyond doubt the best, and in the long run the most economical method of draining the soil. In open ditching, dead furrows are left every thirty feet, and these lead to a larger ditch along the side of the field, opening into a natural gully. Change the dead furrows every Spring, moving them over fifteen feet. In tile drainage, place the tile not less than two and one-half feet deep, and the lines about sixty feet apart. These sixty-feet-apart laterals lead into a main which leads to a natural outlet.

Plowing should be done when the soil is dry enough not to puddle. If the land is wet when plowed, the bad effects will last for three or four years. The furrow slice should be deepened to six or seven inches gradually, going one-half an inch deeper each year. If deep plowing is done suddenly the bacteria in the surface soil will be smothered and the land will consequently be "poisoned" by the subsoil. Get clover started as soon as possible and plow it under, thus getting the much needed humous into the soil at the outset.

Disinfectant for Stable.

D. R. T.—Chloride of lime is used a great deal as a disinfectant. Perhaps it is popular because it destroys odors so well. Most preparations of it are of uncertain strength and it injures metals. It is not so strongly recommended as many other preparations, such as the cresols. Its odor is undesirable about milk. The ordinary proportions for use are six ounces to a gallon of water.

EDITOR'S ACRE

By PROF. R. W. NEAL

NEEDED work awaits the women of a good many rural districts in making the little red schoolhouse more attractive. Barenness and lack of beauty always have their influence, and it is always bad. Ugliness is depressing, beauty is uplifting and stimulating. Unkept school yards, ramshackle buildings and dull, dirty schoolrooms are provocative of dulness in study and thought, and of disorder in behavior. Inattention and rowdyism are natural products of human nature in ugly or squalid surroundings.

Concerted effort by the women of a neighborhood can make the small schoolhouse into an attractive place, carrying constantly its silent lesson of thrift, good taste, refinement and pride in fit surroundings. A lawn and flower beds are quite possible in part of the schoolyard. Tree planting on Arbor Day will soon produce shade and verdure. Climbing vines will turn fences into walls of leaf and blossom and touch plain walls and doorways with a splendid transformation.

Inside the schoolhouse, with paint and alabastine—both cheap and good—color, light and cleanliness can be produced. Copies of interesting and good pictures, easily framed, will cover bald spaces and be silent teaching. A few flowers in pots or window boxes will bring nature within doors. Through such means the schoolroom is made to lose its aspect of barn or calaboose and to seem like the living room and home.

And all this sort of work is work for women. True, the men must help, and some money must be spent. But if the children are not worth some work and money for such ends they are not worth the expense of schoolhouses and teaching, of doctors' care, or of food and clothes. No better way of bringing the neighborhood into social fellow-feeling and no better activity for woman's energies is to be found.

The environment of school life teaches more, perhaps, than does the teacher. The womanfolk can make the little red schoolhouse a pleasant place where childhood shall discover its kinship with neatness, taste, beauty and nobler feelings.

THE SHEEP AND THE GOATS.

A THIRD fewer sheep of shearing age exist in Massachusetts now than there were ten years ago, according to figures just issued by the census bureau. The exact number given is 22,999. Of fleeces 21,607 were produced, weighing nearly 64 tons and valued at $38,670. The fleeces average about three-tenths of a pound heavier each than in 1899, but the average price per pound, 26 cents, was 5 cents higher than it was ten years before. The fleeces averaged almost 6 pounds each.

Nearly twenty sheep are kept for every goat. But 201 farmers have the distinction of being goat owners, and the honor roll of those actually producing goat hair or mohair contains forty-three names, five hundred and thirty-six fleeces were produced, valued at less than a dollar each, the whole number footing up $500. The weight was a trifle more than three pounds a fleece.

Considering the suitability of much Massachusetts farm land for the inexpensive raising of sheep and goats, the value of these animals to the land, and the returns that are possible under careful management, the statistics given represent an unsatisfactory condition in this branch of animal husbandry.

TAKING THE NECESSARY PAINS.

IT may not be possible to cure hog cholera, but it always is possible to keep the pens and hogs clean enough so that natural resistance to the disease will be strong.

HERE'S RECIPE FOR GARDENING SUCCESS

Prof. Yeaw Outlines Principles Which Must Be Followed to Win.

By C. L. THAYER.

Vegetable growing, like fruit growing, has become a matter of details, said Professor Frederick L. Yeaw of the Massachusetts Agricultural College in a recent lecture on "The Fruit Growers' Vegetable Garden." It used to be that when a tree was planted it was stuck into the ground, expected to take care of itself, grow, and produce fruit. Now we prune the tree before we plant it, we cultivate it, prune, fertilize, spray, and in some cases irrigate it. And we are beginning to pay more attention to the packing and marketing of fruit.

Practically the same things are true of vegetable growing. We have to plant carefully, cultivate, fertilize, spray, sometimes irrigate, and at last pack suitably.

Choice of Soil and Seed.

The ideal soil for vegetables, says Professor Yeaw, is a light loam. The plot should have a south or southeast exposure and a gentle slope. But any good soil will produce excellent garden truly. The physical condition of the soil can be improved by drainage, green manuring, or addition of organic matter in the form of stable manure.

Of first importance is the seed. Choose first the type of vegetable that you want, and then choose a strain of this type. Buy the best seed; be willing to pay enough to get good seed, and buy of reliable dealers.

Have the soil well prepared before you plant; the better the soil is prepared, the better your crops will be. Whether to grow crops in hills, ridges or level culture is a matter of choice. As a rule early crops do much better in hills, because the mound or ridge of soil warms up more quickly.

Horse manure is the best fertilizer of all, even better than cow manure. It puts the soil in better physical condition and the plant-food in it is more readily available than that in cow manure.

Of the chemical fertilizers nitrate of soda, dried blood and sulphate are the chief sources of nitrogen. Nitrate of soda is used to give the plant a start. However, it tends to produce foliage at the cost of fruit. It may be used as a top dressing for such crops as cauliflower, cabbage and asparagus, which have a large top growth. Phosphoric acid fertilizers are especially adapted to peas, beans and other leguminous crops. Potash is used chiefly for the root crops.

For general use Voorhees considers a fertilizer containing 4 per cent. nitrogen, 8 per cent. phosphoric acid and 10 per cent. potash a basic fertilizer. The basic fertilizer should be supplemented when necessary by adding more nitrogen, potassium or phosphoric acid, as the crop may demand. The amount to apply per acre depends upon conditions.

If you are using a large amount of stable manure, you will not need as much chemical fertilizer. To get the best results out of chemical fertilizers you must have plenty of humus, or organic matter, and water in the soil.

It is sometimes necessary to supply water by irrigation. The furrow system of irrigating is more practical for the average grower than the overhead or Skinner system. The chief objection to the Skinner system is the cost of installation, but in intensive market gardening it pays.

By this method the water is sprinkled over the fields from overhead pipes; in the furrow system water is applied directly to the soil through ditches. The furrow system is objectionable because on loose, open soils water will leach away rapidly, and on rather level land it does not flow well. The amount of water to be applied depends on the crop, the season and the soil. No hard and fast rule can be given.

RURAL MAIL-BAG

PICK PEARS UNDER-RIPE.

Rural Mail-Bag:

Is it safe to leave pears on the tree until fully ripe, or should they be picked earlier? F. N. A.

Pears lose quality by ripening fully on the tree. The gritty material often felt in eating ripe pears is deposited in the cells while the fruit is ripening on the tree. Pears are usually best when picked as soon as they reach full size, and before they color. When the stem snaps off readily from the spur, the pear is ripe enough. The ripening takes place in a cool, dry room, but without too much air circulation.

LUMPS ON LEGUME ROOTS.

Rural Mail-Bag:

What causes little lumps on the roots of my soy beans? The crop seems to be all right, but when I pulled up plants here and there I found the roots covered with little globes and bulbs. M. A. V.

Similar lumps would be found on the roots of clover and other leguminous or pod-bearing plants. You are fortunate in having them on your beans. Every lump is a nodule, or tubercle, and represents a colony of extremely useful bacteria. These are the nitrogen collecting bacteria, through which the nitrogen in the air is collected and turned into form to supply plant food. As nitrogen is an immensely important element of plant food, and as the nitrogen in the air has to be transformed before it is usable by plants, the work of these bacteria in the nodules is exceedingly valuable.

KILL THE WEEDS.

Rural Mail-Bag:

One of my fields where the crop failed in all grown up with weeds. One of my neighbors says I ought to mow it now, rake up the weeds and burn them as soon as they are dry. I intend to plow the land late in the Fall, anyway, and do not see the use of mowing now. My neighbor says I can save a manure, but it is unfair to him to leave the weeds, as he has a field that borders mine. Is mowing and burning worth while? S. T. U.

Certainly, mow and burn. If you let the weeds stand until they mature, myriads of the seed will be scattered over the ground and come up next year. Fall plowing will not destroy them, and may only protect more of them until Springtime. Your neighbor is right. If you don't mind encouraging weeds on your own land, you have no right to let them grow when they are certain to spread to his. And by the way, if your first crop failed, do you call it good business to let the field lie unused all Summer instead of putting in another crop? You are not getting the full use of your investment.

ECONOMIC ENTOMOLOGY.

Rural Mail-Bag:

What is economic entomology, and what is it worth to the farmer? Is it worth the money that is spent on it?

B. J. K.

Economic entomology is the study of insects to determine their effect on crops, farm animals and the like. When we consider that a large part of animal and vegetable disease and loss is caused by insects, many of which we do not yet understand, and that new varieties constantly appear, working destruction, we can perhaps how important the study of economic entomology is. In the aggregate, immense sums are saved annually by the control of insects that affect economic conditions in agriculture.

BUMBLE-FOOT.

RURAL MAIL BAG:

Several of my chickens had some disease of the feet. It began with a hard, sore-like place on the foot and festered. Some are still sick, as the sore does not heal rapidly. What can be done?

POULTRY WIFE.

Use a knife with very sharp blade and cut a cashion across the sore, taking out the kernel or corn. Wash the foot thoroughly with peroxide of hydrogen or sulphocaptbol (diluted), and put on something healing. Keep it from dirt and wash it frequently until well. These sores are produced by bruises caused by the fowl's lighting or something hard in flying from the perches and the like. It is said that tincture of iodine will cure if used on the corn before the sore develops.

$45,000,000 WORTH OF EGGS LOST IN YEAR

Agricultural Department Calls for Reform in Handling of Hens' Fruit.

Government experts estimate that more than $45,000,000 worth of eggs annually are lost from causes which are preventable. The magnitude of the loss will impress the producer who is paying excessive prices for grain and selling eggs at a small margin of profit, or no profit at all, while he listens to the wailing of the consumers.

The Agricultural Department figures that one-third of this loss is due to the premature development of the embryo chick. Farmers are urged by the agricultural experts to segregate the roosters after June 1, and so eliminate this loss. This simple expedient, they declare, would be effective and equivalent to a saving of as much as three cents a dozen on the marketed eggs. The infertile eggs keep longer with less care, and are produced equally as abundantly.

Almost another third of the loss is due to a habit of farmers and egg dealers of holding back eggs during the Fall months. Prices are then rapidly advancing, and in the belief that a greater return will be realized, the eggs are not allowed to go on the market when they are fresh.

Owing to the porous construction of an egg shell, moisture can evaporate through it. The result of holding the eggs, therefore, is to cause a shrinking of the contents, reducing their value and preventing their sale in the better class of markets. If the farmers would discontinue this practice the agricultural experts declare they actually would get more for their eggs.

Bad Eggs Losses.

Dirty eggs are the cause of a loss of nearly 2 per cent. of the entire crop produced. Broken eggs cause a like loss. Both of these factors are preventable. Contrary to general opinion, only about 3 per cent. of all the eggs are lost on account of spoiling in some way or another.

The ordinary form of "bad" egg is the least dangerous and is possibly the least numerous, it is asserted. It affords prima facie evidence of its unfitness for food. Eggs that are infected with bacteria, however, present a danger much more insidious. The comparatively large pores of the egg shells afford an easy entrance to disease germs. They are kept out of the egg itself only by the thin membrane lining the inner surface of the shell.

This membrane is effective only so long as kept dry. As soon as it is moistened it no longer affords a barrier to the entrance of disease germs. As a result, eggs may become dangerously contaminated through improper handling in storage or shipment by permitting them to become wet.

The "candling" of eggs is recommended emphatically. To the unfamiliar this is usually regarded as a mysterious process. As a matter of fact, it consists merely of examining each individual egg before a light from an electric bulb or candle. Experienced "candlers" are able to tell with accuracy the internal condition of the egg.

After "candling" the eggs are sorted into "firsts," or the perfect ones; "seconds," or those not quite so recent in origin, but still fit for food, and into various other grades between the "firsts" and those discarded as bad.

Favors "Loss-Off" System.

The department condemns the method of selling eggs by "case count." The case count method takes no notice of partially or entirely bad eggs. The department suggests that the "loss-off" system be substituted. Under this, the bad eggs are charged against the farmer, and for them he receives nothing.

The department argues that the inauguration of this system would provide an inducement for the egg raisers to interest themselves in the improvement of their product and ultimately react to their own good. It is urged that cash be paid for eggs instead of offering merchandise in return.

An extension of various preserving methods, such as drying, flaking and freezing, is also advised. Nearly $10,000,000 worth of eggs annually are rendered useless by whole or partial breakage, or because of a discoloration of the shell. Neither of these defects would affect the use of the egg for cooking purposes.
